AMAZING FRAUDS IN PRIMARY SHOWN BY GRAND JURY

LITTLE RELATION BETWEEN COUNT AND ACTUAL VOTE IN 11 PRECINCTS

Six Democratic Nominees for Circuit Judge Credited With Nearly Twice as Many Ballots as They Received.

ONLY 18 PCT. OF HIRTH VOTES TABULATED

Stark, on Other Hand, Got 26 Pct. More Than His Due—Overcount for Kinney and Jimmy Miller in Their Wards.

The September term grand jury, which has indicted 66 precinct officials and two other persons on election fraud felony charges since it went to work Sept. 14, returned those indictments today in the court of Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood, disclosing the incredible extent to which the will of the voters was flouted, in the 11 precincts in which indictments were found, in the August primary election.

This grand jury was the first in the history of St. Louis which had access to the primary ballot boxes in its investigation of election frauds — previous efforts having been blocked by Supreme Court decisions that the secrecy of the ballot would be impaired—and so for the first time there is possible a more or less extensive comparison of the vote certified by election officials, and the vote determined by impartial inquiry.

What Comparison Shows.

Comparison in these 11 precincts, in as many wards, shows:

That the six Democratic nominees for Circuit Judge, subsequently elected, were credited with nearly twice as many votes as were actually cast for them in the primary.

That William Hirth, unsuccessful candidate for Democratic nomination for Governor, was credited with only 18.5 per cent of the votes cast for him, while his opponent, Gov.-elect Lloyd C. Stark, was credited with 26 per cent more votes than were cast for him.

That Lawrence McDaniel, defeated for the Democratic nomination for Judge of the Supreme Court, was credited with but 73 per cent of the votes cast for him, while his opponent, Judge Ernest S. Gantt, re-elected in November, got, in the primary, 51 per cent more votes than were cast for him.

That Jesse Barrett, Republican nominee for Governor, was credited with 11 per cent more votes than were actually cast for him; one of his opponents, James J. Barrett, with but 64 per cent of the votes cast for him; and Claude L. Lambert, a third candidate, with but 72 per cent of the votes cast for him.

The lop-sided election returns in these precincts were pointed out by the Post-Dispatch shortly after the August primary, in its series of articles exposing election and registration frauds. The precincts investigated by the grand jury were only a fraction of the 670 in the city.

Recount Limited.

The list of candidates receiving a fraudulent count of ballots might have been extended, but the grand jury, to save time, limited its recount to a few offices. Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller, who directed the grand jury's investigation, expressed the opinion that in the trial of the defendants it will be possible to use as corroborating evidence any other discrepancies in the certified and actual vote in

PAROLED AFTER GUILTY PLEA IN AUTO KILLING

William Mounce Had Been Sentenced to Six Months in Clayton Jail.

William Mounce, a foreman for the Terminal Railroad Association, whose automobile killed Miss Stella Hildebrand last February, was sentenced to six months in jail at Clayton today on his pleas of guilty of manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident, then was paroled several hours later by the St. Louis County Parole Board.

He pleaded guilty of manslaughter before Circuit Judge Robert W. McElhinney and of the other charge before Circuit Judge Fred E. Mueller.

Mounce was arrested Feb. 26, four days after the accident, when police learned that a metal radiator cap and fragments of headlight glass found at the point on Highway 77 where the young woman was killed were from his automobile.

He told police that he struck something as he passed Municipal Airport, where Miss Hildebrand was employed as a waitress, but that he had presumed it was a dog. He and a companion, Frederick Duncan, got out, he continued, saw nobody and drove on, not knowing anyone had been killed. Miss Hildebrand's body was found next morning.

His attorney, C. C. Wolff, told the Parole Board he was 65 years old and of excellent character and reputation.

Jobless Man Gets 6 Months, Fined $100; Denied Parole.

Frank Siepman, unemployed salesman, 5229 Idaho avenue, who drove away after his automobile struck and killed Private Aubrey O. Parker of Jefferson Barracks last Sept. 6, pleaded guilty of leaving the scene of the accident before Circuit Judge Robert W. McElhinney at Clayton today and was sentenced to six months in the County Jail and fined $100.

Siepman made application immediately after to the St. Louis County Parole Board for a parole, on motion of Judge McElhinney, but it was denied for lack of a second after other members of the board were informed Siepman had been convicted previously on a charge of careless driving.

An attorney for Siepman told the Court that his client had been unaware that he had struck anybody at the time of the accident, and had surrendered voluntarily after reading in a newspaper of the killing of Parker.

Echo of Simpson Row in Bronx.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—James J. Lyons, borough president of the Bronx, attempted unsuccessfully today to have the Board of Estimate take cognizance of the Simpson affair. He introduced this resolution: 'It is with keen regret that we read of the attitude of Prime Minister Baldwin toward Mrs. Wally Simpson, an American citizen. His policy is an affront to American womanhood." The board took no action.

OPEN CORRUPTION OF POLL OFFICIALS APPALLS JURORS

Report Says in Many Instances no Attempt Was Made to Tabulate Voters' Ballots.

CALLS ON COURTS TO PUNISH THE GUILTY

Admonishes Judges to Let None Go Free on Basis of Immaterial Technicalities.

Members of the grand jury, which was discharged today by Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood, were "appalled" by "evidence of open and blatant fraud" on the part of election officials which "robbed the people of their right of suffrage," the jurors stated in their report.

The grand jury, of which Maj. James L. Barngrove, president of the Barngrove Realty Co., was foreman, said it found election officials "arrogant in corruption" and asserted that "overwhelming evidence of corruption" was found in each of the 68 election fraud felony indictments it voted.

"It now becomes the duty of prosecutors, judges and juries to see that none of those guilty go unpunished," the grand jury added. "Let no Judge so far forget his oath of office that he will lend himself to the dismissing of any defendant on vague and immaterial technicalities."

The grand jury was pleased to see that the Circuit Judges, in making their assignments for the coming year, had not assigned to the Criminal Divisions any Judge who "had benefitted, however innocently, by the corruption of the 1936 primary."

The grand jury recommended that the possibility of using voting machines be investigated and suggested that they would reduce opportunities for fraud.

So many candidates file for office in primary elections, the jury said, that voters have difficulty in making an intelligent selection. The jury commented that this was particularly unfortunate in the case of judicial candidates, and proposed that consideration be given to choosing State Court Judges as Federal Court Judges are selected. Federal Judges are appointed by the President for life.

Jurors Recall Instructions.

The grand jurors' report, after recalling the instructions it received from Judge Kirkwood, when he impaneled the jury, to investigate thoroughly reports of primary election fraud, said that those instructions had been followed conscientiously and that the jury had opened ballot boxes and accurately counted and examined thousands of ballots.

"The results of these examinations," the report continued, "have appalled the members of this jury by the evidence of open and blatant fraud and utter disregard by many election officials of their oath of office and their duty as American citizens. These examinations have proven by overwhelming evidence that the people of St. Louis have been robbed of their rights of suffrage, the most important possession of an American citizen.

"Many election officials have become so corrupt, and so arrogant in their corruption, that in many instances they have had the effrontery to make out their returns giving the entire vote to certain candidates and giving a zero vote to all other candidates. They have made no attempt to check the ballots which have been placed in the ballot box by serious-minded citizens who have believed they were doing their duty by going to the polls, some of them even returning to the city from summer vacations for this purpose. These citizens have wasted their time.

Evidence Overwhelming.

"In every case where this grand jury has voted indictments against election officials, the evidence of corruption has been overwhelming. The grand jury has gone as far as it can, and it now becomes the sacred duty of prosecutors, Judges and juries to see that none of those

30 PLANES DROP BOMBS IN NEW RAID ON MADRID

Rosales District Attacked in Northwestern Part of City—Government Machine Guns in Streets Are Fired at Rebel Ships.

FASCIST FORCES OPEN OFFENSIVE

Drive Is Started in Casa del Campo Park Against Defenders of Capital—Fighting Dies Down Later in the Day.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Dec. 4.—Thirty Fascist rebel planes appeared suddenly over the Rosales district in the northwestern part of Madrid today and dropped many bombs. The raid was one of the most severe of the siege.

Machine guns set up in the streets were fired at the planes.

The raid broke a period of comparative quiet which followed the opening of a rebel offensive earlier in the day in Casa del Campo Park.

The rebels attacked with rifles, machine guns and artillery along a wide semi-circle from University City in the northwestern part of the capital to Pablo Iglesias avenue, on the south. The line runs near the Manzanares River.

Fighting at Other Points.

A War Office report said Government aircraft and artillery attacked Fascist concentrations in suburban Pozuelo de Alarcon, in the Casa del Campo and in University City.

The international column of volunteers defending Madrid withstood repeated insurgent attacks in the vicinity of Pozuelo and Aravaca. It was indicated the Fascists were trying to cut the main highway to France.

On the Estremadura road, southwest of Madrid, Government militiamen resisted a machine gun, bomb and tank attack.

The loyalists reported capture of several parapets on Fascist trenches near Princesa Bridge on the southern edge of the city.

On the western side of Madrid, near Florida Bridge and south to Frenchmen's Bridge, Government troops blew up sewer sections of the city side of the river to frustrate a possible insurgent attack through the sewer system. Guards were posted at sewer openings.

Hundreds of civil guards and militiamen were stationed around houses fronting on the British Embassy.

Many Refugees Evicted.

Several hundred Spanish refugees from the provinces were forced to evacuate a building rented by the Finnish Embassy staff. Police later issued a communique charging pro-Fascist activities in the building made the eviction of the occupants necessary.

Twice, a police official said, refugees threw bombs through windows, aiming at militiamen and severely wounding a child.

When police and militiamen sought to enter the building they were met with machine gun fire. The patrols managed to get inside and forced the refugees to surrender.

More than 400 persons, nearly all members of Spanish Rightist organizations, were locked up at police headquarters.

The official note said police searchers discovered many bombs and tin cans in process of being converted into home-made grenades. Officials added the Finnish Minister expressed astonishment when informed of the seizures.

In a rebel air raid at 6 o'clock last night, bombs were dropped on University City and the Arguelles district. The raiders returned at 8:30 and again at 11, each time bombing the whole stretch along the Manzanares River.

Russian Steamer Seized by Spanish Rebels.

By the Associated Press.

GIBRALTAR, Dec. 4.—The Russian steamer Stepankhalturim was halted by insurgent Spanish warships in the Straits of Gibraltar today.

The Soviet vessel was halted within sight of Gibraltar when a Fascist gunboat, convoyed by four armed trawlers, fired two shots across her bow.

Insurgent officers boarded the Stepankhalturim and headed their prize of war toward Ceuta, Spanish Morocco, under escort of the insurgent fleet.

The Russian vessel was crossing the straits from the west and had intended, it was reported, to enter the port of Gibraltar to refuel.

BALDWIN TELLS COMMONS EMPIRE WILL NOT ACCEPT MRS. SIMPSON AS QUEEN

MILTON CALLED FOR INQUIRY INTO INSURANCE DEALS

Man Who Made Million in Two Years Out of Missouri State Life Collapse Subpenaed for Monday.

COBURN CRITICISES STATE REGULATION

Congressmen Indicate Their Report to House Will Recommend Federal Supervision.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The Sabath Committee of Congress, inquiring here into the affairs of the insolvent Missouri State Life Insurance Co. of St. Louis, has deferred further consideration of insurance receiverships and reorganizations until Monday. It expects to have as a witness then David M. Milton, head of the Equity Corporation of New York, the man who made $1,000,000 in two years out of the Missouri State Life collapse in 1933.

The committee intends to examine Milton, son-in-law of John D. Rockefeller Jr., in minute detail as to the methods pursued in organizing the General American Securities Co. and the General American Life Insurance Co., to buy the assets of Missouri State Life, and in the sale of General American to Southwestern Life of Dallas after a little more than two years.

Milton and his associates put up $2,000,000 on the deal, amounting to $40 a share for General American stock, and last March, in the words of a witness, "took a walk," selling out for $60 a share, or $3,000,000. This was done, the same witness said, only after Milton had threatened to sell General American "down the river," if his program were not followed by the directors of Southwestern Life.

New Subpena Served.

Milton was under subpena to appear this week, but he also was under subpena from the Securities Exchange Commission in Washington, and the latter took precedence. The committee here has been notified, however, that the United States Marshal in New York has served another subpena, for him to appear here Monday.

In winding up its insurance inquiry yesterday for the week, the committee gave strong indication that it will recommend to Congress that legislation be enacted to place insurance companies under direct supervision of the Federal Government, under much the same plan as national banks.

Chairman Sabath expressed approval of a position taken by Arthur Coburn, vice-president of Southwestern Life, the witness already quoted as to Milton's manipulations and profits.

Coburn said he believed that any life insurance company which acquired the stock of another life insurance company, or borrowed money with its own stock as collateral, should be denied the use of the mails.

State Control Criticised.

The present system, under which insurance companies are under the supervision of commissioners in each of the 48 states, the laws of which vary and frequently are in conflict, Coburn said was unsatisfactory.

Coburn, in his second day's testimony yesterday, gave it as his opinion that the law should not permit organization of an insurance company, unless a certificate of convenience and necessity were issued by a public authority, which also should have the power to prevent such organization by others than persons experienced in the business. He compared conditions in the United States with those in Great Britain.

Since 1929, he testified, 50 legal-reserve life companies in the United States have collapsed, while in Great Britain there have been no failures. The losses to 1,500,000 policy holders in this country he estimated at $200,000,000.

He favored placing the licensing and control of insurance in some such Federal authority as the SEC, which, he said, would follow in a

States the Law on Mrs. Simpson

PRIME MINISTER STANLEY BALDWIN.

Mrs. Simpson Leaves England, Goes to France

She Departs in Night — King Edward Arranges for Her to Stay With Diplomat's Wife.

By the Associated Press.

ROUEN, France, Dec. 4. — Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, friend of Great Britain's King Edward, departed for Cannes shortly after noon today after spending the morning here.

The American-born divorcee drove up to the Hotel de la Poste here shortly after 4 o'clock with a chauffeur, bodyguard and secretary. The party spent the morning at the hotel after a call from the British Embassy at Paris advised the manager it would not be necessary for the party to register.

Mrs. Simpson wore a simple rust-colored tailored suit and had little baggage with her.

As the party walked out of the hotel lobby to resume the journey to Cannes, the French actress, Nadia Dauty, attempted to take a picture of the former Baltimore woman. The bodyguard, hotel employes said, pushed the actress aside and knocked her hat and camera to the floor. An amateur photographer also was knocked aside by the secretary, and struck back. After a brief encounter the party entered their automobile and departed.

Mrs. Simpson's car was a dark blue sedan of American make, carrying British license plates, presumably one of the pair of sedans recently purchased by King Edward. She arrived from England during the night, traveling incognito aboard the steamer New Haven which docked at Dieppe. Only officers of the steamer knew of her identity.

After leaving Rouen, the Simpson party stopped next at Evreux, on the road to Paris, and spent a half hour at the Hotel Du Grand Cerf.

Shortly after her arrival in Evreux, Mrs. Simpson made a telephone call to London.

From London a usually authoritative source said she left England only after assurances the King would not abdicate, and would remain away until after his coronation.

She immediately re-entered her car and started back on the road to Rouen. Any number of side roads, however, connecting the highways leading both to the Riviera and to Paris, join the Rouen Highroad a short distance from the city.

King Edward himself, it was learned in London, placed Mrs. Simpson in one of his big motor cars for her journey from his Belvedere Castle last night. Accompanied by a bodyguard and one of the King's secretaries, she went to the south coast of England, where she caught the boat for France.

The King arranged for her to go directly to the villa of Lady Mendl,

PRAYERS ORDERED IN ENGLAND ON SIMPSON AFFAIR

Archbishop of Canterbury Issues Notice to Churches of Entire Country.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 4. — The Archbishop of Canterbury announced today that prayers will be offered in all Church of England parishes on Sunday "that God may, in these momentous hours, rule over the decisions of the King and of his Government for the lasting good of the realm and empire."

The head of the Church of England, who has steadily opposed the King's wish to marry Mrs. Simpson, issued a statement saying:

"At this moment of deep anxiety and bewilderment in the public mind I venture to express two earnest hopes.

"The first is that during this critical week-end, especially on Sunday, those who have the duty to speak to the people from the pulpit or otherwise will refrain from speaking directly on matters which have arisen affecting the King himself and his subjects.

"I hope, indeed, I take it for granted that on Sunday prayers will be offered in all our churches, as surely they must be continually offered in the hearts of all Christian people that God may in these momentous hours rule over the decisions of the King and of his Government for the lasting good of the realm and empire."

WINS SUIT OVER GUARDIANSHIP

Former Millicent Rogers Upheld by Court.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Mrs. Millicent Rogers Salm Balcom, daughter of the late Col. Henry H. Rogers, Standard Oil magnate, was upheld today in her co-guardianship of her son, Peter Salm, in a unanimous decision of the appellate division.

Her former husband, Count Salm, sought to have her removed as co-guardian and his attorney substituted, on the ground that her interests in the $14,000,000 personal estate left by Col. Rogers conflicted with those of the boy.

TAKES OPEN STAND ON LEGAL GROUND AGAINST EDWARD'S WEDDING DIVORCEE

Woman the King Marries Becomes Queen, Prime Minister Declares — No Such Thing as Morganatic Union Under Law.

DOMINIONS WOULD HAVE TO CONSENT

This Is Impossible, He Adds—Following Speech He Goes to Fort Belvedere, Makes Third Plea in 48 Hours to Monarch.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin told the House of Commons today the Government would not yield to a suggested compromise to enable King Edward to marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, American-born divorcee, and keep the throne, then motored to Belvedere and made a final appeal to the monarch to put the empire before love.

The Premier also called a Cabinet meeting for tomorrow.

Baldwin arrived a. Edward's rural retreat shortly after 6 p. m. and was conducted immediately to Edward's apartments. It was their third conference in less than 48 hours.

The Duke of York, who many Englishmen think may succeed his brother as King, consulted with his mother, Queen Mary, and his secretary called on Baldwin before the Premier outlined the situation to a tense, hushed Commons.

Discussion With Dominions.

The Cabinet, which was discussing the crisis with representatives of the Dominions, will get further light on the Empire's views at tomorrow's meeting.

Three other persons were with Baldwin when he drove through the main entrance to Belvedere.

He left Belvedere after a 55-minute interview and sped back to London.

Reaching London, Baldwin went immediately to 10 Downing street to prepare a statement to the Cabinet on the Monarch's decision.

The statement was to be given to the Cabinet at tomorrow's session.

Baldwin paused for a moment before entering his official home, and said: "That will be all for tonight. The Home Secretary, Sir John Simon, is coming here at 9:30 and then there will be nothing more tonight."

Archbishop Calls on King.

The Archbishop of Canterbury also was a visitor to Edward at his Belvedere home tonight and spent a half hour with the monarch.

In his address to the Commons, Baldwin said Edward's marriage to Mrs. Simpson automatically would make her Queen unless there was special legislation, which the Government refused to introduce. This constitutional change, he added, also would require the assent of all the dominions and "I am satisfied from inquiries I have made that this assent would not be forthcoming."

Compromise 'Unconstitutional.'

A compromise, by which Mrs. Simpson could marry Edward but not become Queen, would be un-

ANTI-GAMBLING LAWS JUST A JOKE SAYS GRAND JURY

"Insincere" Methods of Enforcement by Police and Courts Denounced in Its Report.

FINES AMOUNT TO LICENSE FEE

Suggests Betting Be Made Legal, Under Strict Supervision, or Else Suppressed.

"Insincere" and "ridiculous" methods of the police and the courts in enforcing the gambling laws, which were declared to approach "the ultimate in silliness," were condemned by the September term grand jury in its report to Circuit Judge Kirkwood today. The grand jury, as told recently, voted 126 indictments on gambling charges, the largest number voted by one grand jury in recent years. Maj. James L. Barngrove was foreman.

The grand jury declared, in its report, that if gambling establishments cannot be closed by law, they should be licensed and allowed to run openly, with legal supervision.

The section of the report devoted to gambling was:

"As regards the slot machine and gambling cases that have been presented to this grand jury, we feel that the actions of the authorities are essentially insincere. If it were their intention to enforce the law to the extent that open gambling would be eliminated from the city, slot machine operators and those running establishments for betting on horse races would not be assessed a nominal fine, and then turned loose to continue the same activities in the same locations.

Tax On Gambling.

"This law provides a penalty which, if invoked, would forthwith close all such establishments over night. These fines, in reality constitute, and are so considered by the authorities and the individuals fined, a tax upon the activities of this gentry. It imposes upon the police department the function of collecting a tax from these people, and this tax must be collected in a most undignified and ridiculous fashion.

"There is probably no one so unsophisticated but is aware that horse race bets can be placed in so-called 'smoke shops' all over the city. We are informed that the ridiculous situation exists of uniformed police officers seeing bets openly made in these establishments and being unable to do anything, because the law requires that the officer must himself actually place a bet and have it accepted before making an arrest, and then recover the betting slip and the money to produce in court as evidence before he can secure the nominal fines now assessed.

"Ultimate in Silliness."

"This is a most amazing situation, and partakes more of the ultimate in silliness than the dignified, sensible enforcement of law. Such foolishness should stop, and either the gambling establishments should be closed definitely or they should be licensed and allowed to run openly under the law with strict supervision."

Of the 126 indictments voted on gambling charges, 115 were on charges of setting up gambling devices, such as slot machines, pin boards and baffle boards. The other 11 were on charges of custodianship of bets.

The maximum penalty for either offense is five years in prison, but by the custom which has prevailed, persons pleading guilty have been fined $50 for a first offense in setting up a gambling device, and $250 for the first offense in custodianship of a bet. These fines, as the Post-Dispatch has pointed out, and as the grand jury has now stated, amounted to a license tax on the gambling activities.

The police practice, established after a series of court decisions, was explained by Chief of Police John McCarthy to a Post-Dispatch reporter and published last Saturday. Before a case can be made in court, he said, it is necessary that the arresting officer be able to testify to a specific payment of money or merchandise by a gambling device; or, in bookmaking cases, to testify that the accused person was custodian of a specific bet.

This situation, Chief McCarthy said, made it impossible to employ uniformed policemen successfully in either class of gambling cases, though the mechanical devices are to be found throughout the city, and handbooks operate openly in many places. Persons not in police uniform, and not recognizable as being on police duty, have to be used in getting the necessary evidence.

When gambling devices are seized by the police, they are held by the Police Board for one year, and are then destroyed, unless suits involving their possession are pending.

Blame for Auto Accidents.

Besides its election fraud indictments against 68 persons, and the gambling indictments against 126, 35 persons were indicted on other charges, as follows: Manslaughter, 15; murder, first degree, 4; murder, second degree, 8; feloniously leaving scene of injury to person, 2; perjury, 1; and arson of store, 5.

Referring to the indictments voted for felonious flight of automobile drivers, the grand jury discussed in its report the general question of responsibility for injuries inflicted by automobiles on pedestrians.

"Without in any way excusing carelessness in the driver," the grand jury said, "we wish to point out that the burden of care should not be wholly upon the driver of the automobile, but should, and of necessity must, be borne equally by the pedestrian." Pedestrians, the grand jury said, "commit gross violations of the rules of safety, and if it were not for vigilance of drivers, the accident rate would be increased tremendously."

Safety organizations, the report said, have made the mistake of "ignoring the pedestrian angle" of the traffic question.

The Right of Way.

"Dissemination of the thought to school children and the public generally, that the pedestrian has the right of way in crossing a street and the burden of caring for the pedestrian's safety lies almost wholly with the automobile driver, is calculated to add to the carelessness of the pedestrian, and is, as a matter of fact, not true. The rapidity of movement of the automobile, its greatly superior weight and its lesser ability to stop quickly and otherwise maneuver, actually gives the automobile the right of way.

"Almost all accidents to pedestrians are occasioned when a careless pedestrian and an equally careless driver of an automobile meet, and we wish to urge that those interested in reducing automobile accidents in this city stress safety measures for the pedestrian, while in no wise abating their efforts to improve the safe driving of automobiles. We believe if this is done, much good will result."

Smoke Elimination.

Smoke elimination was declared, in the report, to be "a gigantic task, not beyond accomplishment," but requiring thorough understanding. Ineffectiveness of the present efforts, the report said, "is shown by the smoke pall of the present winter, apparently no less severe than that of years back."

The report commended the St. Louis Bar Association for its efforts to "eliminate unworthy members of its profession. It has as yet but scratched the surface, and we recommend that it continue its work until all unworthy members of the profession are eliminated."

Following its commendation of the present Board of Election Commissioners, which is quoted elsewhere in today's Post-Dispatch, the grand jury held the Election Board's work up as an example for law enforcement agencies, saying:

"We believe that if the law enforcement machinery of our city would follow the example just set by our Board of Election Commissioners, better law enforcement would result. It is well, however, to remember that no law ever passed was self-enforcing, that honor and integrity can not be legislated into public servants, and that the price of good government is eternal vigilance on the part of our citizenry."

The report ended with an expression of thanks to Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller and James E. McLaughlin, Assistant Circuit Attorney, for their assistance. "The office of Circuit Attorney is vitally important to the welfare of the city," the report said, "and we are confident that its multitudinous duties are now in capable hands."

In presenting the grand jury to Judge Kirkwood for formal dismissal, Circuit Attorney Miller said that no grand jury, in his eight-year period of service, had been so diligent and tireless. He told of its devoting four and five days a week to the election fraud and gambling cases, and the volume of its work, resulting in 182 indictments against 229 persons.

"They have performed a great public service," he said.

Judge Kirkwood, in discharging the members from service, added his thanks and commendation.

Waiting for Storm to Blow Over

MRS. WALLIS WARFIELD SIMPSON

BALDWIN REFUSES TO ALTER STAND ON MRS. SIMPSON

constitutional, the Prime Minister told Parliament.

"Suggetsions have appeared in certain organs of the press yesterday and again today," Baldwin said, "that if the King decided to marry, his wife need not become Queen. These ideas are without any constitutional foundation.

"There is no such thing as what is called a morganatic marriage known to our law. The Royal Marriage Act of 1772 has no application to the Covereign himself.

"Its only effect is that the marriage of any other member of the Royal Family is null and void unless the Sovereign's consent, declared under the great seal, is first obtained.

"This act, therefore, has nothing to do with the present case. The King himself require no consent from any other authority to make his marriage legal, but, as I have said, the lady whom he marries, by the fact of her marriage to the King, necessarily becomes Queen.

"She herself, therefore, enjoys all the status rights and privileges which, both by positive law and custom, attach to that position and with which we are familiar in cases of her late Majesty Queen Alexandra, and Her Majesty Queen Mary, and her children would be in the direct line of accession to the throne.

Opposes "Only Possible Way."

"The only possible way in which this result could be avoided would be by legislation dealing with a particular case.

"His Majesty's Government are not prepared to introduce such legislation."

Loud cheers greeted this announcement.

"However, the matters to be dealt with are of common concern to the commonwealth as a whole and such a change could not be effected without the assent of all the dominions," he continued.

"I am satisfied from inquiries I have made that this assent would not be forthcoming.

"I have felt it right to make this statement before the House adjourns today in order to remove a wide misunderstanding."

Baldwin read slowly and deliberately from a typed document, after Clement Attlee, Labor leader, had again asked if the Prime Minister had any statement to make.

"At this moment," Baldwin replied after reading his prepared paper, "I have no other statement to make."

Attlee again rose from his seat and said: "At this state of affairs I think it would, even if time allowed, be undesirable to make any comment or to discuss the Prime Minister's statement."

Cries of "Hear! Hear!" resounded through the House.

"The statement is one to which we shall have to give our very gravest consideration," Attlee said.

The House arose immediately.

Parliament With Baldwin.

Baldwin was cheered loudly when he entered Commons. He looked neither to the right nor the left as he spoke, standing a few feet from the mace which is the symbol of the power of the House of Commons.

The thunderous applause after Baldwin said "His Majesty's Government are not prepared to introduce much legislation" left no doubt that he had Parliament with him.

The instant Attlee, who was obviously playing a prearranged part, said it would be undesirable to discuss the Prime Minister's statement the chief Government whip rose and moved the hurried adjournment.

Winston Churchill and Col. Josiah Wedgwood, leaders of opposition parties, who might have wished to speak, were left with their mouths open.

Baldwin, so far as his Government is concerned, blocked completely Edward's hope of marrying Mrs. Simpson on his own terms. If Edward refuses to yield, the next step would be resignation of Baldwin and his Cabinet, with the King faced with the problem of getting a new ministry willing to fight a constitutional battle on his behalf. Edward's other alternatives are: To give up the throne by voluntary abdication or to remain a bachelor King.

Simultaneously with a brief Cabinet recess it was officially announced that the King was again at his country residence.

The King's brief morning absence from Fort Belvedere gave rise to rumors. At first it was thought he might have gone to London, but later indications were that he conferred with his adjoining neighbor, Lord Derby, life-long friend of his father.

W. T. Monckton, K. C., attorney-general to the Duchy of Cornwall, spent the night at Fore Belvedere with the King's personal household. Edward is believed to be leaning on him heavily for legal advice

Mrs. Simpson went during the night straight from Belvedere Castle to France to await developments in England.

Denial by Labor Party.

The Independent Laber party issued a formal denial that it had thrown its support to the Baldwin Government.

Wedgwood, who entered the lists for King Edward and against Baldwin late yesterday with a motion that Parliament reavow its allegiance to the King, indicated he would press for debate on the constitutional issue Monday.

Wedgwood said he had received more than 50 messages of congratulations for his action. One Canadian message suggested that if there was an empire election "the King would win handsomely." A message from Bromley, Kent, said, "Congratulate you on your pluck in voicing the feelings of millions."

Other messages said, "All ex-service men furious at what they consider Bishops' interference; everyone supports the King except the church, the smug and those politicians who are frightened of both."

After reading the messages, Wedgwood said, "I want an open debate in the House of Commons. I am perfectly certain the House of Commons is for the King."

FIVE GET LIFE TERMS FOR 'TARGET' KILLING

Second Such Sentence for Three in 'Black Legion' Cases; Convicted of Negro's Murder.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Dec. 4.—Recorder's Judge Donald Van Zile pronounced mandatory sentences of life imprisonment today upon five alleged Black Legion members convicted of the "target practice" murder of Silas Coleman, 42-year-old Negro war veteran.

Harvey Davis and Ervin D. Lee, already under life sentence for the shooting of Charles A. Poole last May, were given second sentences of life terms in Marquette branch prison.

John Bannerman, a third defendant under life sentence in the Poole case, was resentenced to Southern Michigan Prison, and Charles Rouse and James Roy Lorance, the other defendants, were sentenced also to the Southern Michigan prison.

Dayton Dean, confessed "execufor Poole's murder, had testified that Coleman was shot to death after Davis ordered him to "get some Negro" and bring him to a Black Legion week-end party "for a little target practice."

Two Shot to Death in Pontiac; One Reputed Black Legion Member.

By the Associated Press.

PONTIAC, Mich., Dec. 4.—Fire Captain William H. Bradburn and Donald H. Slusher, a fellow fireman, were shot and killed today in a kitchen on the second floor of a fire station. Acting Police Chief Frank Nelson said Bradburn shot Slusher and then himself. He said a note in Bradburn's handwriting said "he talked too much." Slusher's name had not been connected with the Black Legion investigation.

Bradburn was one of 19 members of the Pontiac police and fire departments named in a recent grand jury report as members of the Black Legion. No charges had been placed against him.

Police Chief Charles McMillan recently was removed from office by the Police and Fire Trial Board because of his membership in the Black Legion.

In another court, Common Pleas Judge Ned H. Smith today ordered three men held for trial on charges of conspiring in the Black Legion to kill Arthur Kingsley, suburban Highland Park publisher. The defendants are Arthur Lupp, named as Michigan commander of the Black Legion; Charles Baker, and Frank Howard. N. Ray Markland, former Mayor of Highland Park, was dismissed as a defendant when prosecutors said they did not have evidence against him.

COUNT FACES DEPORTATION

Russian and Wife Arrested at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

By the Associated Press.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 4.—A Russian Count and Countess, teachers at a Wayne County orphanage, are facing deportation after their arrest yesterday by agents of the United States Immigration Bureau. "If I am sent back, I'll probably face a firing squad," said Count Basile Mousine-Pouchkine.

The Count fled to Paris during the Bolshevik revolution. He had served in the World War as a cavalry officer in the Czarist armies. He came to the United States in September, 1934, with a French certificate of identification and was admitted as a visitor. He returned to Paris for his Countess, Eugenie, and their visitors' permit was extended to June 1, 1935.

ARMS SUPERVISION PROPOSAL SENT TO BOTH SIDES IN SPAIN

England Forwards International Non-Intervention Committee's Plan.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The British Government sent communications to both sides in Spain's civil war today, conveying the proposal of the international non-intervention committee for a system of supervision of arms received both by loyalists and rebels.

A sub-committee met to consider the question of foreign volunteers serving in Spain's armies.

'THREE CHEERS FOR THE KING!'

Youth Starts Demonstration at Gate of Buckingham Palace.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—A sudden demonstration of affection for the King occurred during the ceremony of changing the guard outside Buckingham Palace this morning.

A watching youth suddenly called for "three cheers for the King!" A dozen companions responded heartily, and then sang the national anthem. Others in the crowd joined in the singing, and finally the whole throng sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

FRENCH ENVOY TO U. S.

Georges Bonnet Tentatively Accepts Post.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Georges Bonnet, former Minister of Commerce, has accepted tentatively the post of French Ambassador to the United States, it was reported today.

Bonnet's decision came after a conference with Premier Leon Blum and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos yesterday, it was said. Bonnet would replace Andre Lefevre de Laboulaye, in a series of diplomatic shifts.

THREE KILLED IN TYPHOON

Thirty Unaccounted for in Philippines; Damage Put at $1,225,000.

MANILA, Dec. 4.—Three persons were reported to have been killed by Wednesday's typhoon and property damage in Neuva Ecija Province alone was estimated today by officials at $1,225,000.

Thirty-two persons were unaccounted for. There was an unconfirmed report that 20 miners were entombed.

wife of Sir Charles Mendl, who is attached to the British Embassy.

Friends of Mrs. Simpson in Paris denied any knowledge of her coming, but the Villa Trianon at Versailles, which belong to Lady Mendl, was the scene of much activity. Lady Mendl has been host to Mrs. Simpson several times.

At the villa a caretaker said "nobody is here and nobody is expected until spring." Other persons reported, however, that a force of cleaning women, carpenters and painters has been working on the villa for the last few days.

One of Mrs. Simpson's friends said she believed Mrs. Simpson would eventually go to Rome for a visit with the wife of the American military attache who is a friend of hers.

Mrs. D. B. Merryman of Washington, Mrs. Simpson's aunt, who went to England to act as chaperon for her niece until her divorce decree from Ernest Simpson becomes final, remained in London. She was expected, however, to join Mrs. Simpson on the Continent shortly.

Four trunks and other luggage labeled "Miss Burke" were placed aboard a channel boat leaving Dover at 1 o'clock this afternoon to be sent to Mrs. Simpson.

Grand Jurors 'Appalled At Open, Blatant Fraud'

guilty go unpunished. Let no Judge so far forget his duty and his oath of office that he will lend himself to the dismissing of any defendant on vague and immaterial technicalities. Let those whose duty it is to enforce the laws bear ever in mind the instructions given to this grand jury by you when it was impaneled: 'We must have fair elections and our election laws must be upheld, regardless of consequences.'

"The Grand Jury is pleased to see that the Circuit Judges making the assignments for the coming year have not assigned to the Criminal Division any Judge who benefitted, however innocently, by the corruption of the 1936 primary. It would be manifestly unfair to such Judges, as well as to the citizens of St. Louis, to ask these Judges to pass on the guilt or innocence of persons accused of election frauds, wherein these same Judges were beneficiaries.

Difficulties of Officials.

"Even where election officials try to do their full duty at the polls, it is very difficult to accomplish a perfect count for the reason that polls open at 6 o'clock in the morning and close at 7 o'clock in the evening, after which ballots must be counted, and if honestly counted and properly tallied, can not be accomplished, in the smaller precincts, until possibly 1 or 2 o'clock, the larger precincts sometimes requiring until 6 o'clock the following morning. This is too great a labor to place upon election officials.

"This Grand Jury therefore recommends that the city authorities investigate the various voting machines now being used in other parts of the country with a view to installing voting machines, which we believe will not only reduce chances of fraud to the minimum in precincts now habitually given to such practices, but will eliminate the excessive labor now required of judges and clerks who do their sworn duty and return an honest count.

Criticism of Primary Law.

"We wish further to call attention to the deplorable condition that has arisen by reason of the direct primary law in force in this State. Anyone who feels the urge to secure public office and receive the emoluments thereof, if possessed of a small sum of money to cover the filing fee, can file as a candidate and have his name placed upon the ballot, this absolutely without any check regarding his qualifications for the office desired.

"When the voter steps into a voting booth on election day, he is faced with a number of names of individuals totally unknown to him and asked to vote for a certain number. Be the voter ever so conscientious, it is impossible to make an intelligent selection under these circumstances.

"The direct primary has been particularly harmful to the judiciary. Only men of thorough legal training and broad experience and sterling integrity are capable of properly filling these positions, and it is difficult to secure men of this character if they are compelled every few years to make a political campaign in which they may become obligated to some individuals for political favor. Some change must be made if our courts are to be raised to a plane that will command the respect of the people, and perhaps some such procedure as is followed in procuring judges for the Federal courts might be substituted for our present system of electing judges, to the great advantage of law enforcement. We recommend that those qualified to lead in this vital matter begin at once, for the labor of such an undertaking will be great and progress will be slow."

Inquiry in 13 Precincts.

The report mentioned that the grand jury had investigated election returns in 13 precincts and in all except two had found "indisputable evidence of fraud and returned true bills against the persons responsible therefor."

The precincts investigated were the Fourth in the First Ward; Fourth in Third Ward; Fifteenth in Fourth Ward; Eleventh in Fifth Ward; First in Sixth Ward; Tenth in Seventh Ward; Nineteenth in Eleventh Ward; Fourth in Eighteenth Ward; Second in Twentieth Ward; Twentieth in Twenty-first Ward; Fourth in Twenty-second Ward; Twenty-second in Twenty-fourth Ward, and Twenty-second in Twenty-seventh Ward.

The only two in which the grand jury did not find evidence of fraud were the Twenty-second Precinct of the Twenty-fourth Ward, and the Nineteenth Precinct of the Eleventh Ward.

Admonition to Judges.

The grand jury's admonition that no Judge should dismiss any of the indictments it returned because of "vague and immaterial technicalities," recalled the circumstance that it was Judge Kirkwood, to whom the jury reported, who recently dismissed the charge of fraudulent voting against John W. (Pat) Dunlavy,, chief examiner of the city's Drivers' License Bureau, because of a technicality.

One of the three indictments against Dunlavy, returned by the preceding grand jury, charged him with having voted last August in the name of B. B. Campbell, 4458 Washington boulevard. The poll book showed that a vote had been recorded for a J. B. Campbell of that address, but no B. B. Campbell. The mistake, apparently, was made by the officials of that precinct, the Fourteenth in the Twenty-third Ward, all of whom are under indictment on felony charges. A defense demurrer which cited the variance in initials was sustained by Judge Kirkwoood and Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller decided not to bring the other cases against Dunlavy to trial until after the first of the year, when another Judge will be sitting in the division where Judge Kirkwood now presides.

Council to Meet Next Week to Hear Loyalists' Complaint Against Italy and Germany.

GENEVA, Dec. 4.—League of Nations officials said today the possibility was growing the League Council would attempt mediation of the Spanish civil war.

To permit concentration of the League's efforts at the Council session called Dec. 10 to consider Spain's formal protest against German and Italian aid to the Fascist rebels, the conference of 28 governments to consider reform of the League Covenant was postponed from Dec. 7 to Dec. 14.

GOV. C. M. SMITH AGAIN ARRESTED IN BANK CASE

Charge of Concealing Bookkeeper's Alleged Thefts Refiled at Rutland, Vt.

By the Associated Press.

RUTLAND, Vt., Dec. 4. — Gov. Charles M. Smith, president of the Marble Savings Bank of Rutland, was re-arrested yesterday on a Municipal Court charge of concealing alleged thefts by a former bookkeeper. The charge, specifically misprison of felony, was dismissed in County Court for lack of jurisdiction last Tuesday.

Smith entered court voluntarily to answer the newly filed charge. He sat silently as his counsel waived reading of the charge. A plea of not guilty was entered and Smith was freed on bail of $3000, a reduction in half of the bail required when the case was before the County Court.

Municipal Court set Dec. 9 as a date for drawing of a jury to hear the charge against the Governor, but no date was set for the trial.

Earlier in the day County Judge John S. Buttler placed Lathrop H. Baldwin, treasurer of the bank, under suspended sentence of six months to a year in prison and fined him $400. Baldwin was convicted of perjury last Nov. 13.

The perjury charges, as did the charge of misprison against the Governor, grew out of Bookkeeper John J. Cocklin's alleged thefts of bank funds over a nine-year period. Cocklin was convicted Nov. 23 of embezzling $124,000 from the bank. The State alleged Baldwin issued false statements when the shortage was discovered in 1932.

Judge Buttles and his associate judges, Edward E. Burditt and Paul G. Ross, first denied Baldwin's request for a new trial on the ground the jury had been influenced by "passion and prejudice."

"It was difficult to try this case," said Judge Buttles. "It is even more difficult to impose sentence." He had long been a friend of Baldwin and Judge Burditt was once Baldwin's neighbor.

Several times Judge Buttles brushed tears from his eyes. Burditt wept openly.

MRS. THOMASSON CLASHES WITH MUENCH LAWYER

Roy W. Rucker, Kansas City Attorney, Accuses Court of 'Belligerent Attitude' After Ruling.

SHE LEAVES STAND AFTER 22 HOURS

Chicago Doctor Tells of Visit by Witness and Conversation About Obtaining Baby.

Mrs. Grace Thomasson was in her third day of cross-examination in Federal Judge George H. Moore's court today in the trial of Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench and three codefendants charged with using the mails to further a scheme to defraud in the Muench baby hoax.

She took the witness stand Monday afternoon and her cross-examination by defense counsel was begun Wednesday morning. The trial is now in its ninth day and it is understood the Government will require about a day and a half to complete its testimony after Mrs. Thomasson has finally been excused from the stand.

The indictment is based on the charge that the four defendants —Mrs. Muench, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, her husband, Attorney Wilfred Jones, the baby broker, and Mrs. Helen Berroyer—were parties to the use of the mails in a scheme to defraud Dr. Marsh Pitzman, wealthy physician, by convincing him falsely that Mrs. Muench was the mother of a baby and that he was its father

Blanton Doesn't Mind.

There was considerable by-play as Roy W. Rucker of Kansas City, one of counsel for the Muenches and Mrs. Berroyer, resumed his blustering examination.

At one point he said: "Mrs. Thomasson, would you mind telling the jury why you look so frequently at Mr. Blanton (the District Attorney) and the Postoffice Inspectors before answering questions?" When she murmured something, he waved a hand deprecatingly and said, "All right, if you have no explanation to offer." She then explained she must have been doing it "unconsciously."

Grinning, the calm District Attorney asserted: "I don't mind if she looks at me." Rucker did not join in the laugh.

Calls Court "Belligerent."

Rucker again was ruffled when, after he accused Mrs. Thomasson of not answering a question directly, Judge Moore interjected: "I believe she understands the question." The defense attorney dictated an objection into the record on "the belligerent attitude of the Court." Blanton protested that the Court "has been very good-natured."

When the witness referred to some letters she wrote Jones from Florida in the spring of 1935, on which Verne R. C. Lacy, attorney for Jones, had questioned her for three hours, Rucker quickly responded: "Now that you've brought them up, "we'll offer them in evidence."

"I'm very glad you are," Blanton said. "If you hadn't, we would have."

But after conferring with Lacy, Rucker did not introduce the letters.

Pick-up Question Barred.

Mrs. Thomasson denied having been intimate with her friend, Mortimer Coleman, who, she had testified, aided her in a search for a third baby to be palmed off as the "real" child of Anna Ware, Pennsylvania housemaid, whose baby was used in the hoax.

Rucker asked: "Didn't he pick you up on the street in New York?" But Blanton blocked that line of questioning with an objection that it had nothing to do with her direct testimony.

As the cross-examination proceeded there were frequent clashes of counsel, most of them occasioned by objections of the District Attorney to Rucker's manner of stating his understanding of previous testimony before framing questions. On one of these occasions, after Blanton had been upheld, Rucker protested that he was not getting proper answers to his questions.

"Ask them in the proper form and they will be answered," the Judge told him.

Jones' Letter Asked for Again.

The questioning turned again to a letter written by Jones in December, 1935, in answer to a letter of Christmas greeting by Mrs. Thomasson. Earlier in the examination, Blanton had offered it to defense counsel for their perusal, but it had been returned to him without being read to the jury.

Today Rucker asked for the letter and attempted to read one sentence from it to the witness. Blanton protested against this, insisting that the letter be introduced in its entirety. "If you won't introduce it, I will," Blanton said. Rucker held the letter in his hand for a while, as he asked questions on another subject, but finally returned it to the District Attorney.

His questioning then turned to the details of Mrs. Thomasson's acquaintanceship with Mrs. Muench, which she had said on direct examination began in 1932. Declaring that her answers might incriminate her, the witness refused to reply to any questions touching on the acquaintanceship prior to May 22, 1935, when, she had testified, she came to St. Louis to help Jones on the "big deal," that is, the baby hoax.

Defense counsel objected to her claim of possibility of self-incrimination, but the Court upheld her in her refusal to answer.

No Promise of Immunity.

Asked by Rucker if she had any offer of leniency or immunity from prosecution from the District Attorney in return for her testimony, she replied "No, sir, no one ever spoke to me about it." Rucker demanded persistently why then she had not stood on her constitutional rights and refused to testify.

"It was testified," she replied, "that I was the nurse who got the babies, and I'm here to defend myself. I'm admitting my guilt, yes sir, but I want the world to know I didn't do something I was accused of doing."

Rucker asked her if she had met a man named Irvin Leon at Mrs. Muench's home. She said she had met him there four or five times during November, 1935. "Mrs. Muench was writing her book and he was helping her," she testified.

"Isn't it true," Rucker asked. "That you only met him there once? That you went into the Muench home and Mrs. Muench said she didn't want you there, and had Mr. Leon take you down to the corner and put you in a taxicab?"

"No," she said. "Mr. Leon would call up Mr. Fred Pitzman (brother of Dr. Marsh Pitzman) and read parts of Mrs. Muench's book to him. He said he was a publisher from New York from the firm of Pratt & Pratt, and ask questions about Dr. Pitzman's education and life. After he would hang up, Mrs. Muench would call Fred Pitzman and read parts of the book and a card Dr. Pitzman had sent to her, about her being a wonderful mother."

Denies Threat to Mrs. Muench.

"Did you say when Mr. Leon put you in the cab, 'This woman will regret to her dying day putting me out of the house?'"

"No," was the reply. "He said that if Mrs. Muench had any sense she would have gone to California for a baby."

Grilling about her testimony, on direct examination, that she feared Mrs. Muench, resulted only in having her repeat the testimony in greater detail.

She said that in December, 1935, a short time before she related her story to a newspaper, "Mr. Bennett" told her, in Mrs. Muench's presence, "if anything is done to double-cross us, you're going to be very sorry for it. I mean what I say."

She had testified that Shad Bennett, attorney, took part in several conferences about getting a third baby to palm off on Anna Ware, and gave her $590 to be used in the search.

Warned by Mrs. Muench.

"Mrs. Muench," the witness continued, "took me in the bathroom and said, 'Now you know you're doing a dangerous thing if you dare to double-cross us. You know Mr. Bennett won't stand to be double-crossed.'"

Asked just what she feared, she explained: "I was afraid that when they read about me telling the truth they would carry out what they said. They had been threatening to kidnap my children."

Court was recessed at 12:30 for luncheon.

First Meeting with Mrs. Muench.

When the afternoon session began, Rucker showed Mrs. Thomasson a sworn statement she had given the Star-Times on the case, and asked her if the line in it that she had never met Mrs. Muench before Jones introduced them in June, 1935, was true or false. After prolonged badgering by the attorney, she finally said it was false, and added: "I didn't want to say any more than absolutely necessary. I didn't want to go away back to the first time I had met Mrs. Muench, and thought the best way was to say I had just met her at that time."

She was questioned about a wealthy Texas oil man named Keller and was asked if she had not told a reporter that Jones broke up her plans to marry the man, and that she had intended to marry him "and confess afterwards." She denied it.

"Ever sue Keller?" Rucker asked.

"No," she said. "Mr. Jones went down there and tried to sue him but didn't get anywhere. When Mr. Keller and I broke our engagement, Mr. Jones said, 'you're not going to let him get by with that, are you? Let's go down there and sue him'."

Mrs. Thomasson was excused temporarily from the witness stand at 2:50, with the understanding that she would return later in the afternoon for further cross-examination and for re-direct examination by the District Attorney.

Dr. Ben Reitman, Chicago physician with whom Mrs. Thomasson testified she had arranged for a third baby to be used in the baby hoax, after the Ware child had been taken from the Muenches by court order, was the next witness.

He is tall, bulky with thinning hair and a heavy black mustache. As he talked, he held a pair of horn-rimmed spectacels with one hand and from time to time fingered a flowing white windsor tie with the other. It was his first appearance as a witness in any of the Muench cases.

He described himself as a physician and surgeon, said he was physician at the Cook County jail, director of the Hobo College and "a second-class expert on racketeers."

Meeting With Mrs. Thomasson.

Yes, he knew Mrs. Thomasson; had met her first on Dec. 5, 1933. Earlier, he said, she had called up, giving the name of Wayne, "29 years old, white, widow, not doing anything special."

"She came around to my office that afternoon," he continued. "She said that she was recommended by an Ann Hamilton and said she lived at the Mark Twain Hotel. I put that together—racketeers."

Mrs. Thomasson, he said, told him she wanted to get a baby, that there "was a lot of money in it, $50,000," he said he told her that one could not buy a baby, in such a way, but that it might be possible to get one for adoption and that he might help, if he were assured the child would have a good home. He said she was back daily for several days and that sometimes she was accompanied by her friend, Mortimer Coleman, whom she introduced to the doctor as "Tex Adler."

"I said to Adler, 'you have all the earmarks of a rat—you look like it, smell like it and act like it,'" the witness volunteered. There was a ripple of laughter in the courtroom.

The witness was not asked in direct examination to state whether he promised Mrs. Thomasson to get her a baby, as she had testified he did. From this account of his meetings with her and Coleman he was directed into an account of telephone calls he had received in connection with the case.

Tells of Telephone Calls.

One of these, he said, was from St. Louis, some time between Dec. 5 and Dec. 17. He said he was under the impression the call came from Mrs. Thomasson. District Attorney Blanton then introduced a telephone company slip recording a call made to Dr. Reiteman's office on Dec. 13.

The call originated, the slip showed, in the Muench home in St. Louis. The slip had previously been identified by an employe of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Around the same time, he said, he had a call from a St. Louis newspaper. A few days after that, he continued, Mrs. Thomasson called him from Springfield, Ill. On this occasion, she had testified, she and Jones were en route to Chicago to get the third baby in Mrs. Berroyer's automobile, driven by Mrs. Muench's chauffeur.

Visited by Jones.

"I saw Mr. Jones for the first time on Dec. 17," he continued. "He came to my office with Mrs. Thomasson. He looked weary and ill, like a man haunted by the police and newspapers."

He went on to tell how he had discussed with Jones the power of the newspapers, testifying that he told the lawyer, "when a newspaper gets after a man it usually convicts him." Taken from this discourse finally by a question of the District Attorney, he went on:

"Mrs. Thomasson asked me if the child was ready. 'We have the money,' she said. I said no, it wasn't, that I had no intention of getting a baby, that it was all phoney. I said, 'I won't have anything to do with it, and you ought to drop it.' Mr. Jones, as I recall, didn't talk about the baby, just about the newspapers. Before they left he asked me if I was going to give back the $20 fee I had received for my time and advice, and I said no."

On cross-examination by Lacy, the witness explained that Mrs. Thomasson's "first story," was:

"There is a legacy. I need the child in order to get the legacy. If we get the legacy I'll split it with you."

The witness continued: "I said, 'sister, if the thing's legit, and the child will go in a good home, you'll get one.' But I thought the thing was phony, it didn't sound legitimate, and no effort was made on my part to get a child." He denied he ever told Mrs. Thomasson that he had a child.

Hotel Manager Testifies.

The next witness was Mrs. Callie Anderson, manager of the Biltmore Hotel, 3643 Washington boulevard. She identified registration records showing that a Mrs. C. S. Putney of Chicago had registered there Dec. 16, 1935, and checked out two days later She identified Mrs. Thomasson as "Mrs. Putney," and said Jones had visited the hotel at that time.

Sh ewas followed by Mrs. Madeline Hopkins, court stenographer at Kahoka, Mo. Under questioning by Blanton she identified transcripts of testimony at the trial at Kahoka last August in which the four defendants were convicted of conspiracy and fned in connection with the baby case.

Here a recess was declared, and at its conclusion Mrs. Thomasson returned to hte witness stand.

THIRTY INDICTED ON ALTON MAIL FRAUD CHARGES

Named by Federal Grand Jury Investigating O. F. Schoeck Correspondence School.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 4.—Thirty persons have been indicted by a Federal grand jury here on charges of mail fraud in connection with the operation of the O. F. Schoeck correspondence school at Alton. All but four indictments were suppressed pending arrests.

Those already under arrest, who were salesmen and sales managers for the firm, are: Wyman C. Beebe, Omaha, Neb.; E. H. Simmons, Elyria, O.; J. L. Joseph, Livingston, Mont., and John Schrader, Kansas City.

The Federal Trade Commission announced last Feb. 24 it had ordered Schoeck to cease and desist from the use of false and misleading advertising promoting the sale of his correspondence courses of study.

The commission, following hearings in Chicago and Indianapolis, found that Schoeck's want ads, listed under "Help Wanted" classifications, represented that he had jobs to offer, when, in fact, his purpose was purely to sell correspondence courses, and he had no jobs at his disposal.

At one time, the commission found, Schoeck had 2500 students enrolled for a Diesel engineering course and about 1500 for an air-conditioning course. He operated extensively, the commission said, in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, New York, California, Oregon, Oklahoma, Colorado and Wyoming.

Agents of Schoeck, the commission said, arranged interviews with those who answered the advertisements and then told them the real purpose of the advertisements. Applicants were told that after completing the courses they would be placed in jobs.

R. H. MACY COMPANY GIVES $500,000 BONUS TO EMPLOYES

Cleveland Heater Co. Announces Flat 10 Pct Wage Increase for Its 300 Workers.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—R. H. Macy Co., operating department stores in New York and through subsidiaries in Newark, Atlanta, Toledo and other cities, announced distribution of $500,000 to its employes in the form of one week's pay for those employed prior to July 31 and one-half day's pay for each month worked between August and December for newer members of the organization.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 4. — The Cleveland Heater Co. announced a flat 10 per cent wage increase for 300 employes, effective Jan. 1.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 4.—The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey announced today a 10 per cent increase to the basic wage rates of 7000 hourly employes in its three refineries in this State. The increase includes a 5 per cent cost-of-living allowance in effect for 18 months, which will be absorbed in the basic wage scale. The increase was tentatively accepted by employe representatives.

MOSLEY SIDES WITH KING

'Let People Decide,' Says Chief of English Fascist Group.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Sir Oswald Mosley, who advocates Fascism for Britain, sided today with King Edward in the crisis over Mrs. Simpson. Speaking in Victoria Park Square, he said:

"I say with all deliberation that before a junta of politicians can force the King to abdicate, this issue should be submitted to the votes of the people of Britain and the domonions. Let the people decide. I challenge this Government to submit the issue to the people. I say they have no mandate of any kind from the people to seek to force the King to abdicate."

SEARCH FOR ACTRESS' MOTHER

Woman Found Murdered Said to Resemble Mrs. Chandler.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 4.—It is reported that the description of an unidentified woman found dead near Temple City corresponds with that of Mrs. Frances Chandler, mother of Helen Chandler, motion picture actress.

James Mack of Hollywood told police Mrs. Chandler disappeared from her home here June 26. The body of the unidentified woman was discovered Nov. 17, lying in a dry wash near Temple City. She had apparently been beaten to death.

HARLEY CLARKE AND GOSLING QUIT LACLEDE GAS CO

Retirement Follows Former's Loss of Control of Utilities Power, Holding Company.

Harley L. Clarke, who was sued for $3,000,000 in Federal Court in Chicago Monday by the Utilities Power & Light Corporation, following his recent resignation as president of that company, retired today as chairman of the board of Laclede Gas Light Co.

At the same time Edward P. Gosling, who served under the Clarke management, resigned as president and director of Laclede Gas, a subsidiary of Utilities Power & Light.

These resignations, announced by the Laclede board of directors, were the first changes in management in Laclede to follow the severance of Clarke from control of the giant Utilities Power & Light holding company, where for years he has had a stormy career.

Gosling's successor has not been chosen, but Benjamin F. Pickard of Tulsa, Ok., has been appointed acting general manager of Laclede Gas and has taken charge. Gosling made no announcement of his future plans but said he expected to take a rest. He became president of Laclede Gas, Jan. 1, 1932, succeeding George B. Evans.

Likely to Quit Other Post.

Although no action has been taken by the board of directors of Laclede Power & Light Co., an affiliate of Laclede Gas, it is expected that Gosling also will resign from the presidency of that company. A meeting of the board is set for Monday. Clarke is a director of Laclede Power & Light, which is a competitor of Union Electric Light & Power Co.

R. R. Monroe, vice-president and Treasurer of Utilities Power & Light, has been at the head of that company since the resignation of Clarke. The word in utility circles is that there is to be a "new regime" not only for Laclede Gas but also for the holding company and its other subsidiaries.

The beginning of Clarke's fall from control of Utilities Power & Light was his pledging of substantial stock holdings as collateral for bank loans in Chicago. Ultimately the loans and collateral, as the Post-Dispatch has told, found their way into the hands of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. When Clarke was unable to redeem the collateral it was sold to the Atlas Corporation, a New York investment concern specializing in the salvaging of distressed properties. The influence of the Atlas Corporation was said to have forced Clarke's retirement from the presidency of Utilities Power & Light.

$14,000,000 Profit.

Clarke acquired Laclede Gas Light Co. and affiliated properties in 1927 for his huge holding company, in a deal which netted $14,000,000 profit to Charles A. Munroe, who previously had succeeded in getting the State Public Service Commission to grant a large increase in valuation of the Laclede property to support bond issues.

Clarke's policies of public utility management have been widely criticised, and he has been a defendant in stockholders' suits charging mismanagement of Laclede Gas. The suit in which Utilities Power & Light seeks $3,000,000 from him charges that he bilked the company of that amount.

Utilities Power & Light demanded an accounting from Clarke and also asked that a receiver be appointed for his affairs. It charged that he "devised schemes and artifices to defraud" the company, both by "colorable transactions between certain subsidiaries" and by making "excessive or fictitious" charges for expenditures made while he was at the head of the company. In stockholders' suits he has been charged with having unjustly burdened Laclede Gas in intercorporate transactions to the benefit of the holding company or its other subsidiaries.

Clarke has petitioned the Federal Court in Chicago for permission to intervene in a receivership suit filed there against the holding company.

Two Laclede Gas directors, J. Lionberger Davis, banker, and Wilbur B. Jones, lawyer, recently resigned, saying they were not satisfied with the way affairs of the company were being conducted.

100 INDEPENDENT OIL STATIONS PICKETED

Union Charges Distributors Have Violated Wage and Hour Agreements.

The gasoline service station attendants' union today began picketing more than 100 filling stations in the city and county in an effort to enforce union recognition and compliance with working agreements.

I. L. Frowitter, union business agent, said several of the 15 independent distributors had violated wage and hour agreements, while others refuse to deal with the union. Pickets, bearing signs advertising the companies as unfair to organized labor, took their places in front of the stations this morning, Frowitter said.

A sitdown strike, the newest form of labor resistance, called for today at 31 stations dispensing products of the Site Oil Corporation, was short-lived. At one station, 1221 Lafayette avenue, the attendant sat down for a while, but later opened the station for business. Frowitter announced that the Site concern had agreed to abide by an agreement made last April. Phil Stieman, head of the Site Corporation, could not be reached.

Union demands are for a 48-hour week and the following monthly salary scales: Managers, $110; attendants, $95; apprentices, $90. The situation is complicated by the practice of the distributing companies in leasing filling stations to individual operators.

Frowitter said the union represented 1700 of the 3000 attendants employed at 1332 service stations.

LIBBEY-OWENS-FORD TURNS DOWN UNION

Tells Striking Glass Workers Any Conference Must Be Held in Toledo.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 4.—The Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co. refused last night to accede to union demands for a conference at Pittsburgh "to prevent further spreading" of a strike which involves one of the plants and 6000 Pittsburgh plate glass workers.

"Conferences must be held in Toledo," replied J. D. Biggers, president, to a telegram from Glenn W. McCabe, president of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers.

After a conference, the union's Wage Committee telegraphed Biggers another request to attend a conference here. It also issued an open letter to Biggers charging him with attempting to "provoke the Federation into a position where the company can accuse the Federation of violating the wage agreement" expiring Dec. 15.

The Pittsburgh plate glass workers who have been idle for six weeks, were joined in the strike by 1300 Libbey-Owens employes at Ottawa yesterday. The two concerns, with 11,000 employes in all, produce about 90 per cent of the nation's glass, including that used in automobiles.

The strike involving Pittsburgh plate factories at Mount Vernon, O,. Clarksburg, W. Va.; Henryetta, Ok., and Ford City and Creighton, Pa., began after union negotiations for a new contract, the men demanding employment of only union members and collection of union dues by the company.

McCabe said the Ottawa situation arose after Libbey-Owens accepted a $4,000,000 order from the Chrysler Motor Co. and attempted to start production at Ottawa.

He displayed a letter signed by Biggers in which the glass-company president asked McCabe to permit manufacture of the Chrysler order at Ottawa.

The letter stated that the company was willing to agree not to ship any of the glass until after settlement of the Pittsburgh plate strike and expressed the opinion there would be "business enough for all of us."

JEWELRY WORTH $3100 STOLEN

Manager of Furniture Store Makes Supplementary Report on Robbery.

Harris Rossen, manager of the Star Furniture House, 3172 South Grand boulevard, stated, in a supplementary report to police yesterday that jewelry stolen from a safe in his store last Saturday night or Sunday was valued at $3100.

Burglars sawed bars protecting a window to gain entrance to the store and knocked the combination off the safe. The first report stated that $500 was stolen, and did not fix the value of the jewelry. Yesterday Rossen said he had completed an inventory, which showed the value of the jewelry, consisting of a stock of rings and watches.

EX-KAISER'S STEP-DAUGHTER WILL MARRY A COMMONER

Princess Hermine Announces Her Youngest Child Will Wed Merchant, Dec. 12.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—Princess Hermine of Reuss, who married the former Kaiser Wilhelm in 1922, at Doorn, The Netherlands, today announced the engagement of her youngest daughter, Princess Carmo Zu Schoenaich-Carolath, to Hugo Hartung, a merchant.

Princess Carmo (an abbreviation for Caroline) is 26 years old and her fiance 28. The marriage was set for Dec. 12 at the ancestral home of the bride's family at Saabor, Silesia, Germany.

MAN SHOOTS JOILET NUN

Fires Through Door When She Refuses to Let Him In.

JOLIET, Ill., Dec. 4.—A man shot and wounded Sister Mary Walburg of the SS. Cyril and Methodius Catholic Parochial School last night after she refused to admit him in a house where she and 12 other nuns reside.

The man fired through the plate glass window of the door, the bullet striking the nun in the arm.

Those indicted in this precinct were: Patrick O'Leary, 5727 Goodfellow boulevard, and Henry J. Happel, 3931 Thekla avenue, Democratic judges; Albert Gorden, 2817A Belt avenue, and Tom Anderson, address unknown, Republican judges; Donald J. Craig, 5759 Wabada avenue, Democratic clerk, and Hugh M. Friel, 5220 Lotus avenue, Republican clerk.

these precincts which may be discovered by further investigation.

The question who were the persons responsible for this demonstration of contempt for the expressed will of the voters, is a matter which the courts, in due course, will have the task of determining. Pending that determination, it must be assumed that the recount of ballots by a grand jury of business and professional men headed by James L. Barngrove, president of the Barngrove Realty Co., is an accurate count, and that the count certified by the Waechter Election Board, which Gov. Park ousted "for the good of the service," is inaccurate.

Arbitrary Division.

So brazen was the fraud that in most instances no effort was made to reconcile the certified count with the number of ballots in the boxes. It was apparent that in most instances a rough estimate of the number of ballots was a sufficient guide to the total number of votes to be distributed, and having arrived at that total a purely arbitrary division of the votes was made, according to the wishes of those who did the dividing.

In every one of the 11 precincts the grand jury found fewer Democratic ballots in the boxes than would appear from the certified total Democratic vote, as determined by the total vote for Governor. In only two of the precincts were there an equal number of recorded Republican votes and ballots. In five precincts there were fewer recorded Republican votes than ballots, and in four, there were more recorded Republican votes than ballots.

Kinney's 70 Became 170.

As has been the case repeatedly in the course of the Post-Dispatch exposure of election frauds during recent months, State Senator Mike Kinney appears in the Abou ben Adhem role.

This time it is the Eleventh Precinct of the Senator's Fifth Ward which is responsible for his name leading all the rest. In that precinct, the grand jury found, Kinney actually received 70 votes for re-election to the Democratic City Committee, but in the official returns he was credited with an even 170. The grand jury made no count of the Kinney vote in this precinct in his contest for renomination as State Senator.

Stark also had 170 votes in the official returns, but the grand jury could find only 72 votes for him in that precinct.

Six candidates for Democratic nomination as Circuit Judge—the six who subsequently were elected in November—were shown in the official returns as having 170 votes each, and their 19 opponents had not a single vote among them. But the grand jury found that the leader of the favored six, in the actual count, had received no more than 12 votes, and that in fact only three candidates, not 19, had failed to receive a vote.

In Jimmy Miller's Ward.

Kinney's traditional rival, Boss Jimmy Miller of the Fourth Ward, had nothing to match this showing, but his Fifteenth Precinct gave a fair-to-middling exhibition of how Jimmy "votes 'em like a machine," as is his boast.

In this precinct Daniel Webster Euell, a Negro, lost his chance to be a Republican nominee for the State Legislature, because he was not credited with any votes at all, even if 22 were cast for him. The 22 he did not get credit for would have nominated him.

The precinct gave Miller 220 votes for re-eleti... to the Democratic City Committee—although 155 ballots marked for him were all the grand jury could discover—and it gave Supreme Jurge Gantt 222, although the grand jury could find but 139.

In fact the grand jury could find only 167 Democratic ballots, not the 242 certified to the Election Board, and it found 169 Republican ballots, two more than the Democratic total, although the returns said there were but 122.

Those 122, incidentally, were given to the first six candidates for Republican nomination as Circuit Judge as their names were listed on the ballots and the four candidates at the bottom of the list had no votes at all. The grand jury found that no Republican candidate for nomination as Circuit Judge received fewer than 19 votes in this precinct, and one had 142. None of them really had 122.

In this precinct, the grand jury found that the vote producing deficiency of the Democratic organization was compensated for by lifting a batch of Republican ballots and adding them to the Democratic pile to give a semblance of reality to the reported vote. The Republican ballots were not altered in any way, simply stacked with the Democratic, so that what had been done became obvious soor er the recount started.

Sixth Ward Discrepancies.

John J. Moroney, re-elected to the Democratic City Committee in the Sixth Ward, was credited in the First Precinct f that ward with 252 votes, 54 more than the grand jury could find. Alderman Michael J. Scott, who got one of the Democratic nominations for the Circuit Court, fared better elsewhere than he did in this precinct, which credited him with only three of the 121 votes cast for him. Thomas J. Rowe Jr., another nominee, actually got only 17 votes in this precinct, but the returns showed 262 for him.

21st and 22d Wards.

In the home ward of William L. Igoe, president of the Board of Police Commissioners, the Twenty-second, the Fourth Precinct gave all its votes to six candidates for Democratic nomination as Circuit Judge, leaving none for the other 19 candidates, but the grand jury found that each of the 19 received at least one vote, and one of them got 23, to be fourth high man in the list. One of the favored six candidates, credited with 111 votes, really got only 21.

Nearby, in the Twenty-first Ward, home ward of Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, the Twentieth Precinct gave Hannegan 163 votes for re-election to the committee, 28 more than the grand jury could find, and his opponent, credited with 1, got 25 in the grand jury count.

Variance on Judgeships.

The recorded vote for each of the six successful Democratic candidates for nomination as Circuit Judge differed vastly from the actual count as determined by the grand jury. In the aggregate, the recorded vote was 91.2 per cent in excess of the actual vote.

Thomas J. Rowe Jr. and David Murphy each got more than twice as many votes as were cast for them, although in four of the 11 precincts, where 106 votes actually were cast for Murphy, he was not credited with any. The late Joseph F. Dickmann, brother of the Mayor, was credited with nearly twice as many votes as he actually got.

For these 11 precincts the results may be summarized as follows:

	Official Vote.	Grand Jury Count.	Excess Vote.
Dickmann	2266	1204	88%
Flynn	1986	1098	81%
Rowe	2475	1166	112%
Ward	2192	1140	92%
Murphy	1335	633	111%
Scott	1733	1062	63%

Bar Association Slate.

The St. Louis Bar Association's non-partisan slate for nomination of Circuit Judges was something else again. Taken as a whole, the slate was credited with 2 per cent more votes than were actually cast for those candidates, but in individual instances there were great disparities between the recorded vote and the actual vote. Chilton Atkinson, one of the three Democrats on this slate, got but 22 per cent of the votes cast for him.

Richard T. Brownrigg, another Democrat on the Bar Association slate, unexpectedly got credit for 419 votes in two precincts in which he really received only 204, but in the other nine precincts he was credited with only 13 votes, although he actually got 76. The two heavy precincts, however, were sufficient to make Brownrigg's recorded vote 155 per cent of his actual vote.

Frank B. Coleman, the third Democrat on the Bar Association slate, likewise had two heavy precincts which accounted for 338 of the 355 votes recorded for him in these 11 precincts. Of the 77 votes cast for him in the other nine precincts, he was credited with but 17. His recorded vote, because of the two heavy precincts, was 130 per cent of the actual vote.

Republicans on Bar Slate.

The three Republicans on the Bar Association slate were incumbent Judges Bader, Hall and Landwehr. Judge Bader got 95 per cent of the vote cast for him; Judge Hall, 110 per cent; and Judge Landwehr, 86. These figures, on Republican candidates, are for eight of the 11 precincts. No recount was made in three precincts.

One candidate for Democratic nomination as Circuit Judge, Ernest F. Oakley, fell short of obtaining nomination by fewer than 5000 votes. It would appear that he might have had a chance of being nominated in an accurate count, but that possibility is discounted when examination of the figures reveals that in these 11 precincts Oakley himself received 52 per cent more votes that were cast for him. He was credited with 1317 votes but actually got only 865.

Hirth's 270 Shrinks to 50.

Hirth's vote in the 11 precincts was certified as 50; actually it was 270. Governor-elect Stark's recorded vote was 2477; actually it was 1961.

Supreme Judge Gantt was credited with 2077 votes in 10 precincts of the 11; his actual vote was 1300. McDaniel's actual vote was 622, but he was credited with only 456. The grand jury made no recount for this office in one precinct.

Recounts of the Republican ballots cast for Governor were made in eight of the 11 precincts. They showed that Jesse Barrett received 938 votes and was credited with 1041; that James J. Barrett received 122 and was credited with 78; and that Claude L. Lambert received 79 and was credited with 57.

In the eight precincts in which recounts were made of Republican ballots cast for nomination for Supreme Court Judge, the totals reached by the grand jury approximated the totals reported to the Election Board, but in not one of the precincts were the grand jury's and the Election Board's figures in agreement. Lieutellus Cunningham was credited, in these eight precincts, with 535 votes, and actually got 549. Charles C. Madison was credited with 634, and actually got 601.

Scope of Investigation.

In the course of its investigation the grand jury looked into the records of 13 precincts. In two of these it found no evidence to justify indictments.

In the other 11 the complete staff of 66 precinct officials was indicted. Among them was one woman, Mrs. Esther E. Butler, wife of Edward E. Butler, former Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction.

In 10 precincts two indictments were returned against each of the officials—charging the making of a false canvass and return of votes cast in the primary, and making a false canvass and return of votes cast in the election of party committee members, conducted at the same time and on the same ballots. Both offenses are felonies, punishable by prison terms of two to five years.

Officials of one precinct were named in only one indictment each. They were charged with making a false canvass and return of votes cast in the primary election.

Two persons were indicted on charges of inducing the judges and clerks to make false returns. This offense also is punishable by a prison term of two to five years.

Of the 68 indicted, 61 have been arrested and placed under bond. The others have not been found by police. One is reported to have died since the primary election.

Details of what the grand jury found in each of the 11 precincts in which indictments were returned are shown in tables published elsewhere in this edition. With the grand jury's recount of ballots is shown the count by precinct officials as certified to the Waechter Election Board.

Members of Grand Jury That Returned Indictments.

Members of the Grand Jury, in addition to Foreman Barngrove, were:

James T. Brennan, retired blacksmith, 4041 Easton avenue.

Joseph C. Drain, chemist, Ralston Purina Co., 3946 Fairview avenue.

Joseph W. Furrer, president Furrer Super-Service Co., 345 Miami street.

Bruce Dougan, advertising manager, Western Advertising Co., 2 North Kingshighway. Dougan, chosen as an alternate, took the place of Lynch, who resigned after the jury had begun its investigation.

GRAND JURY THANKS ELECTION BOARD FOR AID IN FRAUD INQUIRY

THE grand jury thanked the new Board of Election Commissioners, headed by Charles P. Williams as chairman, for assistance in the election fraud inquiry.

"We think it worthy of comment," the report said, "that, acting under exactly the same laws as previous election boards, with a minimum of time at their disposal to prepare for the election of Nov. 3, the present board carried through successfully an election at which the greatest number of people voted in the history of the city, and this without any evidence of fraud. The reason for this was simply that these gentlemen were possessed of what might be termed 'honesty of purpose,' and handled a most difficult situation with no other thought than the carrying out to the fullest extent their sworn duty. These gentlemen deserve the commendation of all honest citizens."

JUDGE REMOVES ONE ATTORNEY FOR MOON RECEIVERS

Judge Joynt Acts Against Robert Burnett After Remarking, "You Are Becoming in Contempt."

SENECA C. TAYLOR'S ACCOUNTS ISSUE

Court Overruled Exceptions by Creditors Objecting to Items in Excess of $100,000.

A colloquy between Circuit Judge John W. Joynt and Robert Burnett, an attorney, over the latter's right to file an amended motion in the Moon Motor Car Co. receivership suit in behalf of the receiver, George P. Dorris, caused the court to remove Burnett yesterday as special counsel for the receiver. Burnett was advised by Judge Joynt, "you are becoming in comtempt in my court.".

The motion related to the Court's recent action overruling exceptions filed by the receiver and creditors of the company to the final account of Seneca C. Taylor, former receiver. The exceptions concerned items in excess of $100,000, but the court found that the accounting was proper.

Receiver Advised by Judge.

Dorris had filed a joint motion with creditors asking for a new trial. He later dismissed his part of the motion, stating he had not authorized such action. Burnett yesterterday sought to rejoin Dorris in the case on the ground that the latter had been called to Judge Joynt's chambers and told that as officer of the court it was his duty to obey the decree of the court, and that the Judge had dictated the receiver's formal dismissal of his motion.

Judge Joynt pronounced statements in the amended motion as scurrilous, but he told a Post-Dispatch reporter he had instructed the receiver that as the court's agent he should comply with the judgment.

Burnett then sought to make a record of his action so he could appeal. The court stenographer was not present and Burnett obtained another court stenographer who, however, refused to take the dictation when Judge Joynt said he had not sent for him. As a result, Burnett was forced to obtain the names of witnesses who were present so he could prepare a "bystanders' record" of what transpired.

Taylor's Fee an Issue.

In overruling the exceptions, Judge Joynt directed that $7637, the balance due on a $15,000 award to Taylor as a fee, be paid to him. Dorris' rejected motion set forth that in compliance with the Court's advice he had paid this sum to Taylor and his motion sought to compel Taylor to return the amount. Former Supreme Court Judge James T. Blair remains as his counsel.

Claims of creditors against the receivership estate total $350,000, with only $2400 in the treasury, Burnett said.

Taylor, who was appointed receiver in 1930 by Judge Granville Hogan, was represented in the exceptions by James A. Waechter, former chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, and former Circuit Judge H. A. Hamilton.

BROTHER CONFIRMS THE DEATH OF INDICTED ELECTION JUDGE

Edward Smith Succumbed Aug. 18, Shortly After Entering Veterans' Hospital.

The search for Edward Smith, one of the six election officials in the First Precinct of the Sixth Ward indicted on primary fraud charges, was dropped yesterday, after his brother, William, 4526 Greer avenue, confirmed the report that Edward had died Aug. 18 at Veterans' Hospital.

Examination of records at the hospital disclosed that an Edward M. Smith, 37 years old, 1126 Pine street, reported there that day for treatment for a brain condition and died a few hours later. He was attended by Dr. Edward McGinnis. The body was taken to the Collins Undertaking Co., 928 North Grand boulevard, and was buried in Calvary Cemetery three days later.

When Smith was appointed Democratic judge he gave his address as 14 North Eighteenth street, the Princess Hotel, but he was not known there. The Sixth Ward Democratic organization headquarters are maintained at the Pine street address by Committeeman John J. Moroney, who first informed police that the indicted man was dead.

Four of the indicted officials have been arrested and released on bond. John Stevenson, Negro, the sixth man named in the indictment, has not been apprehended.

MRS. THOMASSON CROSS-EXAMINED ON JONES' LETTERS

Witness Accused Lawyer of Changing Date on Envelope Yesterday—Photostatic Copy Ruled Out.

LACY AROUSED BY ONE REMARK

Prosecutor Had Said Name Was Traced — Judge Orders Comment Be Stricken Out.

Mrs. Grace Thomasson, Government witness in the Muench mail fraud trial, was under cross-examination during most of yesterday's session in Federal Court by Wilfred Jones' attorney, Verne R. C. Lacy, himself a defendant in a pending disbarment suit. Lacy concluded the cross-examination at 4:20, having had her under interrogation a total of 10½ hours.

In contrast to the stormy cross-examination by Lacy in the trial at Kahoka, Mo., in which the same four defendants were convicted and fined on a State charge of conspiracy in the Juvenile Court phase of the baby hoax, the interrogation of the witness had proceeded with a minimum of clashes between lawyer and witness.

But when Attorney Roy W. Rucker, oratorical in manner, took up the cross-examination for the other three defendants near the close of the day's session, the proceedings, which had been somewhat dull, were enlivened considerably, with frequent clashes of counsel with the witness, and equally frequent interpositions by United States District Attorney Blanton.

One of these occurred when Rucker asked the witness whether she was positive that she was in St. Louis, as she had testified, on Oct. 6, 1935, the day Mrs. Muench returned from Mexico, Mo., after having been acquitted of a charge of kidnaping Dr. Isaac D. Kelley for ransom. She said she was.

Judge Bars Letter.

Rucker then exhibited a letter which he said was written from New York, and asked the defendant if it was in her handwriting. She said that it was, except for one line which read: "And how did the Kelley case come out?" Blanton objected to admission of the letter, which Rucker attempted to proffer, unless he asked the witness when she wrote it. In the argument over this point Mrs. Thomasson was heard to say, under her voice, that it was written in 1934, but Rucker did not ask her the date, and Judge Moore sustained Blanton's objection to introduction of the letter.

The letter itself bore no date. If written in 1934 it might have referred to the trial of Angelo Rosegrant, first of the Kelley kidnapers to go to trial, who was convicted in Clayton Oct. 5, 1934, and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Dropping the matter of the letter, Rucker next showed the witness a photostat of an envelope, presumably part of the same letter, and asked if the address was in her handwriting. She replied, "Yes, but you have put 1935 in there." She added that the letter was written in October, 1934. At this point the District Attorney objected to the introduction of the photostat, saying the defense had given no explanation why it was not able to produce the original envelope.

Government Again Sustained.

"This witness," Rucker shouted, in the discussion which followed, "has no right to say that that postmark is faked." He asked that Mrs. Thomasson be reprimanded by the court, but Judge Moore told him she had withdrawn her remark about the date having been changed. The Court sustained the Government's objection to introduction of the photostat, in the absence of an explanation by the defense of its failure to produce the original envelope.

Earlier, Mrs. Thomasson had testified that her most recent marriage was to a man named Fledderman, her seventh husband. She testified they were married in Memphis last May, that he had given her an automobile in June, and added, with apparent reluctance, that the car was now in storage "somewhere in Michigan."

Rucker demanded to know precisely where it was in Michigan. The witness replied, "I refuse to answer on the ground it might tend to incriminate me—I am having domestic difficulties." After an argument of counsel, during which Rucker cited a precedent in the Aaron Burr trial decided by Chief Justice Marshall, the witness was sustained in her refusal to testify about the car.

"Experts Can Tell You."

Earlier in the day, under examination by Lacy, the witness was asked if she had not signed a statement in November, 1935, declaring she wanted to go before the State grand jury and testify she secured the Price baby, which died, and the Ware baby, its successor in the Muench baby hoax, and if in addition, she had not intended to send the statement to the Circuit Attorney.

She denied it emphatically, adding, "the handwriting experts can tell you that."

Looking at the paper as Lacy held it in his hand she said Jones wrote the statement, but she had refused to sign it. Lacy had her write sample signatures of the name on the document, "Grace Carolyn Diefenbach," then showed her the document and asked if these varied from the signature on it.

Remark Arouses Lacy.

The District Attorney looked at the paper and objected to its introduction, remarking that the signature was shown on its face to be a tracing.

"Your honor, that's terrible," Lacy protested. "To make a remark in open court before a witness showing a tendency to be evasive is unfair to the defendants." Blanton's remark was ordered stricken from the record. There was a conference of counsel after which Assistant District Attorney Herbert H. Freer took charge of the paper, later submitting it to Ralph C. Becker, handwriting expert employed by the Government to be in attendance at the trial.

RICHARD II WAS FORCED TO SUBMIT TO COUNCIL

600-Year-Old Precedent Probably Could Be Invoked in Present Situation.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Parallel to the present difficulty between King Edward VIII and his Government occurred six centuries ago when Richard II clashed with Parliament over his personal acts. He was forced to submit to parliamentary council of state, a precedent which could conceivably be invoked in the current situation. The monarch, however, 10 years later, caused the execution of his chief opponents and became absolute ruler until deposed after two years by Henry IV.

A royal marriage also was a factor in Richard's case. His seizure of the throne followed parliamentary criticism of peace terms he arranged with France, which provided for his wedding to Isabella, 7-year-old daughter of Charles VI of France.

Both moves were criticised openly and the constitutional issue resulting was similar to that raised by the present controversy—whether the King should rule with or without the advice of Ministers appointed by Parliament.

Throne at Age of 10.

Richard, son of Edward the Black Prince, ascended the throne at the age of 10. The Government was conducted by a council appointed by Parliament during his minority.

At 14, Richard won popular acclaim by his tact and courage in negotiating with Wat Tyler's peasants, who had taken possession of London in a revolt. When Tyler was killed, the boy King called on the people to accept him as their ruler.

In the next year, Richard dismissed his chief Minister, ignored the advice of his family and began a personal government with his own advisers.

In 1386, his uncle, Thomas of Gloucester, and Earl of Arundel, the former chief Minister, made an attack on the King in Parliament, which, by threats to depose him, forced the King to accept control by a Council of State. He was shtripped of all power and his chief supporters were executed or exiled.

Fate of His Opponents.

Richard's first wife, Anne of Bohemia, died in 1394, and he married Isabella two years later at Calais. In the same year he caused the arrest of his chief opponents. Gloucester was smothered to death in prison, Arundel was executed and his brother, the Archbishop of Canterbury, was exiled.

Oppressive taxation and arbitrary methods quickly lost for Richard his popular support and, while he was on a visit to Ireland in 1399, Henry of Bolingbroke headed a rebellion.

Richard surrendered to Henry, and promised to abdicate if his life were spared. Parliament ordered that he be held a close prisoner, and he died at the age of 33.

GOV. HORNER REPRIEVES MAN ON DAY SET FOR EXECUTION

Attorneys to Perfect Appeal for Joseph Rappaport, Convicted of Killing Federal Informer.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Joseph Rappaport's scheduled execution at midnight for the murder of Max Dent, a Government informer, was delayed late yesterday by telephoned notification from the Governor's office that a reprieve had been granted.

Rappaport was convicted of murdering Dent on Oct. 8, 1935, several weeks before Dent was to have testified against him in a narcotic case.

The Governor's office said the reprieve was to Jan. 15, giving attorneys for Rappaport an opportunity to perfect an appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

T. F. Foley's Cable Work in War Recalled in Advancement.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Thomas Francis Foley, for years superintendent of cables for the Western Union, today was named American traffic manager for the Western Union, succeeding the late William J. Bleinheim.

When a munitions ship blew up in Halifax harbor in 1917 killing thousands, Foley, only 50 miles away, rushed in, established communications with the United States through London, operated the cables himself, helped muster relief, went without sleep for a week. He supervised repair of five cable lines cut off Fire Island by German submarines, with destroyers protecting the work ships. He has invented much cable apparatus. During the Spanish-American war he was an operator in Panama, and sent the story of the destruction of the Spanish fleet by Admiral Schley's warships.

Brakeman Killed in Train Collision.

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 4. — Brakeman Harry Anderson, 44 years old, was killed and Fireman John Barhan, 41, was seriously injured last night in a head-on collision of two Illinois Central freight trains. Both were Champaign residents and members of the crew on the northbound train. The wreck occurred when an empty southbound train was switched to a track used by the northbound coal train.

REPORT OF U. S. CHAMBER ON UNFAIR COMPETITION

Proposes Trade Conferences Co-Operate With Federal Board on Fair Practice Rules.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—A proposal under which business men would act voluntarily to raise commercial standards and check unfair competition is made in a report by a United States Chamber of Commerce Committee, being circulated among the chamber's membership.

The proposed fair practice rules could be adopted through trade conferences held in co-operation with the Federal Trade Commission.

"Many of the competitive methods which have long been viewed with concern by business leaders" could be barred, the committee indicated.

Recalling that the Trade Commission already has approved rules for about 200 industries, the committee added: "Secret rebating and the giving of unearned discounts have in this manner frequently been condemned by joint action of business and the commission.

"Selling below cost and the use of loss leaders to injure competition, espionage, false advertising and other forms of misrepresentation, commercial bribery, disparagement of competitors or their products—these are but a few of the practices commonly prohibited by conference rules."

The report said that "in recent years there has been increased recognition of the fact that competition must be fair if we are to have the fullest benefits of the competitive system."

FLORENCE R. ROBINSON DIES

Wife of Psychology Professor, Prominent in Study Also.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 4.—Mrs. Florence Richard Robinson, wife of Dr. Edward S. Robinson, professor of psychology at Yale, died yesterday in the New Haven hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Robinson, also a widely known psychologist, collaborated with her husband in several scientific investigations and from 1908 to 1919 was professor of psychology at Drake University. She was a graduate of the University of Nebraska and a native of Hiawatha, Kan. She also was graduated from the University of Chicago, where she took a doctorate, later studying at the University of Wurzburg, Germany. During 1920 and 1921, Mrs. Robinson was a member of the University of Chicago faculty. She was married to Prof. Robinson in 1921.

MONGOLS DEFEATED IN SUIYUAN

Defenders of Pailingmiao Report Heavy Losses by Irregulars.

By the Associated Press.

KWEISUI, Suiyuan Province, China, Dec. 4.—Gen. Fu Tso-Yi's headquarters reported today that loyal Suiyuanese defenders inflicted a devastating defeat on Mongol irregulars at strategic Pailingmiao.

With heavy artillery support, headquarters said, the Suiyuanese counter-attacked the irregulars, forcing them to retreat to the mountains to the north leaving the battlefield strewn with their dead and wounded.

ABDICATION REQUIRES DOMINIONS' CONSENT

Succession to British Throne Based on Law Enacted in 1701.

By the Associated Press.

A law passed in 1701 by the House of Commons by one vote regulates the succession to the British throne.

Enacted with royal assent, the measure provided that in default of issue of the reigning King, William III, and Princess Anne, the crown should pass to Princess Sophia, granddaughter of James I, "and the heirs of her body being Protestants."

Sophia of Hanover was the nearest Protestant heir. James II, who had been exiled in favor of William III, was a convert to Roman Catholicism.

The act resulted in the crown passing to the House of Hanover, for Anne followed William to the throne and when she died without an heir, Sophia's son became George I. Since then there has been a further provision.

Under the Statute of Westminster of 1931, any alteration in the law touching the succession or the royal style and titles shall require the assent of the Parliaments of all the dominions as well as of the Parliament of the United Kingdom.

Order of Succession.

The actual order of succession is based on well-defined hereditary principles.

The eldest son of a King inherits the throne on the death of his father.

Since Edward VIII has no issue, his brothers are in the order of the succession to the throne, followed by his sister.

The Duke of York is heir presumptive and after him follow his eldest daughter, Princess Elizabeth, who, in turn, is followed by her sister, Princess Margaret Rose. Edward's next younger brother, the Duke of Gloucester, follows the daughters of the Duke of York.

If the Duke and Duchess of York should have a son, he would take precedence in the throne succession over his sisters.

The crown thus follows down the family of each heir in succession, with males given precedence over females.

Throne Never Vacant.

Since the British constitution is mainly unwritten, much affecting the crown is based on tradition and theory.

One salient theory of British law is that the king (or Queen) never dies—symbolical of which is the cry, "The King is dead; long live the King."

In other words, the throne is never vacant, the succession of the heir being instantaneous.

Thus, Edward VIII became King-Emperor at the very moment last Jan. 20 that his father, George V, breathed his last.

The last abdication was that of James II who in 1688 fled from the armies of his son-in-law, William of Orange.

The only other abdication was that of Richard II, in 1399. He died in prison.

Many perplexing legal questions would be simplified if King Edward simply should leave England as James did, historians said, because Parliament then, as it did before, could declare the throne vacant because the sovereign abandoned his Empire.

Abdication by Consent.

On the other hand, the law still in force which made William and Mary joint rulers, reads that the King cannot abdicate without consent of both the House of Commons and the House of Lords.

There has, however, been no occasion to find out how this could be done. The best guess, historians said, would be that King Edward, if he should decide to give up his throne for Mrs. Simpson, would communicate his intention to Parliament and the nation through the Prime Minister.

The Prime Minister would then be called on to introduce two bills, each starting: "Be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, with advice and consent, of his most faithful commons." One bill would declare the abdication of King Edward VIII, and other make the Duke of York King.

Obviously the consent of Parliament would be given if the King should wish to quit. Complications arise, however, from the new law which makes necessary the additional consent of each of the Parliaments of the British dominions.

CITY DEMOCRATIC LEADERS DISCUSS CAMPAIGN PLANS

Executive Committee Takes Up Preliminaries for Ward Organization Work.

Preliminary plans for ward organization work in the municipal election next spring were discussed yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Democratic City Committee at Hotel de Soto.

Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the City Committee, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that members of the Executive Committee were asked to submit plans and suggestions for conducting the campaign next spring for a more detailed discussion when the next meeting of the entire City Committee is held Jan. 5.

Hannegan said that from the discussion yesterday it appeared likely that most of the factional differences in Democratic ranks would be settled so that the party could present a "united front" in the spring election. Members of the Executive Committee, he said, expressed a desire to obtain party harmony for the election next spring, but no detailed plans were discussed for settlement of factional disputes.

Milton Called for Inquiry Into His Insurance Deals

Leaks Through Examiners.

In response to questions by Chairman Sabath, Coburn testified that, while he did not believe the excessive cost of state examinations had been very harmful to the companies, there were certain features of state examinations which were bad.

In nearly all the states Coburn said, special outside examiners are called in at the time of an examination. In some instances, he testified, the information obtained by some special examiners has been peddled to financial "racketeers," who used the supposedly confidential information to force mergers and sale of companies, which brought rich returns to the financial interests at the expenses of the policy holders.

Sabath interrupted Coburn with the statement that there was not sufficient public supervision, that supervision should be more rigid, and that if there existed an outstanding inspection and licensing bureau, the duplication of examination charges would be eliminated and information "would not be peddled to sharpshooters and racketeers."

Cost Put on Policyholders.

Coburn took the position that the cost of insurance was higher throughout the United States than it should be, and that insurance costs to the policyholders could be reduced if the waste could be eliminated and the management of insurance companies limited to competent and honest men. He said that probably the item of cost which could be most greatly reduced was the agency systems used in soliciting business.

The committee members have been inquisitive as to why financial interests wanted to purchase insolvent companies. Sabath, referring to the Missouri State Life situation, asked Coburn why it was that "there was such a scramble by financiers to get hold of defunct companies."

"They expect to make a clean-up," Coburn replied. "The interests of the policyholders do not enter into their calculations. All such companies have valuable assets, and the racketeers want to get possession of them."

Sabath wanted Coburn's opinion as to why Walter W. Head, who became president of General American when Milton organized it, was willing to surrender a $70,000 salary in New York to accept a $25,000 salary in St. Louis. This was later increased to $35,000. Coburn thought the fact that he also was given an option to purchase 2000 shares of General American stock at $25 a share probably entered into Head's consideration.

$93,000 Profit for Head.

Examiner James P. Sullivan recalled earlier testimony, that the sale of a portion of this stock at $60 a share, and the fact that he would dispose of the remainder at the same price under the company's mutualization plan, would net Head a profit of $93,000.

Discussing Milton's sale of General American to Southwestern Life, Coburn said that, because of the interlocking ownership of the companies involved, Southwestern Life had no choice but to agree to Milton's proposal that it buy the General American stock at $60 a share.

"Milton told the Southwestern Life directors," the witness said, "that if they did not buy General American, he would sell the company down the river." He placed Milton's profit in the deal at approximately $1,000,000, instead of the estimate of $900,000 previously cited.

Coburn testified, in response to questions by Sabath, that Milton's haste to divest himself of his General American holdings might have been due in some degree to the fact that at the time of the sale there was a contemplated SEC investigation of Milton's Equity Corporation, which would have gone into Milton's method of acquiring the Missouri State Life assets.

"So," said Sabath, "he took his $1,000,000 profit and skidooed."

"I think he took a walk," Coburn replied.

Contradiction by Actuary.

The committee received a telegram from Alex C. Good, an attorney of Jefferson City, who formerly was specially employed by the Missouri Insurance Department, disputing the accuracy of testimony given Tuesday by R. Emmet O'Malley, State Insurance Superintendent of Missouri.

O'Malley testified that Good's examination of Missouri State Life showed an impairment of $22,700,000, while that of the examiners of eight other states showed an impairment of only $14,000,000. In asking for the appointment of a receiver for the company, O'Malley placed the impairment at $29,000,000, and he testified that he based this figure on a second report by Good.

Good, in his telegram to the committee, said that he had made only one report, and that fixed the deficit at $22,700,000.

It has been Examiner Sullivan's contention that the higher impairment estimate enabled the General American Life to place a greater lien on Missouri State Life policies, and enabled it to collect a large amount of interest from policyholders.

When Allan May, general solicitor for the General American, was on the stand, Sullivan asked him whether, in his opinion, a $29,000,000 impairment of assets gave O'Malley any legal powers as to sale of Missouri State Life, which he would not have had if the impairment were 22,700,000. Sullivan asked whether with the $22,700,000 impairment figure, O'Malley would not have had to hold a public sale with advertisements for bids, whereas, with the figure at $29,000,000, he was able to transfer the property to General American at a private sale.

May said there was a difference of opinion as to the law; but he did not think the question raised by Sullivan had been considered in fixing the impairment figure.

Coburn, on the witness stand, drew the picture of interlocking insurance companies as follows:

Milton and his Equity Corporation associates organized General American to take over Missouri State Life. Missouri State Life owned 105,000 shares, or 52½ per cent of Southwestern Life stock. Southwestern Life interests organized Southwestern Investors' Corporation. The latter, last March, bought 90 per cent control of General American Life from Milton and his associates.

Further, Coburn said, Southwestern Life bought a $2,400,000 bond issue which Southwestern Investors' Corporation used to buy General American control. Consequently, he said, Southwestern Life got back control over its own stock, which had been held by Missouri State Life.

Questioned by Congressman Thomas O'Malley of Wisconsin, a committee member, Coburn said the complicated transactions were legal under Texas law, but "would have been illegal in Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin and a majority of states."

He hastened to add the deals were made because of Milton's threat to sell General American "down the river." The purchase, he said, had proven to be a good deal, as General American Life is earning substantial dividends.

Sullivan said his investigation of the 50 largest life insurance companies showed that "Southwestern Life is the second best, and not far behind the best, in the country."

Sullivan and Chairman Sabath paid high tribute to Coburn's character and frankness, and Congressman O'Malley said: "It is a relief and a novelty, Mr. Coburn, for this committee to get direct answers to direct questions from a man of high finance."

COLLECTOR ROBBED OF $500

Kansas City Holdup Man Also Gets $6000 in Money Orders.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 4.—J. B. Woods, a collector for the Railway Express Agency, Inc., was held up and robbed of money orders for about $6000 and $500 in cash in a hardware store agency for the company here late yesterday.

Wood was talking with the operators of the hardware store when a man walked in, placed a pistol against Wood's back and demanded his satchel. The robber took the satchel, Wood reported, ran from the store and fled in an automobile.

Trainman Hurt in Derailment.

C. E. Bennett of Granite City, crew foreman on an Alton Railroad freight train, injured his right hip today when he leaped from the top of a moving freight car, which had jumped the track and was toppling over at the Relay Station, East St. Louis. The car fell on a concrete platform at the station. It was in a string of 24 cars being backed up. Another car also was derailed and damaged.

CONSECRATION CEREMONIES OF LOS ANGELES ARCHBISHOP

Founder of Legion of Decency Credits Appeal Made by New Prelate.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—The Most Rev. John Joseph Cantwell was consecrated Archbishop of the Catholic Church today, in a three-hour ceremony which elevated Los Angeles to a metropolitan see.

During the ceremonies Archbishop John T. McNicholas of Cincinnati said the new Archbishop's "soul-stirring appeal resulted in the founding of the Legion of Decency by the Bishops of the United States."

Archbishop McNicholas, the actual founder of the Legion, said Archbishop Cantwell inspired the Bishops to form the organization "when he pleaded with them to unite in opposing whatever was dangerous to the moral life of American citizens in motion pictures."

EINSTEIN HAS THEORY STARS ACT AS LENSES

Holds That Curvature of Light Makes Space Round Them a Vast Magnifying Glass.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Prof. Albert Einstein has announced to the world another mathematical discovery new to astronomy, which shows, he says, that the space surrounding any star acts as a magnifying glass for rays of light.

The new theory means that one star can, with improved astronomical instruments, be made a magnifying glass or telescope. For the better observation of another, more distant star. The reason, Einstein explains, lies in the bending of light rays when they pass near the sun or any other massive star. The rays, he finds, collect there as they would in a lens. Then at certain distant points the rays so collected become focused, like the focus of a spy-glass, opera glass or telescope.

Human eyes, if placed at the right point in space, could see the star focused image, and there are stars suitable lined up, one far behind the other, to be seen in this manner from the earth. But Prof. Einstein points out that present optical equipment and the present resolving power of telescopes are not sufficient to make these space images visible.

He announces his new discovery in "Science," official journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. "Some time ago," he writes, "R. W. Mandl paid me a visit and asked me to publish the results of a little calculation, which I had made at his request. This note complies with his wish." (Mandl was not further identified.)

The new idea is a logical development from the world-famous eclipse of the sun in 1919, which afforded the first verification of Einstein's general theory of relativity. At that time stars whose light passed close to the sun during the eclipse were photographed. Six months later, when again in the same position but with the sun no longer near them, they were photographed again on the same plates.

It was found that the star rays did not fall on the same places in the photographic plates, thus showing that the rays had been deflected inward toward the sun when they passed close to it during the eclipse, thus verifying Einstein's prediction.

Newton long before had shown that the sun's gravitation would be enough to bend the rays of light, but Einstein's relativity theory postulated a greater bending, which he attributed to a curse in electromagnetic space near the sun.

Prof. Einstein now says that if one star is directly behind another, the magnification will make the distant star appear as a halo of light round the nearby one. The halo focuses, however, at a point a vast distance beyond the star that acts as a lens.

Closer to the nearby star, however, and just off the line that focuses the halo, Einstein states, there is another point where both stars would appear to the eye.

This second kind of magnification when two stars are seen will, he says, give a brighter image of the more distant star. And this bright image, he adds, is subject to a "most curious effect," in that the brightness of the star increases directly as the square root of its distance from the observer.

STABBED IN GAMBLING ROW

Missouri Youth in Serious Condition in California.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Dec. 4. — Phillip Calabrese, 21-year-old CCC camper from Hillsboro, Mo., was in a serious condition at a hospital here today from knife wounds inflicted in a row over gambling at the new Almaden camp near here.

Sheriff's deputies and Lieut. R. G. Budwin, camp commander, arrested Alois Wernecker, 20, Fredericktown, Mo., and William Smith, 21, also of Missouri. Witnesses said Wernecker stabbed Calabrese while Smith held the victim.

Sale of Transit Lines Approved.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The Illinois Commerce Commission approved Wednesday the transfer of the Illinois Power and Light Corporation's transportation facilities at Bloomington to the Bloomington-Normal City Lines Co., Inc., a subsidiary of National City Lines, Inc. The commission reported the new owners will pay $35,000 for the franchise.

Hearst's Newest Publisher and Writer

MR. AND MRS. JOHN BOETTIGER

AT St. Paul on their way to take over the Post-Intelligencer at Seattle, Wash.

Three Killed in Auto-Truck Crash.

DETROIT, Dec. 4.—Three residents of Toledo, O., were killed last night when their automobile and a truck collided head-on in Lincoln Park. The victims were tentatively identified as Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Gross and Mrs. T. W. Clark.

BOETTIGERS BEGIN RUNNING HEARST'S SEATTLE NEWSPAPER

Roosevelt's Son-in-Law Says Wife "Is My Partner in Every Sense of Word."

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 4.—President Roosevelt's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger, took up today the task of running Hearst's Post-Intelligencer, reopened recently after being closed by a strike over the dismissal of two staff members.

Mrs. Boettiger, the former Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, who will write for the newspaper, "is my partner in every sense of the word," Boettiger told more than 250 Western Washington leaders at a welcoming dinner given by Mayor John F. Dore, last night.

The new publisher said he had been given a free hand by William Randolph Hearst who criticised the President's policies in the recent campaign. Boettiger referred briefly to the strike, called by the American Newspaper Guild and settled by a readjustment of wages and working conditions. He added "I assumed that there was a greater difficulty there than just that of the newspapermen who had walked out."

AMERICAN KILLED IN CHINA; U. S. ASKS FOR INVESTIGATION

George Hobart Newsome, Tobacco Man, Shot by Chinese; Clash Between Buyers.

By the Associated Press.

NANKING, Dec. 4.—The United States Embassy asked the National Government of China today to investigate the fatal shooting of George Hobart Newsome, 40-year-old American tobacco executive, by a Chinese last night.

The Embassy appealed also for protection of other Americans in the Hsuchang area. Foreign tobacco buyers have experienced trouble there because of the efforts of native interests to collect percentages on all sales and to prevent direct transactions with farmers.

SEWER ELECTION IN COUNTY

Ladue-Deer Creek District Votes on $275,000 Bond Issue.

Residents of the Ladue-Deer Creek Sanitary Sewer District, comprising approximately the areas of the old village of Ladue and fourth-fifths of old Deer Creek Village, are voting today on a $275,000 bond issue for construction of a trunk and lateral sewer system. A two-thirds majority is required. Polls will close at 7 p. m.

In addition to the bond issue, a grant of $195,000 for the proposal has been authorized by the Public Works Administration. Three trustees for the district also are being elected today. Candidates who have filed are Robert E. Swift of Oakleigh lane, George E. Mellow of Fair Oaks, and John L. Gilmore of Upper Ladue.

JUDGE IGNORES LEGAL WARNING

Seven Drunks Dosed With Castor Oil Instead of Jail Term.

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 4.—Undeterred by the ruling of an assistant corporation counsel that his scheme for dosing drunks with castor oil, instead of sending them to jail, was not "a lawful punishment provided by the ordinances of Spokane or the statutes of the State of Washington," Police Judge Frank Yuse today dosed seven men who were haled before him on charges of drunkenness.

The seven, offered a choice between drinking four ounces of oil or serving 10 days in jail, took the oil.

Boy Denies Bogus Coin Charge.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 4. — Frank Leroy Hill, 16 years old, of Deepwater, Mo., was ordered held for appearance in Federal Court Dec. 14 on a charge of passing counterfeit coins after a preliminary hearing Wednesday before Charles H. Thompson, United States Commissioner. The youth pleaded innocent, explaining two 50-cent lead coins he passed at a gasoline station were among three he found in a tobacco sack on the main street at Deepwater.

ESTATE SHORTAGE PAID AND SUIT IS DROPPED

Widow of Justice of Peace Rabenau of Kirkwood Makes Good $1829.

A suit to recover a shortage of $1829 in the estate of Henry Le Fort of Kirkwood, filed by Mrs. Le Fort against Mrs. Philip R. Rabenau, widow of a Justice of the Peace; Burt A. Kaemmerer, lawyer, and others, has been dismissed in Circuit Court at Clayton and a corrected settlement of the estate was filed yesterday in Probate Court there by Mrs. Rabenau, making good the shortage.

The estate, left by Le Fort to his three minor children, had been administered by Rabenau as their guardian. The shortage was disclosed in an earlier settlement filed by Mrs. Rabenau on her husband's behalf, shortly after he was murdered in his Kirkwood office by Raymond Batson, a Negro, in December, 1934.

Mrs. Le Fort then filed the suit in Circuit Court, asking for a review and reversal of transactions by Rabenau, Kaemmerer and others. She dismissed the suit Nov. 23.

The corrected settlement lists as assets $2000 in mortgage notes and $2121 cash, as compared with the notes and only $63.70 cash in the first settlement. The cash in the corrected settlement includes the $1829 shortage, plus $228 interest.

FRENCH SHIPPING STRIKE ENDED ON GOVERNMENT PLEA

Dock Workers at Havre, Who Boycotted American Ships in Sympathy Walkout, Go Back.

FEARED NEW YORK MIGHT RETALIATE

Head of Labor Federation Issues Order—U. S. Embassy Takes Part in Negotiations.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Dock workers at Le Havre were ordered today to resume loading and unloading United States ships. The order was issued by Leon Jouhaux, president of the General Federation of Labor, at the request of the Government, after long negotiations in which the American Embassy joined.

The boycott of American vessels had been put into effect in sympathy with United States shipping strikers.

Jouhaux told leaders of the Federation of Dockworkers that it might bring about retaliatory measures in New York which would cause heavy losses to French trade.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — The French liner Champlain sailed at midnight, 12 hours behind schedule, taking back to France 525 tons of cargo which American longshoremen had refused to unload.

Henri Morin de Linclays, general manager of the line, said the company had done everything in its power for the benefit of its clients, delaying the sailing in the hope of an amicable settlement.

The pier was closely guarded, no one being permitted near the ship except the 207 passengers who had booked passage and the crew and line officials.

De Linclays conferred yesterday with Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Union. Ryan, who has opposed the current seamen's strike, permitted his men to handle only baggage, mail and 75 tons of perishable freight, refusing to unload the rest because French dock workers refused to unload American ships, in sympathy with the strikers.

The sailing of the Champlain was postponed when Ryan said he would order its cargo unloaded if the French dock workers agreed to resume the servicing of American ships.

A cablegram received by Joseph Curran, head of the Seamen's Strike Committee, from M. Lorriott, secretary of the French Federation of Maritime Workers, read: "We are worried by the stoppage of steamship Champlain. Help us with our task."

The Strike Committee, in reply to Lorriott, cabled: "Ryan, President American Longshoremen, has refused to unload Champlain. Has assumed role of strike breaker. Seamen's Committee declared all American ships unfair. Advise action against all American ships. We will co-operate fullest extent. Solidarity greetings."

Seattle Newspaper Guild Supporting Maritime Strike.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 4.—A representative of the Seattle chapter of the American Newspaper Guild yesterday announced its members would be assessed 1 per cent of their wages for the duration of the strike as a benefit for the maritime unions.

"We will never forget our debt to the maritime unions," said Philip Everhardt Armstrong, Guild representative, referring to the recent strike which resulted in the closing of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

The newspaper attributed its forced shutdown to picketing by maritime and other union members as well as by Guild members.

Gulf Unions Voting to Hold Out for Single Agreement.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 4.—Headquarters of the seamen's strike here announced today that striking engineers and deck officers in Galveston had voted to make no agreement with ship-owners until an agreement is made also with the rank-and-file seamen.

Rank-and-file headquarters here said the Ship Radio Operators' Union in New Orleans also had voted for the single agreement plan.

Driver's $100 Fine Voided on Appeal

A fine of $100 for driving while intoxicated assessed against John House, Negro, 3427 Walnut street, in Police Court, was dismissed yesterday on appeal by Judge Joseph L. Simpson in Court of Criminal Correction. House denied he was intoxicated when he was arrested after his machine had figured in a minor accident. A $100 fine for leaving the scene of the accident was sustained by Judge Simpson.

I am the
RICHMAN BROTHERS FACTORY

I am an eighth of a mile long, a city block wide, six stories high, have seventeen acres of working space and house more than 2300 stock-owning workers.

I am air conditioned, fireproof, spotlessly clean and I have thousands of windows that bring God's daylight to our tasks.

I have a dining room that serves good food at low cost and an auditorium for music, dancing, games, shows and other noon hour recreation.

Because of the constantly increasing demand for Richman Brothers Clothes, I have been enlarged . . . several times in the last few years.

Every day I see vast quantities of fine all-wool suitings and overcoatings coming in from the best mills of the textile industry.

I see these materials being tested for strength, examined for possible flaws in weaving, and thoroughly pre-shrunk. Only perfect goods are accepted.

I watch our designers as they fashion them with expert skill and I see our stock-owning workers tailor them with the most painstaking care.

During the depression, while others were cheapening their clothes, I witnessed the bitter battles we fought and won, to maintain our high standards of quality.

I've been a silent guest at the numerous employees' parties, celebrations, anniversaries and stock distributions for which we are so famous.

Before the words Social Security were thought of, we created the Richman Brothers Foundation for the aid of our sick, aged and distressed workers.

I know the sincerity, the loyalty and the integrity that are built into Richman Brothers Clothes, and I am thankful with all my heart for this opportunity to recommend them to you as America's finest low-priced clothes.

LIQUOR SHOP ORDERED CLOSED FOR THREE DAYS AS PENALTY

Deputy Excise Comissioner Takes Action Because of Two Disturbances in Store.

The Happy Hollow Liquor Store at 821 North Jefferson avenue was ordered closed for three days by Deputy Excise Commissioner C. A. Berkley today because of two disturbances there. The store is owned by the United Liquor Co., operated by Morris Roufa, and the liquor license is in the name of his brother, Alvin Roufa.

The disturbances took place Sept. 30 and April 25, Deputy Commissioner Berkley said. On the first occasion, Joseph Skates, a Negro, was cut by Morris Roufa, following a chase in the store, he told police. When the case was heard at the Excise Commissioner's office, however, Skates said he was cut accidentally by Roufa when a knife in the hand of the latter slipped while he was opening a liquor bottle.

The disturbance last April resulted from a fight between a Negro woman and a companion, Deputy Commissioner Berkley said. Morris Roufa said the fight did not take place in the store.

WOMAN PEDESTRIAN KILLED BY AUTO

Driver in E. St. Louis Accident Says She Stepped in Front of Car.

Mrs. Albert Kocot, 45 years old, of French Village, northeast of East St. Louis, died today at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, of injuries suffered last night, when she was struck by an automobile at Eighth street and St. Clair avenue.

The driver of the car, Mrs. Iona Pearman of Madison, reported to police she was driving west on St. Clair avenue, and Mrs. Kocot, who was walking across the street, stepped unexpectedly in front of her car, after hesitating to permit traffic to pass. Her skull was fractured and she was injured internally.

Mrs. Kocot's husband is sexton of St. Adalbert's Cemetery, near French Village.

Two Newsboys Injured When Auto Hits Them.

Arthur Freund, 18 years old, and his brother, Ralph, 14, were injured seriously when an automobile, which was hit by a one-man street car, jumped the curb and struck them as they were selling newspapers at the southeast corner of Compton and Lafayette avenues at 5 p. m. yesterday.

Arthur Freund, dragged by the automobile, suffered a fractured hip and a skull injury. Ralph suffered a fractured leg and internal injuries. Both were taken to City Hospital. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Freund, 3225A St. Vincent avenue.

The automobile, driven north in Compton avenue by Henry Williams, 3456A Arsenal street, was struck when the street car, operated by Walter Michler, 1743 Waverly place, turned into Lafayette avenue.

CITY AND COUNTY LEGISLATORS GUESTS AT ROTARY LUNCHEON

Fifteen Members of Missouri House and Senate Are Present.

St. Louis and St. Louis County members of the State Legislature were guests of the Rotary Club at a luncheon meeting yesterday at Hotel Statler. Fifteen of the legislative delegation of 29 attended, including five new members elected Nov. 3.

Those who attended were Senators Joseph H. Brogan, William J. Doran, McMillan Lewis and John P. Shea, and Representatives Edward F. Byrnes, Edwin G. Foerst, David A. Hess, Fred M. Joseph, Michael R. Kennedy, Will L. Lindhorst, Maurice Schechter and Oliver E. J. Schick, all of St. Louis, and Senator Raleigh McCormick and Representatives Howard Elliott and Joseph W. Dierker of St. Louis County. All are Democrats except Elliott who is a Republican.

Newly-elected members include Senator McCormick and Representatives Joseph, Kennedy, Elliott and Dierker.

FUNERAL OF ADJT.-GEN. BROWN

State Department Closed During Full Military Services.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 4.—Full military funeral services were arranged this afternoon for Adjt.-Gen. Harold W. Brown, who died Wednesday. National Guard officers from all parts of the State were here for the services at the Presbyterian Church. In the funeral escort to the National cemetery were the 203rd Coast Artillery band of Aurora, Field Artillery batteries from Columbia and Boonville, Coast Artillery battery from Nevada and infantry companies from Jefferson City, Marshall and Fayette.

At the request of Gov. Park, all State departments were ordered closed during the funeral hour. Before taps, an 11-gun artillery salute was ordered in recognition of Brown's rank of Brigadier-General.

OPERATORS TO DRAFT COAL BILL

Bituminous Men From Nine Eastern States Organize.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Bituminous coal operators from nine Eastern States formed an organization yesterday in an attempt to draw up a substitute for the Guffey Coal Act, which the Supreme Court declared unconstitutional.

The operators adopted a resolution authorizing the formation of a national committee to prepare a bill. The aim of the operators is to regulate competition and wages.

Commissioned Reserve Officers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Commissioning of four Missourians in the Reserve Corps was announced today by the War Department. They are Gordon B. Inglis of the State Highway Patrol, stationed at Sikeston, First Lieutenant Infantry; William H. Day, Mexico, First Lieutenanat, dental; John B. Ruckstuhl, 2920 Louisiana avenue, St. Louis, Second Lieutenant Field Artillery, and Elmer C. Wirtz Jr., Webster Groves, Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery.

Fuel Administration Reunion.

A reunion of members of the Missouri and St. Louis branches of the United States Fuel Administration, disbanded in 1919 after regulating coal supply and distribution during American participation in the World War, will be held this evening at the Racquet Club, 476 North Kingshighway. Those expected to attend are Missouri Relief Administrator Wallace Crossley, John C. Hall, E. D. Nims, Sam W. Baxter, Charles E. Morrow and E. J. Wallace.

88 WPA WOMEN STILL IN TOWN HALL

Pickets Spent Third Night in Council Chamber in Protest Against Layoff.

By the Associated Press.

PLEASANTVILLE, N. J., Dec. 4.—Caught up with their darning and other needlework, most of the 88 women in the City Hall in protest against a WPA sewing project layoff today turned to reading novels and magazine stories.

There was work for some—painting new signs for the most comely of the band who have been delegated to picket what the women call "gambling joints."

Three places were picketed yesterday, and more were on the list today, the women announced. The doors of two of the places picketed were locked soon after the women appeared carrying signs, one of which read: "Open gambling—but we can't have relief projects."

The pickets spent their third night of sleeping on the City Council table, benches and floor. They occupied the Council's chamber after the WPA sewing project was stopped because of the city's failure to provide money for materials.

Hot meals were served at the local Democratic headquarters, where the women ate in relays from the 10 plates available. Volunteer cooks made stews and such out of food donated by merchants.

A spokesman, Mrs. Anna McArdle, said the women would "stay put until they were carried out."

"Let 'em sit, let 'em picket," said the Councilmen.

Woman Sentenced for Killing.

By the Associated Press.

ABBEVILLE, Ga., Dec. 4.—Christine Gordy, 36 years old, was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to from four to six years imprisonment yesterday for the killing of her brother-in-law, T. M. Dix. Dix, operator of a general store in which Miss Gordy worked as a clerk, was shot to death while he slept at his home several months ago. Miss Gordy testified Dix forced attentions upon her, cursed her when she treated men customers "nice," flogged her with a buggy whip and had threatened to kill her.

NEW YORK WPA WORKERS GIVE UP SITDOWN STRIKE

125 Persons Leave Office Building After Protest of One Day.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—A group of striking WPA employes ended a one-day sitdown strike today and marched out of the office building where they had camped, singing the "Internationale."

Orrick Johns, director of the local Federal Writers' project, resigned as a protest against the lay-off program which brought about the strike.

The original striking group numbered 150, but 25 left their posts during the night. Sandwiches were hoisted with a rope to the strikers on the seventh floor. Later, police cut the rope.

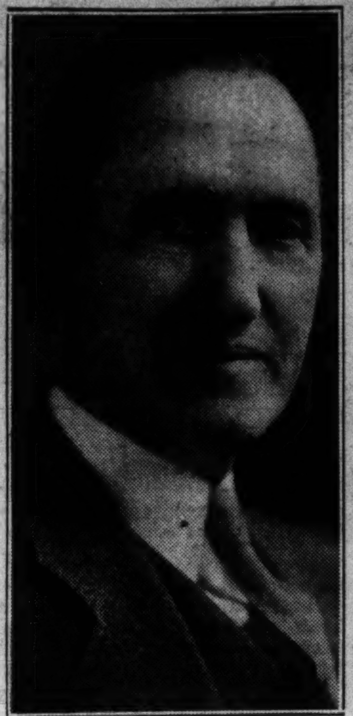
WINS X-RAY AWARD



—Strauss Photo.
DR. EDWIN C. ERNST.

RADIOLOGICAL SOCIETY HONORS DR. E. C. ERNST

Medal Awarded for Developing More Accurate Measurement of X-Ray Force.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 4.—Dr. Edwin C. Ernst, St. Louis physician and radiologist, and Dr. Otto Glasser, Cleveland physicist, received gold medals from the Radiological Society of North America at its annual dinner last night for outstanding achievement in their 11 years of successful effort to develop more accurate measurement of X-ray force in the treatment of cancer.

The award went to Dr. Ernst, the society's retiring president, Dr. Thomas A. Burcham said, for his part as collaborator and organizer in obtaining world-wide acceptance of the Roetgen unit as the standard of measurement in the application of X-rays.

Dr. Glasser's award was in recognition of his development of the ionization chamber and an instrument for measurement of X-rays in terms of Roentgen units.

A considerable part of the measuring process was devised at Barnard Free Skin & Cancer Hospital, St. Louis, under direction of Dr. Ernst when he was president of the Radiological Society and chairman of its Standardization Committee. Dr. Ernst is in charge of the X-ray department of Barnard Hospital and also is radiologist at De Paul Hospital in St. Louis.

The Roentgen unit, Dr. Burcham explained, was to the radiologist what the gram was to the physician or pharmacist, adding that international acceptance of a standard unit and an instrument for its measurement marked the end of experimentation by which the potency of X-rays were determined by testing their power to blacken camera film.

Dr. Ernst told the St. Louis Medical Society in 1928, before the unit of measurement was adopted universally, that it was sort of a Roentgen inch, the X-ray intensity required to ionize, or electrify, one cubic centimeter of air, which is converted into a conductor of electricity by the X-ray.

Universal adoption of the measurement, Dr. Ernst said then, would mean gains in cancer study because the measure of X-ray intensity also would be the measure of malignancy of the disease.

FORMER CITY EMPLOYE FINED FOR TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS

Police Judge Dismisses Charge of Driving When Intoxicated Against Alden Chase.

Alden Chase, president of the Chase Construction Co. and formerly engineer in charge of street paving in Republican city administrations, was fined a total of $14 on four charges of traffic violation by Police Judge James F. Nangle today, but was found not guilty of driving when intoxicated. Two policemen testified he was intoxicated.

While denying all the charges, Chase told the Court he had had "a few drinks" before his arrest at Twelfth boulevard and Lafayette avenue Oct. 10, by a traffic policeman who, driving his own automobile, forced Chase to stop after he had observed him driving south in Twelfth boulevard in a weaving manner.

The officer, Patrolman Wilson King, testified Chase's car struck his automobile as they stopped at the intersection and that Chase resisted when he attempted to place him under arrest, although King was in uniform. He testified Chase was intoxicated. Another policeman, who was called to assist King, testified Chase staggered, fell down once, talked incoherently, and became abusive.

The fines were assessed for passing of an automatic signal, failure to observe an intersection stop sign, resisting an officer, and careless driving.

Chase was employed by the city street department from 1906 to 1929, when he went into the contracting business. His company has obtained several street paving contracts. He is a Republican and lives at 5230A Devonshire avenue.

VICTORIA PLAYS IN ENGLAND

Permit Granted for Their Staying After June 20, 1937.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—King Edward, it was disclosed today, has granted permission through the Lord Chamberlain for plays on the life of Queen Victoria to be presented after June 20, 1937, the centenary of Victoria's accession to the throne.

The Lord Chamberlain has hitherto forbidden stage references to the grandparents of the reigning monarch in accordance with British tradition. In New York, Helen Hayes is playing in Laurence Housman's "Victoria Regina."

NUMEROUS LIQUOR CONCERNS have opened since the amendment on liquor. We purchase our merchandise with the same care and integrity that we did during the prohibition era, when drug stores were the only legitimate outlets for liquor prescriptions. That's why the average American purchases his liquor needs from a drug store.

INSULL SETTLES BILL FOR REFUGE IN GREECE

Understood Mme. Coyimzoglu Accepted $5000 Cash and Jewelry for Her 'Sacrifice.'

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Attorneys for Samuel Insull and Mme. Helen Coyimzoglu announced yesterday a settlement had been made of her claim for $40,000 worth of jewelry she said Insull promised her while she sheltered him in Athens in 1933.

Peter Kouridas, her attorney, said in New York today settlement included cash and jewelry. It is understood the cash was $5000 and the value of the jewelry several thousand dollars. Kouridas said Mrs. Insull would go to France for the jewelry.

Mme. Coyimzoglu came here and threatened to sue the former utilities man unless he returned to her $40,000 in jewelry she said he gave her, but which Mrs. Insull took back. She said the jewelry had been placed in a safety deposit box in Paris.

The jewelry, she said, was given to her for her "sacrifices" while she protected Insull during his self-imposed exile in Greece when he was sought on mail fraud charges. He was acquitted of the charges in a trial here.

YOUTH REACHES ST. LOUIS ON 3750-MILE BOAT TRIP

Has Paddled Canvass Covered Kayak From Milk River in Canada.

Albert L. Troelstrup, 22-year-old Arizona youth, paddled his 13-foot canvass-covered kayak into St. Louis yesterday for a brief stop on a 3750-mile trip that started July 1 at Milk River, Canada, and is planned to end in New Orleans.

With his kayak, used instead of a canoe because of its greater stability, loaded with supplies, he left the Canadian city on the Milk River, later getting on the Missouri River in Eastern Montana.

He hopes to reach New Orleans in six weeks—at least before cold weather catches him—but when he gets there his plans are indefinite. "I guess I'll go to work at something," he said. "I'm not bothered about that, for I think anyone who really wants to work can get a job." He took the trip to "see some country" following his graduation from college last June.

JAMES W. GENTRY DIES AT 65; DOG AND PONY CIRCUS MAN

One of Three Brothers Who Toured Country With Show in the 1890s.

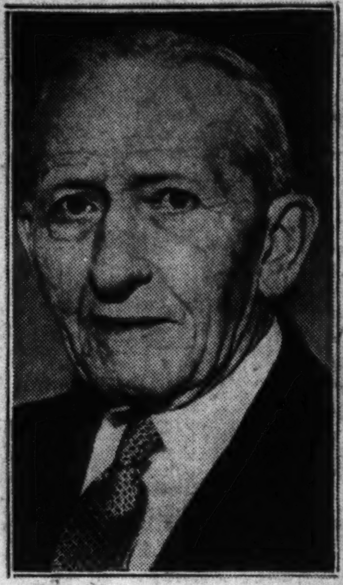
By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4.—James W. Gentry, 65 years old, one of the three owners of the Gentry Brothers dog and pony circus, died in a hospital here yesterday after a long illness.

Gentry and his two brothers took their show to nearly every large city in the country during the 1890's. He came here last September from his home in Bloomington, Ind.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Ollie Gentry; two brothers, Henry B. and Frank of Bloomington; three sisters, Mrs. Emma Evans and Mrs. Lillian Penrod of Bloomington, and Mrs. Charles Gant of Indianapolis.

GETS MECHANICAL ENGINEERING AWARD



DR. EDWARD BAUSCH, INVENTOR of Rochester, N. Y., who received the 1936 distinguished service medal from the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Two of his achievements are perfection of the microscope and the invention of the Iris diaphragm shutter.

CORNERSTONE LAID FOR NEW ALTON MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

Building Dedicated to Memory of Mr. and Mrs. William Elliot Smith.

A ceremony and laying of the cornerstone of the new Alton Memorial Hospital at Alton, dedicating the building to the memory of Mr. and Mrs. William Elliot Smith, was held today. Smith, who died 27 years ago, was co-founder and president of the Illinois Glass Co., now the Owens-Illinois Glass Co. His widow, in 1931, two years before her death, set aside $100,000 for the hospital. When she died, her two daughters, Miss Eunice Smith of Alton, and Mrs. Pascal E. Hatch of Springfield, Ill., carried out the plans.

Contracts for the buildings, including a 75-bed hospital, nurses' home, and power plants, amount to about $350,000. A 25-acre site also was given by the two daughters, who have started an endowment fund which they seek to increase by contributions. The Methodist Episcopal Board of Hospitals will administer the hospital when completed. Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of Chicago was the principal speaker at the ceremony today. The Rev. C. L. Peterson of Lebanon, Ill., presided.

WITNESSES CALLED FOR PRISON INQUIRY

Hearing on Removal of Supplies and Alleged Beating of Inmates Monday.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 4.—Attorney-General McKittrick was going ahead today with preparations for the opening hearing before the State Penal Board Monday in his investigation of the penitentiary and intermediate reformatory, after a sharp clash yesterday with Gov. Park in which McKittrick asked the Governor if he was attempting to hinder the inquiry. Park denied there had been any interference.

Summons were prepared today for seven or eight witnesses for the hearing on Monday, McKittrick said, and others will be issued later. The hearings will be held in the Attorney-General's office in the Supreme Court building.

Scope of Inquiry.

The hearing will be on matters that have been under investigation by McKittrick, including alleged improper withdrawals of subsistence supplies from the penitentiary and reformatory commissaries by State Parole Commissioner George D. Bryant, a Penal Board member; the handling of subsistence supplies at the reformatory by Guy W. McLain, superintendent; the alleged beating of reformatory inmates by guards, and the general management of the reformatory.

The clash between McKittrick and the Governor, through the medium of prepared statements, came after McLain withdrew his resignation, previously submitted to the board, following a conference with the Governor on Wednesday. McLain, after quitting in the face of the impending inquiry, said he had changed his mind and would fight any charges against him.

McKittrick, in his statement, asked Gov. Park for "his purpose and his reason in causing Capt. McLain to withdraw his resignation." McKittrick asked: "Is it an attempt to hinder and interfere with the investigation?"

Reply of Governor.

Gov. Park immediately replied, in a prepared statement, denying there had been any interference with the inquiry and or attempt to influence McLain as to his course. The Governor said the Penal Board was co-operating with McKittrick in the inquiry "with my knowledge and by my authority."

"I have always been loath to injure the reputation and standing of any person," the Governor said, "until, after full investigation, I am convinced he is guilty. I prefer to act deliberately and with full knowledge of the facts before going to the public with my charges."

The Attorney-General declined to comment on Gov. Park's reply. "Whatever I have to say further I will present on Monday and in the subsequent hearings, in the form of evidence," he said.

Board Member Got Supplies.

McKittrick has not indicated whether the investigation as to subsistence supplies drawn by Bryant will be extended to other members of the board and some of the prison employes. The board members who will conduct the hearing all have received subsistence allowances from the prisons which the Attorney-General, since the inquiry has started, has ruled were not authorized by law.

The board members are Col. Stephen B. Hunter, director of penal institutions and chairman of the board; Farm Commissioner Paul Renz and Parole Commissioner Bryant. Hunter and Bryant are Democrats and Renz is a Republican.

Under formal action by the board subsistence allowances were authorized, on the basis of $15 a month for each convict servant assigned to board members and certain employes. Under this order the subsistence allowances were $75 a month for Hunter, and $30 a month each for Renz, Bryant, Warden J. M. Sanders and Deputy Warden Tom Scott. Supt. McLain has the use of a State-owned residence at the reformatory, and receives full maintenance, including food.

Dean Sweet Urges Protection of Witnesses at Algoa.

A request that inmates of Algoa Farms who may have knowledge of irregular practices by officials be removed from custody of the present staff was made by Dean Sidney F. Sweet of Christ Church Cathedral today in a letter to Attorney-General McKittrick.

The letter asked McKittrick to "protect from intimidation and harm those inmates of Algoa Farms whose possible knowledge of irregularities, alleged to have been perpetrated by members of the staff, might jeopardize them."

"I am advised that names of certain inmates, believed to have been unwilling participants in these irregularities, have been made known to you," the letter stated. "I believe that in order to obtain a full and thorough disclosure of conditions at Algoa, these young men should be guaranteed immunity from discipline of any sort at the hands of the present staff and should be removed, at least temporarily, from their custody."

CHAVEZ GIVEN DECISION WHEN ARMSTRONG HITS LOW BLOW

The Winner Was the Loser in This Head-to-Head Fight

Featherweight Title Claimant Had a Big Lead at Time of Foul

By W. J. McGoogan.

Tony Chavez, Mexican boxer, rested in a hospital today, following his victory on a foul in the eighth round over Henry Armstrong, St. Louis Negro, recognized in some states as featherweight champion of the world, scored at the Auditorium last night.

AUDITORIUM RESULTS

Tony Chavez, New Mexico, 129½, won from Henry Armstrong, St. Louis, (131), on a foul in eighth round. Tommy Sullivan, referee.

Davey Abad, St. Louis (135) won decision over Midget Wolgast, Philadelphia, (133½), 10 rounds. Sullivan, referee.

Frankie Covelli, Brooklyn (127½) defeated Jimmy Buckler, Louisvile, Ky., (127½), 10 rounds. Harry Cook, referee.

Leonard Bostick, St. Louis (174) knocked out Babe Davis, St. Louis (195), first round. Cook, referee.

Judges—Al Graff and Mordie Wolff.

Attendance 6270; receipts $5906.40; Federal tax $603.08; City and State tax $254.97.

The foul, an unintentional low blow, delivered by Armstrong near the close of the round, caused Chavez such pain that he dropped to the floor and rolled over and over, out of the ring. He was helped back inside the ropes, then carried to his dressing room, where an examination by Dr. Durand Benjamin of the State Commission disclosed evidences of the low punch.

State Athletic Commissioner Ernest Oakley then awarded the match to Chavez because of the foul but took no further action against Armstrong because it was plain to everyone that the foul was not deliberate.

Dr. Benjamin said that Chavez likely would feel the effects of the blow more keenly today than he did immediately after it happened, and advised that he be carried out on a stretcher rather than be permitted to walk. So his handlers called an ambulance and sent the Mexican to a hospital.

Chavez Seems Near Kayo.

Up to the time of the foul, Armstrong had all the better of the argument and it appeared just before he hit Chaves low that Henry was in position to score a knockout, for he had just clipped Tony a hard left and a right to the head which had the Mexican in a bad way.

Tony made a surprisingly good showing against Armstrong, a human punching machine. Henry started, as usual, throwing punches at the opening gong and they kept going every second the fight lasted. Chavez was nervous at the start. He back-pedaled and tried too much to hold Armstrong, but Henry wouldn't let him.

In the second round, Chavez hit Armstrong a hard right to the head which gave him more confidence. They stood head to head and punched each other as the crowd howled.

In the third they again stood and fought it out as the crowd yelled so loudly that neither boxer, nor apparently Referee Tommy Sullivan, heard the bell, and they continued to punch for several seconds after the round ended.

Chavez found the range with right-hand uppercuts to the head in close and did some damage with that blow to Armstrong in the fourth round. And Sullivan, attempting to part the boxers himself, was struck in the nose by one of Tony's lefts.

Armstrong missed some punches in the fifth and took a hard left to the head but in close he again outpunched Tony with his short, sharp blows.

Chavez Tries to Rest.

Chavez was obviously tired at the start of the sixth and tried to get some rest by holding Armstrong but Henry wouldn't let him. And when he saw that holding was useless Tony fought back hard.

At the start of the seventh round, Tony's right eye was almost closed while Armstrong bled slightly from the nose and mouth. Henry kept right at his task, though, punching with both hands every time he could find a target but he, too, was too tired to do any real damage.

Armstrong asked the number of the round just before the eighth began and it seemed that he had punched himself out of reserve strength and that Chavez would last the distance. But shortly after the start of what proved to be the final round, Armstrong caught Chavez with a hard right to the head as the Mexican was going away and then hit him with a left. Henry maneuvered Chavez into position to continue the attack but as he let a right uppercut go, he started the punch too low and it landed on Tony's groin.

The Mexican hesitated for the fraction of a second before falling to the floor, then rolled out of the ring, evidencing great pain.

There was confusion at the ringside as spectators helped Tony back into the ring and a woman, Mrs. Larry Atkins, wife of one of Matchmaker Lew Raymond's assistants, fainted. They were married only since Sunday.

Covelli Floors Buckler.

The contest, truly an interesting and exciting one, was the headliner of the card and it was fought in a way to make it the chief attraction. The bout had to be good because Frankie Covelli, Brooklyn, and Jimmy Buckler, Louisville, Ky., had just about stolen the show in their bout, the first of the three 10-rounders, which Covelli won after dropping Buckler to the floor for counts of eight twice in the fifth round.

Covelli showed a dazzling left hand attack which caused Buckler trouble right at the start. Jimmy had been ill last week and probably was not in his best condition for the scrap but there was nothing wrong with his heart.

After he had been on the canvas in the fifth he came back fighting for the last half of the fight and did most of his good work in that part of it. In fact he reached Covelli once in the eighth round with a stiff right hand smash to the head, staggering Frankie and winning the round.

Covelli proved to be a busy fighter of the Armstrong type who started to punch at the beginning and kept going. He jabbed Buckler's head throughout with his left and used a righthand uppercut to the body effectively.

Toward the close of the match Covelli's left eye was cut badly. It was the opening of an old wound which has caused the Brooklyn Italian trouble in the past.

Davey Abad scored a 10-round de-

WRAY'S COLUMN

Mr. Landis Thinks Hard.

KENESAW MOUNTAIN LANDIS is titled "High Commissioner of Baseball" and if they wanted to term him "Czar" it would not be overstating it much. The power of baseball life and death lies in his hands, under the agreement. What is more to the point he can nullify baseball assets and even create baseball values, by a single decision.

Within a short time Landis will be called upon to make a ruling whereby a major league baseball club may be deprived of a playing asset valued at not less than $100,000. By the same ruling he may literally put $100,000 into the pockets of a well-nigh penniless high school boy.

Landis' decision will determine the issue. From his ruling there is no appeal in baseball, although any person aggrieved, by violating all baseball ethics might take his grievance to the civil courts.

A $100,000 Baby.

THIS is the case of Bob Feller, youthful and highly sensational strikeout pitcher for the Indians, who set the world pop-eyed by his achievements on the mound last season.

Judge Landis has Feller's case under advisement now and, according to the precedent he set in the recent cases of players Lee Handley and John Peacock, he will declare Feller a free agent.

If this happens the former Iowa high school boy will be free to sell his services to the highest bidder which, in his case, will be equivalent to handing him $100,000. Several club owners have expressed themselves as willing to buy him at this figure—or even a higher one.

Cleveland, probably would be barred from even bidding for this boy whose discovery and opportunity to show his stuff was supplied by the Indians' management. Such a ruling would strip it of $100,000 profit, to which it seems to have a better claim than any other baseball organization.

Free Agent Worth $100,000.

THE situation is made possible by the baseball regulations against "covering up" players. There is a rule which prevents a major league club from taking a player direct from a school or the "lots" into major league circles. He must come up through the minors.

The Cleveland club saw possibilities in this young fellow's pitching and planted him in a minor league club. It promoted his transfer to another minor league team and then finally took him over.

When he developed into a star protests arose. It was charged the transfers were mere cover-up moves to protect the Indians, without the other clubs ever having had actual title to Feller. The legality of his minor league existence is in question and from the general appearance of the situation, the transfers are regarded as having been pre-arranged.

The same situation existed with Handley and Peacock with reference to the Cincinnati club, the ruling in their case was against the Reds' owners. Apparently, therefore, the 18-year-old high school youth, Feller, will likewise

McEvoy Will Go To Detroit as Assistant To Navin, Report

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 4.—L. C. McEvoy, retiring vice-president of St. Louis Browns appears to be headed for Detroit as business assistant to Charles Navin and Mickey Cochrane, apparently disposing of the report he was to become assistant to President Harridge of the American League.

McEvoy and Cochrane have been in frequent conferences and Mickey expressed the hope that he could induce the former Brownie official to become affiliated with the Tigers.

Tinker Seriously Ill; Little Hope For His Recovery

By the Associated Press.

ORLANDO, Fla., Dec. 4.—Physicians held little hope today for the recovery of Joe Tinker, former major league baseball player and manager, from a stroke of paralysis.

Physicians said complications gave the shortstop link in the famed "Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance" double play combination of the Chicago Cubs little chance to survive.

Tinker was stricken amid plans for his return to the game he loved. He was expected to become vice-president of a proposed Orlando club which may enter the Florida State League next season.

St. Ann defeated Visitation, 27-20 in the opening game of the junior division of the Parochial School Basketball League last night at Visitation Hall. Minardi of the victors had 12 points to lead the scorers.

FAUROT WILL BE TIGER COACH IN 1937; KIRK IS NAMED CAPTAIN

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 4.—Members of the University of Missouri Alumni Association and business men here paid tribute to the Tigers football team and the coaching staff after a successful season here last night.

The team and coaches were honored at a dinner. The team elected Maurice Kirk, Nevada, Mo., a guard, captain of the 1937 team.

The Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics recommended that Head Football Coach Don Faurot be re-employed for another year.

Kirk, who succeeds Al Londe, was presented as captain by Clif Langsdale, Kansas City, a member of the Athletic Advisory Committee, after the team members had cast their ballots.

Reappointment of Faurot, whose term as coach expires Dec. 31, was regarded as a foregone conclusion as was the retention of his coaching staff of Chauncey Simpson, backfield coach; Phil Bengtson, line coach, and John Simmons, freshman coach. The board of curators will consider the recommendations at their next meeting.

J. Harrison Brown, Mexico, was named chairman of the Advisory Athletic Committee today and L. E. Nickell, Columbia, was named secretary. Brown and Grant Wyatt, St. Louis, were named as representatives on the Athletic Committee and Langsdale and Nickell were named alternates.

Gov. Guy B. Park and Maj. Lloyd Stark, Governor-elect, sent telegrams of congratulations to the team, which were read at the dinner.

OZE SIMMONS TOSSES BALL IN WRONG BASKET; TEAM LOSES, 36 TO 27

By the Associated Press.

MASON CITY, Ia., Dec. 4.—Oze Simmons, Iowa football star, put the wrong "punctuation mark" on an interview he gave here between halves of a game between his Negro professional touring basketball team and a Mason City aggregation.

After decrying what he termed lack of intelligence on the part of Iowa high school and college athletes, Simmons went out and put a shot in the wrong basket. His team lost, 36 to 27.

Pittsburgh Panthers To Meet Washington In Rose Bowl Battle

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 4.—Pittsburgh and Washington, each with colorful 1936 football records of a slightly checkered design, will meet in the Rose Bowl New Year's day.

The Huskies, host team of the West, tendered Pitt the bid as "representative of the best in Eastern football," and said the Panthers promised to seek revenge for the three beatings they received in past performances in the Bowl.

Athletic Director Ray Eckmann of Washington made the selection announcement and also made good a pledge it would bring a "surprise."

South Passed Over.

Up to the last minute, Louisiana State University, Alabama, Navy and Pennsylvania were other leading possibilities for the invitation, with emphasis on L. S. U. and Alabama, whose only blemishes this season were lone tie games. Pitt and Washington each lost one game and tied one during an otherwise successful season.

"Our intent has been to choose the team which is representative of the best in Eastern football," Eckmann said in a statement. "Although many sections have turned out splendid teams this year, any one of which might have made an acceptable opponent, yet the unusually strong schedule which confronted Pittsburgh and the outstanding record it made, ending the season with a definite display of superiority, makes it the logical opponent to represent the East."

He declined to discuss consideration given the other candidates, but said appearance of teams from the South in the Bowl for the past two years had not influenced Washington in its decision, as far as L. S. U. and Alabama were concerned.

Coach Jock Sutherland's Panthers have had an unusual season, rolling up 203 points to opponents' 34, winning on occasions when hardly expected, and losing once to a rank shortender, Duquesne. Fordham battled Pitt to a scoreless tie.

Washington lost to Minnesota, 14-7, and was tied by Stanford, 14-14.

A glance into past Rose Bowl records shows Pitt has enjoyed no success at all. In 1928 the Panthers were eased out, 7 to 6, by Stanford; two years later the Trojans of Southern California walloped them, 47 to 14, and again in 1933 the Trojans blanked them, 35 to 0.

Pittsburgh's Record.

Pitt ran roughshod over Ohio Wesleyan, 53 to 0, and West Virginia, 34 to 0, toppled then unbeaten Ohio State, 6 to 0, and seven days later Duquesne, "little giant killer" of the East, upset the Panthers, 7 to 0.

Pittsburgh turned around and handed Notre Dame its worst defeat in years, a 26 to 0 rout, but the next week was held to a scoreless tie by Fordham.

Penn State fell, 34 to 7. The Panthers journeyed to Lincoln to set the Nebraska Cornhuskers down, 19 to 6, then ended their season with a 31 to 14 triumph over Carnegie Tech.

Washington, conference champion, lost to Minnesota in the first game of the season, but defeated in turn Idaho, 22 to 0, U. C. L. A., 14 to 0, Oregon State, 19 to 7, California, 13 to 0, and Oregon, 7 to 0.

The Stanford Indians, at the peak of their mid-season rampage, unexpectedly held the Huskies to a draw, but Washington came back to end the conference hopes of Southern California, 12 to 0, and Washington State, 40 to 0.

Here Are Some Selections In "Post-Graduate" Games

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Returning for a little "post-graduate" selecting, the following comment on tomorrow's slender football slate is offered:

Southern California-Notre Dame: Something happened to Notre Dame after the Navy defeat. whatever it was Elmer Layden will accept more of same with thanks. Southern California started out like the Trojans of old but ran out of luck in recent weeks. Close but Notre Dame gets the nod.

St. Mary's-Temple: It's a long trip for Pop Warner's Owls and St. Mary's is due to win at least one important ball game in order to justify some of the extravagant pre-season ballyhood. St. Mary's.

Tennessee-Mississippi: Tennessee.

Arkansas-Texas: Arkansas to win the Southwest title.

Rice-Southern Methodist: Spinning the coin, Southern Methodist.

Texas A. and M.-Manhattan: One faint ballot for inconsistent Texas A. and M.

Florida-Mississippi State: Mississippi State.

Maryland-Western Maryland: Not much to choose. Maryland.

Bears, Billikens Tie in Ice Hockey

The Watch and Ward team defeated the defending champion Octopus Club squad, 4-2, yesterday in the feature of the two games that opened the St. Louis Intercollegiate Amateur Ice Hockey League at the Arena. Washington and St. Louis University teams played to a 3-3 tie in the other game.

The Octopus six, favorite for the title, started out as though it would make a runaway of the game, scoring twice in the first few minutes of the game. But the Watch and Ward team came right back with three goals to take the lead. Neither team scored in the second period, but in the third, Watch and Ward added another.

St. Louis University had to come from behind to overcome a three-goal handicap which Washington gained in the first two periods. In the second period, Mel McGonnigle entered the game for the Billikens and scored once and then added another in the final period. Dave Ruhl tied the score with a solo effort late in the last period.

By Alan Gould,

Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The star of all-America football fame beams brightest this year over the East, in general, and over the ivy-covered premises of Old Eli Yale, in particular, thereby marking a renaissance that is unquestionably well under way in the region that rocked the original gridiron cradle.

The all-star galaxy for 1936, as presented today by the Associated Press for the twelfth consecutive year, reveals the East in possession of four places on the first team, as well as a total of 11 positions on the complete all-America squad of 33 collegiate performers, picked by careful analysis from the best in the country.

This not only surpasses the showing of any other section in a year chiefly noteworthy for the zig-zag course pursued by most of the nation's leading teams, but gives the East greater all-America recognition than it has known since 1929.

It compares with three places on the first team for the Mid-West, two for the South, one each for the Far West and Southwest. On the squad as a whole the Mid-West obtains nine places, South seven, Far West four and Southwest two.

Two Yale Stars Named.

To Yale, where the all-star idea was nourished nearly a half century ago and developed to its most glamorous heights by the late Walter Camp, goes the distinction of placing two players on the 1936 team. Lawrence Morgan Kelley, spectacular captain and end of this year's accomplished Eli array, and Clinton Edward Frank, the team's backfield powerhouse, restored the Blue to a place in the all-star firmament with dazzling performances.

In the dozen years in which the Associated Press has made selections, only two Yale players previously made the grade. They were Bill Webster in 1927 and Herb Sturhahn in 1925, both guards.

Kelley may not be the greatest end in the United States this year. In the South, for instance, none will concede there is a performer superior to Louisiana State's Gaynell Tinsley in any department of the game. Elsewhere, too, the praises of North Carolina's Andy Bershak are sung to the skies. Yet the fact emerges boldly, after full analysis, that for sheer genius at his position, plus rare qualities of leadership, of durability, and of the knack of scaling the heights under pressure, Kelley comes close to being in a class by himself.

Hafeli Is Given Honorable Mention

DWIGHT HAFELI of Washington University was the only football player in the St. Louis district to be mentioned in the All-America selections announced today. Hafeli was listed in the honorable mention group of ends.

Jack Frye of University of Missouri was the only other player in the State honorably mentioned. Frye was the Tigers' quarterback.

Kelley has always managed to do the most effective work at the critical time.

Tinsley Is Real Star.

Kelley's accidental kick of a fumbled ball toward the Navy goal line paved the way for Yale's winning touchdown in that game. He decoyed Pennsylvania's pass defenders on the play that decided another contest. Against Princeton, Loquacious Larry had the crowd popeyed as he paced the Blue to a spectacular uphill victory. In his farewell game, Harvard had two or three men watching him like hawks, but he took the pass that led to crowning triumph. Kelley's record of scoring in every "Big Three" game over a three-year stretch is unparalleled over a 60-year period.

Tinsley, the only repeater in this year's all-America lineup, may lack some of Kelley's color, but his flair for the spectacular has won him the highest praise accorded any of the South's great ends. The Louisiana State star added pass-catching skill to his blocking and tackling ability this year, with dazzling results. He took passes for touchdowns in most of L. S. U.'s games. Only Auburn was able to make any gains around his side of the line.

Tinsley, Louisiana State End, Is Selected for the Second Time

Tinsley and Kelley, clearly the country's outstanding pair of ends, shared the popularity roles in this year's consensus with Nebraska's versatile fullback, Sam Francis; Minnesota's co-captain and star tackle, Ed Widseth, and the key man in Washington's great line, Max John Starcevich, a great guard.

Francis, southpaw shot-putter on Uncle Sam's Olympic track and field team last summer, proved one of the ablest heavy-duty backs in the game. His booming punts, some of which traveled as far as 75 yards, his long passes, line-bucking and tackling were conspicuous in all of Nebraska's major games. Even in the team's worst defeat, at the hands of Pittsburgh, Francis was the outstanding back on the field and won the highest possible praise from the Panther coach, Jock Sutherland.

Real Aces in Backfield.

The all-America arguments have been heated otherwise, with more log-rolling for favorite sons than any season has witnessed in years, but the selection of Yale's Clinton Frank, Marquette's Ray (Buzz) Buivid and Duke's Clarence (Ace) Parker rounds out a backfield of talented players, equipped to put on an old-fashioned display of running power or a modern "razzle-dazzle" type of attack from any standard formation.

Frank has few rivals as a running back, averaging better than six yards a crack against the East's toughest "Ivy" competition. He hasn't passed as often as Buivid or Texas Christian's sharpshooting Sam Baugh, but he has been equally as effective when it counted, particularly with Kelley on the receiving end.

The choice of Buivid and Parker rests largely on their all-around superiority over a number of other contenders for all-star recognition. Parker completed three years of superlative play at Duke by turning in his best season.

Buivid, an iron-man who missed only 16 minutes of eight games with an average of 58 minutes of action a game, set the pace for Marquette all season. Buivid belied his reputation as a passing specialist by doing most of the blocking, much of the secondary tackling and a good share of the ball-carrying for the Golden Avalanche. Completing 50 per cent of his passes for an average gain of nearly 14 yards a pass, Buivid rivaled Slingin' Sam Baugh in this department of the offense.

Widseth Brilliant Player.

Despite his loss of temper at the critical stage of the Northwestern game, resulting in a costly penalty, Minnesota's Ed Widseth completed a brilliant career as the country's outstanding tackle. A tower of strength on both offense and defense, this agile 220-pounder was the key man in another great Gopher line developed by Bernie Bierman. His all-around record for effective performance as well as sportsmanship clearly offset the lapse that contributed to Minnesota's first defeat in four years.

Pittsburgh had the finest pair of tackles seen by this or any other observer East or West of Lincoln, Neb., where the Panther combination of Averell Daniell and Tony Matisi scaled superlative heights of line play. Daniell is the choice, by a narrow margin, over his teammate, largely because of his keener ability to diagnose plays and reach the right spot. He was Pitt's best defense against passing plays because of his height and ranginess.

Three players from widely separated sections make up the center of the mythical line, with iron-man qualities and resourcefulness featuring their records. Max Starcevich of Washington, Mike Basrak of Duquesne and Joe Routt of Texas A. & M. were key men in three of the finest lines operating anywhere.

Basrak played a devastating game at center. Operating 60 minutes of every game for two straight years until taken out in the last one, to receive an ovation, he was the No. 1 answer to Duquesne's upset conquests of two otherwise unbeaten teams, Pittsburgh and Marquette.

Starcevich, averaging more than 43 minutes a game, was rated the coast's outstanding lineman. Exceptionally fast for his size, this Iowa boy who moved to Minnesota before heeding the collegiate call to the Far West specialized as a running guard and blocker. His all-America running mate, Routt, exhibited equal talent on the offense and compiled an even better record for ruggedness. The Texan played all but seven minutes of three games within an eight-day period, all of which the Aggies won with the aid of his aggressive all-around blocking and tackling,

St. Louis Is Awarded The National Women's Indoor Track Carnival

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 4.—One of the first championships to be awarded at the National A. A. U. convention here today went to the Ozark Association, which was granted the National Women's indoor track and field meet.

It was stated by Marvin Plake, who received the formal award, that the Ozark Association would sponsor the meet. Previously it was sponsored by clubs of the local association. No date was announced.

The official bid for the National Senior Boxing Championships was awarded to Boston after three hours of arguing.

St. Louis bid $4000 guarantee and a 75-25 split of the net profits; 75 per cent going to the National A. A. U. Boston's bid was $4200 guarantee and a 50-50 split of the net profits.

Although the actual voting was 11 to 6 in favor of Boston, on motion by Charles Gevecker, president of the Ozark Association, the award was made unanimous.

The men's national basketball tournament was voted in committee to Denver, for the third straight year. Kansas City, Mo., withdrew in Denver's favor.

Committee action was subject to ratification by the convention, which begins general sessions tomorrow, but where no contests were involved the recommendations were in effect final.

The committee making final nominations for the 1936 Sullivan Memorial Trophy award, given annually by the A. A. U. to the athlete contributing most to amateur sport, included Jesse Owens, winner of four Olympic medals.

Women Athletes in Big Ten.

Two women athletes are among the "ten most worthy" selected by the committee for the final vote.

The list, alphabetically arranged, follows: Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, National Amateur golf champion; Thomas Hitchcock of New York, ten-goal polo ace; Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., women's tennis star; Lieutenant Charles F. Leonard of the U. S. Army, now stationed in the Canal Zone, ace of the American modern pentathlon team in the Olympics; Jack Medica of Seattle, Olympic 400-meter swimming champion; Glenn Morris of Fort Collins, Colo., decathlon champion and record holder; Jesse Owens of Cleveland, winner of four Olympic gold medals; Helen Stephens of Fulton, Mo., Olympic 100-meter women's sprint champion and holder of numerous records; Forrest C. Towns of the University of Georgia, world champion high hurdler; and Herman F. Whiton of New York, prominent yachtsman and winner of numerous international honors.

Barring a sudden switch in well-canvassed sentiment, it appeared today that Jeremiah T. Mahoney, former New York Supreme Court Justice, would be restored to the presidency of the Amateur Athletic Union, succeeding Avery Brundage of Chicago, on a platform of "harmony and progressive reconstruction."

Whether Mahoney's leadership was sufficiently strong to prevent simmering Olympic issues and criticism of Brundage's management of this year's American team from reaching the convention floor awaited developments. Committee sessions today will be followed by general meetings tomorrow and Sunday.

Staging a Comeback.

Meanwhile, the A. A. U. forces which, under Mahoney's presidency, fought unsuccessfully a year ago to keep the United States out of the Olympic games on anti-Nazi grounds, appeared to be staging a successful comeback.

Here a day in advance of the rival presidential candidate, Maj. Patrick J. Walsh of New York—and despite Brundage's support of Walsh—the anti-Olympic forces did a thorough job of button-holing delegates.

Solid Southern support for Mahoney, plus backing from some Eastern, Midwestern and Far Western groups, prompted predictions of decisive victory by the Mahoney campaign manager, Charles L. Ornstein of New York, and Jack Rafferty of Houston, candidate for first vice-president on the anti-administration ticket.

Walsh, whose arrival with a number of his supporters was delayed by a train wreck, apparently had majority backing from his own metropolitan association, as well as the central association of Chicago and the Missouri Valley of Kansas City.

Any attempt to commit the metropolitan association to the "unit rule," Mahoney leader said, would precipitate a fight on the convention floor. A minority in the New York delegation was understood to favor Mahoney.

Brundage for Harmony.

Brundage, retiring at his own insistence after handling the job seven times in the last eight years, joined Mahoney in counseling "harmony." He warned that another factional outbreak might break up the A. A. U. but made it clear he was ready to stand his ground on any Olympic argument.

He promised to "put all the cards on the table," if the convention insisted on debating such issues as the expulsion of Eleanor Holm Jarrett from the women's swimming team for violation of training rules, the suspension of Jesse Owens for "running out" on a Scandinavian tour after the Olympics, and the failure to start two Jewish sprinters, Sam Stoller and Marty Glickman, on the American 400-meter relay team.

"I agree with Mr. Mahoney that this is no place to revive Olympic issues that do not, strictly speaking, concern the A. A. U.," said Brundage, "but I do not say that because I desire to dodge discussion."

Hometown fans quoted odds of 3 to 1 against the Trojans.

ARMY AND NAVY PLAY ON NOV. 27 NEXT CAMPAIGN

By the Associated Press.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 4.—The 1937 meeting of the football teams of Army and Navy will be played in Philadelphia next Nov. 27.

Although the site for the battle has not yet been officially decided, it was believed the game would be played in the Philadelphia Municipal Stadium, where it was taken this year after several seasons at the University of Pennsylvania's Franklin field.

The Army, which has the right to set the date for next year's game, said also the dates for the following two years also have been agreed on. These are Nov. 26 in 1938, and Dec. 2 the following year. No action has been taken, however, to decide where those games will be played.

Announcement of the 1937 date was made at West Point, where it was explained the official announcement of the site for the game would be forthcoming after a conference of Army and Navy officials in a few days.

MAX SCHMELING ON HIS WAY TO UNITED STATES

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—Max Schmeling left for the United States yesterday, confident that no fight between Joe Louis and Jim Braddock would "chisel" him out of his heavyweight title chances.

His primary purpose in the Atlantic trip now is to appear at the New York State Athletic Commission session on Dec. 10, which, he intimated, will definitely settle arrangements for a championship bout between him and Titleholder Braddock next summer.

"Things have reached a final stage," he said. "I was called to New York because Joe Jacobs, my American manager, has no power of attorney to act in my name."

A no-decision bout between Braddock and Louis, to be held in Atlantic City in February has been proposed, but no action can be taken on the proposition until the Braddock-Schmeling go is signed and arranged.

The heavyweight and his European representative, Max Machon, embark from Bremen today on the trans-Atlantic trip.

HOPPE, BEATEN BY MATSUYAMA, TIED FOR LEAD IN TITLE MEET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The smooth-stroking cue of Kinrey Matsuyama, diminutive Japanese star, made the world's three-cushion billiard's championship a wide open affair today.

Matsuyama's hours of pre-tourney practice paid him dividends last night as he stopped the march of Willie Hoppe, defending champion, toward a fourth straight victory. Scoring a high run of 12, best of the tourney thus far, Matsuyama trimmed the New York expert, 50 to 28, in 43 innings. The defeat sent Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., into a tie for first place with Hoppe. Each had three wins and one loss.

Tied for second place were Matsuyama, Tiff Denton of Kansas City and Welker Cochran of San Francisco, each with three victories and two defeats.

Denton defeated Jay Bozeman of Detroit, 50 to 47, in 54 innings. Bozeman put on a futile but brilliant late-inning rally. Cochran's shots clicked against Art Thurnblad of Chicago, the West Coast player winning, 50 to 22, in 35 innings. Cochran made 18 points in six straight turns at the table and ended the match with a run of 10. Allen Hall of Chicago won his first game in five starts, beating Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, 50 to 27, in 37 innings.

The standings:

PLAYER.	W.	L.	Pts.	In.	H.R.	B.G.
Hoppe — — — —	3	1	178	170	10	37
Layton — — — —	3	1	178	174	11	28
Denton— — — —	3	2	214	280	8	54
Matsuyama— — —	3	2	219	223	12	43
Cochran — — — —	3	2	227	237	10	35
Reiselt— — — —	2	2	158	185	8	44
Bozeman — — — —	2	2	188	178	7	37

Lookabaugh — —	1	4	189	233	6	41
Hall— — — — —	1	4	201	243	7	37

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Hall 50; Reiselt 27 (37 innings).
Denton 50; Bozeman, 47 (54 innings).
Cochran 50; Thurnblad 22 (35 innings).
Matsuyama 50; Hoppe 28 (43 innings).
Todays games: Matsuyama vs. Lookabaugh; Bozeman vs. Hall; Layton vs. Reiselt; Hoppe vs. Thurnbold.

SYRACUSE LOSES ITS THIRD STRAIGHT GAME IN HOCKEY CIRCUIT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The Syracuse Stars may be "hot stuff" in their own section of the International-American Hockey League—at least they're in first place and have lost only once to a Western rival—but they seem to be just another club when they venture into the East.

The Stars lost their third decision in as many games on Eastern rinks when they took a 5—1 drubbing from the New Haven Eagles last night. The previous evening they had been whipped by Philadelphia. The last-place club of the Eastern sector, also beaten Wednesday, bottled up the Syracuse scoring aces and flew past the defense to score four times in the latter stages of the game.

Only Phil Stein's goal guarding kept New Haven from rolling up a higher score as Ossie Asmundson, lanky center, and big Deed Klein, left winger, each figured in three goals.

Although idle until Saturday, the Cleveland Falcons, last-place club of the Western section, broke into the news when they handed Toots Holway, veteran defenseman, his unconditional release and signed up Tiny Teasdale, recently cut loose by Buffalo.

THE million-dollar pitching arms

The future Dizzies get that way
By shucking corn and pitching hay.

With Carl Hubbell and Dizzy Dean pitching for the Giants the battle for second place in the National League would be something to write about.

Also it would halt the American League triumphs in the world series for the nonce or maybe longer.

Anyway the acquisition of Dizzy would only enable the Giants to defer their Farm Labor activities temporarily. The back-to-the-soil movement is gaining momentum every day.

With the Giants definitely committed to an "acreage" policy the unafiliated farmers in the Corn Belt with ears to the ground are waiting to hear something drop.

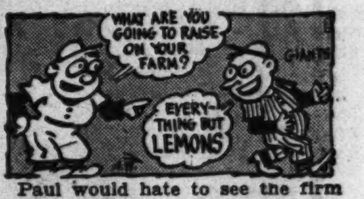
However, as pioneers in the farm system the Cardinals should command the cream of the crop for several years.

Ethan Allen says you could have knocked him over with a fender when he heard that he had been sold to the Browns. The Green Mountain boy is no stranger to St. Louis, having worn the Cardinal livery in 1933.

"Stan Baumgartner Names 'All' Team."

We'd rather have Stan Laurel's idea of a first-class football club.

We agree with Paul Dean that $200,000 is considerable mazuma and that money talks. But when it comes to popping off Ol' Diz can make 200 grand look like 30 cents.



WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO RAISE ON YOUR FARM?
EVERYTHING BUT LEMONS GIANTS

Paul would hate to see the firm of "Me and Paul" dissolved. Brother acts always have a strong public appeal. Realizing the value of brother acts some showmen have been known to advertise as brothers performers who were not even distantly related. It's the old Nick in them.

Johnny Thomson, the pro, is the longest driver in golf. He always gives the impression that he is shooting for a hole in one.

In the Army-Navy game, the adherents of the Middies started to pull up the goal posts before the game was over. That's strategy of the highest order. You can't kick a goal without goal posts.

Attendance Increased.

The American Association attendance figures for 1936 showed an increase of 300,000 over 1935.

FLYERS DEFEAT SAINTS TO GAIN NINTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

PETE PALANGIO SHINES IN 5-1 AFFAIR; HANSEN OUT OF ACTION

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 4. — The St. Louis Flyers today had ended their Twin Cities invasion undefeated after racing through the St. Paul Saints here last night to score an easy 5 to 1 decision and ring up their ninth straight triumph.

Oscar Hanson, the scoring star of the Saints last year and now a Flyer, was out of the St. Louis lineup with an injured leg, but his absence was never noticed as Palangio blazed a scoring path from one end of the rink to the other, assisting on two tallies and netting the final score himself with only five seconds of play remaining.

Some Quick Work.

Three goals in a space of six minutes in the opening period whipped the Saints, the first two coming within two minutes of each other.

As usual the Saints' own aggressiveness hurt them. Most the players were caught down rink as Frankie Ingram snagged the puck, sent a ring-width pass over to Bobby Burns on left wing. Burns' subsequent tally came at the nine-minute mark in the opening period.

Little more than two minutes later, Palangio raced down the right side and his long pass to Donnie Olson far over on the left started the scoring play. Then came Matte's solo dash. On the play, Goalie Almquist was left almost without protection by his mates. St. Paul's tighter defense in the second period held the Flyers without a tally.

More Scoring.

Mulvihill resumed the St. Louis tally-making in the third period on a difficult angle shot following a pass from Palangio at 13.05.

The Saints followed up with a charge by Emil Hanson, Harold Johnson and Roy Burmister, Johnson scoring 50 seconds after the Flyer counter. Palangio topped the evening with his solo that slid in just before the final buzzer.

The Flyers are en route to Tulsa where they will end their present road trip. They will take on the Oilers Saturday night and leave immediately after the game for St. Louis where they battle the Wichita Skyhawks Sunday night.

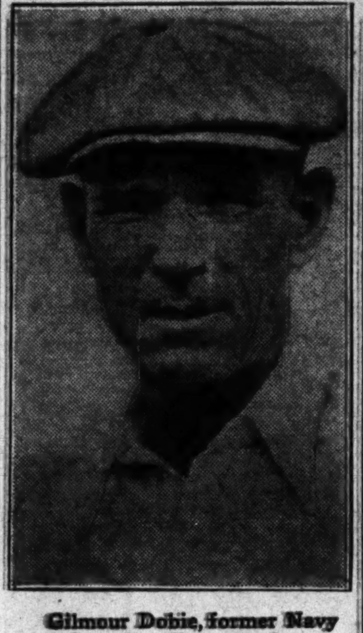
Improving



Gilmour Dobie, former Navy and Cornell college coach, now football coach at Boston College, who has been at the point of death following an automobile accident. Today it was reported that Dobie is improving.

DOBIE AND ASSISTANT SHOW IMPROVEMENT

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Dec. 4. — Gilmour (Gloomy Gil) Dobie, Boston College football coach, and Frank Murdock, freshman coach, critically injured in an automobile crash, last night were given "good" chances to recover by their physician.

Dr. Thomas Wickham said they showed improvement—Dobie more than Murdock. The latter, he said, was still "groggy" having suffered fractured jaw and severe cuts and bruises.

The former Cornell coach, City Hospital officials said, was conscious throughout the day, and talked with his daughter, Jane, a freshman at Simmons College.

Dobie and Murdock were returning from a dinner in a Boston hotel yesterday when their automobile crashed into a bridge abutment.

WRAY'S COLUMN

he declared a free agent and will open the season with some other club than Cleveland, richer by $100,000 and with a salary that will probably be close to five figures, as a starter.

A word from Landis can bring all this to pass. High-and-mighty commissioner, we'd call him.

The Loser Wins.

TONY CHAVEZ, featherweight fighter, is lucky in one way. Taking a hard beating at the hands of Henry Armstrong, Negro featherweight title claimant, he was given the decision when Armstrong accidentally struck him low.

On their showing at the Auditorium Chavez has about as much chance to beat Armstrong as a one-legged man has to beat Jesse Owens. Armstrong appeared even more dangerous against Chavez than he did in his battle here with Alcanter. It will take a champion to beat this Negro boy.

He is perpetual motion in the ring. Unlike most throwers of gloves, he not only heaves punches fast and continuously but they carry real punishing power. Driving in constantly, he is really a formidable man to check. That he will beat Petey Sarron, the N. B. A. indorsee for the feather title, seems a foregone conclusion.

Unfortunately there seems no immediate chance of a meeting between the men as Sarron is headed for a kale-harvesting tour of Europe.

No Question of Foul

COMMISSIONER OAKLEY and the Missouri rules took care of the foul situation commendably at a time when it appeared the excitement might have some backfire.

Oakley ordered an examination of Chavez, although there was no question that a low blow was struck. When physicians confirmed the location of the blow, Oakley ordered the disqualification of Armstrong, awarding the fight to Chavez.

The application of the "no foul" rule as existing in New York, would have given the victory to Armstrong on a knockout. While this would have awarded the victory to the better fighter, it would have been unfair to Chavez. Every boxer is obligated under the Marquis of Queensberry code to keep his blows within legal territory. That's as much a part of the game as delivering fair blows. To put a "no foul" clause in the regulations would encourage not only careless and slovenly delivery of punches but would actually invite DELIBERATE fouling.

We hope the Missouri commission never incorporates the "no foul" rule because not even safety protectors can always protect.

CHAVEZ IS GIVEN THE DECISION WHEN RIVAL HITS A LOW BLOW

cision over Midget Wolgast in a contest which was the semifinal. It had not figured to be anything more than a funny exhibition by two windmill artists who know all the tricks of the trade. The only trouble was it wasn't funny, at least not humorous enough to please the crowd and the two boxers drew many a boo as fans pulled out newspapers and began to read them before the battle was ended.

Bostick Scores Kayo.

Leonard Bostick, wild swinging Negro boxer, scored the only knockout when he dropped Babe Davis for the count within 50 seconds after the start of their contest which had been scheduled as the six-round preliminary. Bostick, more than 20 pounds lighter than Davis, let loose a flurry of gloves at the outset which knocked Davis through the ropes on the west side of the ring. Babe was vainly trying to get up and through the ropes as the final 10 was tolled.

There was some dispute among spectators as to the decision on the Wolgast-Abad bout but each of the two judges and the referee voted for Abad. And all by the same margin, four points.

Jimmy O'Grady, Covelli's manager, yelled to his boxer in Italian during the course of his fight with Buckler.

Emmet Ledweth, Chavez's manager, seemed to take a worse beating in the corner than Tony in the ring. He was almost apoplectic, shouting encouragement and instructions to his boy.

Armstrong's next bout, according to Eddie Mead who directs him in the ring, will be against Baby Casanova in Mexico City on New Year's day.

Raymond has not announced plans for his next program but has Jan 15 lined up as his next date and it would not be surprising if Chavez and Covelli, either or both, were on the card. Certainly both pleased last night's crowd.

JOE GHNOULY, LOCAL BOXER, NATURALIZED WITH A CLASS OF 60

Margarite Anastou Ghnouly is no more. In his place is Joseph Ghnouly by order of Federal Judge Charles B. Davis.

The change was made at Ghnouly's request when he, with a class of 60 others, received his naturalization papers today.

The boxer has always been known as Joe to the fans of St. Louis but actually his name was Margarite Anastou.

Twenty-five years of age, Joe came to this country with his parents Nov. 27, 1920 from Roumania and was known as Margarita Anastou, the Anastou part being his father's first name and it is a custom of Roumanians to take the father's first name. Now Joe is taking the family name of Ghnouly.

Joe was educated in St. Louis, being a graduate of McKinley High School, and resides with his family at 2139A Allen avenue.

He has been active in the boxing ring here for a number of years as an amateur and later as a professional. He was ranked among the ten leading lightweight boxers of the world up to this year but defeats which he suffered, particularly by Joe Alcanter of Kansas City dropped him out of the first ten.

Joe hasn't fought in some time but has been working at the Business Men's Gymnasium daily to be ready for a match. He may box in Chicago in about two weeks.

Seeks Wrestling Tournament.

The South Atlantic Association of the A. A. U. is seeking next year's national amateur wrestling championships.

COUNTY COACHES WILL HOLD MEETING MONDAY

The St. Louis County High School Coaches Association will hold a meeting next Monday night at the University City High School starting at 7:30 o'clock, Henry E. Schemmer, secretary of the association announced last night.

Among the matters to be discussed are: The State Athletic Association's meeting at Kansas City which State Secretary Carl Burris will describe; the advisability of county "A" and "B" basketball tournaments; track meets, and baseball schedules.

Oze Simmons to Oppose Terriers In Sunday Game

When the St. Louis Terriers line up against Ozie Simmons' Iowa All-Stars Sunday afternoon at Walsh Stadium, local fans will have their first opportunity to see the great Negro back in action. Simmons, who completed his college career at Iowa three weeks ago, will be making his third professional appearance.

Playing his senior year with an Iowa team that was outclassed by its major opponents, Simmons failed to maintain the pace he set in the two previous campaigns, but was always a highly respected ball toter.

In preparation for Simmons' visit, Coach Arnold von Lehston has been putting the Terriers through daily drills and promises to put a vastly improved team on the field for the All-Star game. George Rogge, completely recovered from the injury sustained in the Peoria game, will be ready to hold down one end. Ted Sausele and Dick Frahm have learned the Terriers' plays and should show a vast improvement over last Sunday's performance.

The former Washington U. ace at the top of his form should run Simmons a close race for ball carrying honors. Sausele had a good season with the Rochester American League team and is in fine physical condition. He has expressed a desire to 'get away for a couple of long ones' for the St. Louis fans before closing his spectacular career.

Jess Fallett will start at fullback and Joe Spudich at quarter for the Terriers. The makeup of the local line is somewhat in doubt, but Blanton, McGirl, Thomas, and Nesbit are almost sure of starting assignments. Jack Lally, the big little man of the Gunners line a few years ago, has signed with the Terriers, and will probably see some action at one of the guards.

Newman to Meet O'Toole.

Eddie Newman and Tommy O'Toole will rassle in the feature of the wrestling card to be presented at the Coliseum next Thursday night.

BROWNS EXPECT TO MAKE DEAL WITH INDIANS NEXT WEEK

CARDINALS BUY THREE PLAYERS FROM BROOKLYN; RELEASE WALKER

Bert Niehoff Is Named Manager of Louisville Club

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4. BERT NIEHOFF today resigned as manager of the Chattanooga club of the Southern Association to succeed Burleigh Grimes as pilot of the Louisville team of the American Association.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—All hopes of any major deals being turned here by either the Browns or Cardinals were practically abandoned last night and it was intimated by Branch Rickey and Bill De Witt that nothing of importance was expected before the major league meetings in New York next week. Rickey has been engaged in a series of conferences with officials, both from the majors and minors, but the promised big deal of the week—for Dizzy Dean—appears to be no closer to consummation than it was weeks ago.

Acquisition of Stanley Bordagaray, Jimmy Jordan and Emil Leonard from Brooklyn represented the sum total of these conferences. Bordagaray and Jordan are expected to stop over only temporarily on the Cardinals roster, but Leonard probably will be given an opportunity to show his ability to win a place on the Redbird pitching staff. Rickey is understood to have a high regard for Leonard and believes that he will prove an important addition to the staff. The outright release of Bill Walker to Rochester probably means the East St. Louis lefthander has seen his last days in the majors.

The Browns' officials were distinctly disappointed over their failure to reach some agreement with Cleveland, due to the failure of Cy Slapnicka to show up at the minor convention, but held out hope that a deal with the Indians would go through at New York.

De Witt is expected to announce late this week or early next the acquisition of two pitchers from the minor leagues, whom Rogers Hornsby describes as possible regulars on his 1937 staff. The Browns also are about ready to announce the addition of two farms to their contemplated chair store system, one of them in Class A. They also have tentatively closed for a manager of San Antonio club, the name being withheld until his signature to a contract is obtained.

Eddie Dyer, president and manager of the Columbus (Ga.) farm of the Cardinals last season, was named president of the Asheville (Piedmont League) farm to succeed Oliver French, who previously had been named president of the Rochester (International League) club.

Chicago Cubs today traded Capt. Elwood (Woody) English and Pitcher Roy Henshaw to the Brooklyn Dodgers for Linus Frey, a shortstop and second baseman.

The Dodgers made another deal, sending southpaw pitcher Ed Brandt to Pittsburgh for Ralph Birkofer, a pitcher, and infielder "Cookie" Lavagetto.

Ready to Make Decision.

Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis was reported nearing announcement of his long-awaited decision in the case of 17-year-old Bob Feller, sensational Cleveland schoolboy pitcher, and the bigwigs of baseball actually were quaking in their boots.

When Landis first launched an investigation into complaints that Cleveland had violated the major-minor league agreement by signing Feller off the sandlots, rival club owners hoped the young pitching wonder would be ruled a free agent and tossed into the market for a public auction.

Then they realized that should Landis rule Feller a free agent, he might rule some of their established young stars free agents for the same reason.

It is estimated that Landis has held at least a score of meetings in his effort to squeeze every last ounce of information out of those connected, closely or remotely, with the Feller case.

Few Important Deals.

Rumors of impending swaps were as thick as cigar smoke in the hotel lobbies but nothing of importance has been announced.

The trading has totaled about $30.60 at basement bargain prices.

The Cardinals sold Catcher Virgil Davis and Infielder Charlie Gelbert to the Reds.

The Browns bought Outfielder Ethan Allen from the Cubs and sold Ray Pepper t o the Buffalo club.

The Phillies sold Pitcher Ray Benge to St. Paul.

Outfielder Frenchy Bordagaray, Infielder Jimmy Jordan and Pitcher Dutch Leonard were sent by the Dodgers to the Cards. This was announced as a sale, but it at least partly completes the deal which brought Outfielder Jack Winsett from a Cardinal farm, Columbus, to the Dodgers late last season. The Cards released Bill Walker to Rochester.

Other Facts and Rumors.

New York Giants offered Catcher Gus Mancuso, Pitcher Hal Schumacher and Outfielder Hank Leiber to the Chicago Cubs for Outfielder Frank Demaree, Pitcher Bill Lee and Catcher Ken O'Dea. Cubs offered Outfielder Tut Stainback and Infielder Woody English in a flat deal for Leiber.

Kansas City bought Pitcher Ted Kleinhaus from Yankees.

International League reversed decision and agreed to continue little world series with American Association.

St. Paul sold Shortstop Gordon Slade, former Cincinnati player, to Missions of Pacific Coast League. Indianapolis traded Pitcher Stew Bolan to Missions for Pitcher Lefty Johnson. Indianapolis bought Pitcher Lewis Whitehead from Durham.

Kansas City swapped Third Baseman Joe Valenti and Catcher George Susce to Galveston for Pitcher Beryl Richmond.

Kansas City sold First Baseman Dale Alexander to Nashville of the Southern Association.

The Pittsburgh Pirates sold Pitcher Johnny Welch of St. Louis, formerly of the White Sox and Red Sox, to St. Paul.

Newark sold Pitcher Hank McDonald to Oakland, Cal.

Red Sox Sign Agreements.

Owner Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox set his minor league lines by signing working agreements with six clubs. New agreements were signed with Minneapolis of the American Association, Hazleton of the York-Penn League, and Clarkdale of the Cotton States. Working agreements were renewed with Little Rock of the Southern Association, Canton of the Mid-Atlantic and Danville of the Bi-State.

The Cubs purchased Newel Kimball, promising right-handed pitcher, from Los Angeles for 1938 delivery. Kimball won 16 and lost 7 for Tulsa of the Texas League last season where he was farmed out by Los Angeles. In return for Kimball, the Cubs bought and sent to Los Angeles Catcher Collins from Binghamton of New York-Penn League, Third Baseman McWilliams from St. Paul and Outfielder Howell of Tulsa.

Bill Beckman, leading Southern Association pitcher, has been sold to Atlanta by Knoxville via the St. Louis Cardinals. The latter owned him.

Police Five Wins.

The St. Louis Police Department basketball team continued its winning ways last night with a 42-28 victory over the St. Louis Chapter De Molay squad. It was the sixth consecutive victory for the police team. Kelly led the scoring for the victors with 12 points.

MINORS REJECT RULES CHANGE AS PROPOSED BY LANDIS

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—For the first time since he became commissioner of organized baseball, Kenesaw Mountain Landis was beaten on the convention floor of the minor leagues today.

The commissioner's proposed rider to the Baltimore amendment, compelling club representatives to file complete information by players recommended with him, was unanimously rejected after a reconsideration of yesterday's vote, which the commissioner won, 17 to 4.

At yesterday's meeting, the minor leagues voted to adopt the Baltimore amendment whereby any representative of a minor or major league would be allowed to recommend any player to any club without being penalized by being banned from further dealings with said recommended player.

Would Cause Confusion.

Commissioner Landis then requested a rider be attached to the amendment, compelling full information of each recommendation be filed with him, the president of the league involved, and the head of the minor league association. Apparently confused but in no argumentative mood, the minor league delegates passed the rider.

At today's meeting Dan Hill, president of the Piedmont League, brought the Landis rider up again and moved for a revote. Tom Fairweather, president of the Western League and Western Association, seconded the motion in an impassioned plea. He charged such a rider would result in confusion and the loss of players through the risk of oversight in filing such information.

As the minors completed their business, Hill was re-elected to the executive committee as representative of the Class B, C and D leagues for another three-year term.

Collinsville Appears Team to Beat for East Side Basketball Title; Practice Games Tonight

With the beginning of the Madison-St. Clair Conference basketball activity scheduled for December 11, four members of the East Side league oppose non-league opponents in practice games tonight. East St. Louis, Collinsville, Wood River and Belleville will be in action, while Granite City and Madison start play tomorrow. Alton, the seventh league member, is idle this week.

Collinsville and Wood River entertain Litchfield and Troy, respectively. East St. Louis is at Livingston, while Belleville goes to Highland. Tomorrow night's games pit Granite City against Anna, at Anna, with Madison host to Livingston. Collinsville's Kahoks engage in their second contest at Salem.

The 1936-37 title race should prove close as four quintets boast outstanding performers. Collinsville will likely prove the team to beat for the championship. Collinsville, Madison and Wood River have been practicing for some time, while East St. Louis, Alton, Granite City and Belleville started activity early this week.

Kahoks Have Veteran Team.

Bill Larson, Collinsville coach, has practically his entire team of last year in action. Eight veterans answered Larson's call—Eddie Evers, Ray Zeisel, Walter Evers, Melvin Richter, Bob Gray, Johnny Ward, Art Nichols and Al Zukosy. Bill Meyer, forward, and Howard Huff, guard, make up the remainder of the Kahok squad.

The defending champions, Madison, have only two lettermen returning, Tommy Gushleff, captain and center, and Milo Gitchoff, guard. Karl Berninger is coaching Madison this season, succeeding Paul Rohe. Berninger has the remainder of his team selected. It includes Jimmy Stuart, Steve Sertich, Paul Bilyeu and Bill Kelio, forwards; William McDowell, Harold Harsh and Herman Haynes, guards, and Albert Ulanski, center.

Vern Purvines, Cameron Van Buskirk, Leo Padgett and Dwight Whittaker are veterans returning to Byron Bozarth at Granite City. The Warriors finished second last season and, with capable reserve material in Ken Parker, Howard Bischoff, Dave Morgan and Dick Yates, Bozarth should have another good team.

Alton Loses Two Stars.

Although four veterans return at Alton, only two will play throughout the season. Leroy Harrison and Bill Forrester are half-year men. Oscar Reynolds and Ralph Spurgeon are forwards who earned letters last year. Herb Lock is a newcomer to basketball at Alton, and Coach Henry Holt expects him to replace Harrison after mid-year. Carl Bailey, Tommy Jones, Keith Cook and J. R. Travis are outstanding prospects.

Fritz Friedli of Belleville will be confronted with the difficult problem of building a team out of reserve material. He has 12 prospects. Russell Meyer, Tom Dunck, Carl Lowe, Dave Dill and Charles Heisser are the forwards, with James Bell, Roger Merker, Bill Smith, Paul Taff and Jack Cleary the guards. Les Mueller and Wayne Groh will fight it out for the center position.

Charles "Chic" Summers, Wood River coach, has Byron Killiam and Herman Hall at guard, while Rudy Mahalich is center, and Bill Doil and Ken Townsend are the forwards. Killiam, Hall and Mahalich are lettermen. With Eddie Posage, Ted Fuido, Harold Stokes, Johnny Vallina, Johnny Anderson, Chuck Stokes and Berkley Halstead to form nucleus for East St. Louis' quintet, Jack Nolen should have little trouble in placing a good team on the floor.

M'KENDREE WILL USE LETTERMEN IN FIRST GAME WITH BILLIKENS

Four lettermen are slated to start for McKendree College tomorrow night against the Billikens at the St. Louis University gymnasium as the two schools open the 1936-37 college basketball season here.

According to reports from McKendree, Coach Sandy Blanchard plans to start Al Manis, 6 foot 7 inch Benton, Ill., star, at center. Art Wehmeier and Roger Zeller will be the forwards and Captain Roy Jaeckel and Gustav Krizek will be at the guard posts. All except Zeller are lettermen.

Coach Ed Davidson of St. Louis U. plans another stiff practice session for this afternon chiefly for the benefit of the football men who came out the last few days and who have not accustomed themselves to the hardwood.

Only two members of last year's team are expected to open tomorrow night. Co-Captain Frank Keaney and Sid Mudd, junior guard, and a trio of newcomers, Jack Macheca, Bob Bohn and Al Dudenhoeffer will start for the Blue and White.

TENNIS EVENT ENTRIES WILL CLOSE DEC. 14

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The U. S. Lawn Tennis Association announced yesterday entries for the National junior and boys' indoor championships close on Dec. 14. The championships will be played on the board courts of the Seventh Regiment Armory here Dec. 26 to January 1.

The boys' events will be open to youths who had not reached their fifteenth birthday on Jan. 1, 1936. The junior championship is restricted to boys who had not reached their eighteenth birthday on last New Year's day.

TWO GOLFERS SCORE ACES IN FLORIDA EVENT

By the Associated Press.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Dec. 4.—Horton Smith, defending champion, shot a 68, three under par, to take an early lead in the $10,000 Miami Biltmore Open golf tournament today.

The initial 18-hole play was enlivened by two holes-in-one by Jack Forrester of Oradell, N. J., and Abe Espinosa of Shreveport, La., but they failed to crack par. Forrester finished with a 76 and Espinosa had 75.

Close on Smith's heels were Bob Stupple of Glencoe, Ill., and Billy Burke of Cleveland, with 69s and Fay Coleman of Culver City, Cal., and Harold "Jug" McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., with 70s. Par for the 6640-yard course is 71.

Smith took only nine putts on the first nine holes, going out in 31, four under par. He sank a chip shot on the seventh. Coming in, he took a four on the par three twelfth, but made up for it on the long fifteenth by sinking a 20-foot putt for a birdie four.

Creve Coeur Shoot Sunday.

The Creve Coeur Gun Club will hold its regular trap and skeet shoot next Sunday afternoon starting at 1:30 o'clock. The traps will be open for practice at 9 o'clock in the morning.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 4. — The election of Midshipman Raymond F. Dubois of Naugatuck, Conn., as captain of the Naval Academy football team for the 1937 season was announced yesterday at the Naval Academy.

Dubois, who plays left guard on the team, is a member of the junior class. He has been on the football squad for two years.

Midshipman M. H. Buass, Bakersfield, Cal., was elected manager for the 1937 season.

Slated for Outfield.

Hank Greenberg is slated to play in the Detroit outfield next year. Rudy York will be tried at first base.

Four outstanding Heavyweights, with a world of style, speed and stamina, selected by Wylie & Peterson, the greatest Custom Bootmaker in New York, as the "Four Best" in the All-American line-up.

❶ The first shoe is a new, long, Wingtip Full Brogue Cordovan, designed by Wylie & Peterson. This famous Custom Bootmaker selected Horween's Cordovan because it is the finest quality tanned in America. And today, Arnold Horween authorized us to say that we are the largest users of his Cordovan this season.

❸ In this new Wingtip Scotch Brogue, with an extra heavy, oil-treated sole, we are using the finest quality Imported Scotch Grain, tanned by Martin of Glasgow. It's the best there is and for the last ten years we have cut more of this leather in our factory than any other shoe manufacturer in America.

Compare this great custom bootmaker's original $40 and $50 handmade models with the Regal Reproductions at $5.85.

CHINA DEMANDS THAT JAPAN RECALL TSINGTAO FORCE

"Immediate Satisfaction" Called for at Nanking as Result of Landing of 1000 Marines.

DIPLOMATS HOLD STORMY SESSION

Foreign Minister's Protest to Ambassador About Latest Incident Said to Be "Hotly" Phrased.

By the Associated Press.

NANKING, Dec. 4.—Gen. Chang Chun, Chinese Foreign Minister, last night demanded "immediate satisfaction" from Japan for the landing of 1000 Japanese marines in the Chinese city of Tsingtao.

Gen. Chang summoned Shigeru Wawagoe, Japanese Ambassador, to the Foreign Office and presented three demands:

1. Immediate withdrawal of Japanese troops at Tsingtao.
2. Return of Chinese documents alleged to have been seized by Japanese bluejackets in a raid on Chinese Government offices.
3. Release of Chinese officials reported to have been arrested by Japanese at Tsingtao.

Foreign Office attaches said the meeting of the two diplomats was stormy and said Gen. Chang's protest was "hotly" phrased.

During the interview, Chinese sources said, Kawagoe attempted to revive discussion of the long-pending question of Chinese-Japanese relations. Gen. Chung countered by informing the Japanese Ambassador: "We are not prepared to discuss any Chinese-Japanese issues until Japanese participation in the Suiyuan crisis is withdrawn."

Japanese Say Labor Trouble Led to Landing of Marines.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Dec. 4.—An official navy communique said today that a "serious Chinese labor situation" in Japanese mills at Tsingtao necessitated the landing of Japanese marines to maintain order.

The communique said the commander of the third Japanese squadron warned the Mayor of Tsingtao about an outbreak of strikes and sabotage among the Chinese employes of nine Japanese operated cotton mills but without result.

"So aggravated did the situation become," declared the navy office, "the Japanese mills had to be closed on Wednesday. As the situation threatened to become further aggravated, even resulting in rioting, a landing party was sent ashore to protect the lives and property of Japanese nationals and their other rights and interests. At the same time Chinese authorities were requested to take positive measures to suppress the unrest."

The Domei (Japanese) News agency, in a dispatch from Tsingtao, reported the Governor of Shantung Province, Gen. Han Fuchu, had ordered a unit of armored trains, which had arrived within 15 miles of the city.

Japanese naval authorities at Tsingtao, Domei said, have begun a roundup of all anti-Japanese agencies, raiding branches of the Kuomintang (Chinese Government party).

Those arrested, said the news agency, were turned over to the Chinese city government. Among them was Chang Lokou, a Tsingtao newspaper editor alleged to have directed the strike in co-operation with Communist elements.

Foreign Oil Companies Told to Pay Double Duties.

By the Associated Press.

TIENTSIN, China, Dec. 4.—The East Hopei autonomous Government has notified British and American oil companies that unless East Hopei duties are paid in addition to Chinese customs "such imports will be considered smuggled goods."

The warning was interpreted in some quarters as a Japanese move to extend the Manchoukuo oil monopoly, which forced foreign oil companies to withdraw from Manchoukuo south of the Great Wall.

Suiyuan Defense Forces Hold Back Invading Army.

KWEISUI, Suiyuan Province, China, Dec. 4.—Suiyuan Province defense forces reported today they had resisted an effort by an invading army to recapture the City of Pailingmiao.

Headquarters of Gen. Ju Tso-yi, commander of the Suiyuanese forces, declared 700 attackers were killed.

Times Declares Marriage of The King and Mrs. Simpson Would "Scandalize" Monarchy Express Thinks Ruler Should Be Permitted to Choose—"There Is Way Out," States News Chronicle.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—King Edward and Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson continued to be subjects of editorial comment in London newspapers today.

Marriage between the King and Mrs. Simpson "would scandalize a very large proportion of the nation and Empire and therefore do infinite harm to the whole institution of British monarchy," said the conservative Times.

The newspaper based its statement on the fact "the lady in question already has two former husbands living."

"There are many daughters of America whom he might have married with approval and rejoicing," the Times added. "It would have been an innovation, but by no means an unwelcome innovation in the history of a royal house which is under no obligation in these days to look for a bride in what is described across the Atlantic as some 'hand-picked Princess.'"

"Let King Choose," Says Express.

"The King is free to choose," said the Express, adding: "You must believe that he will choose wisely. The King, through war and peace, strife and stress, has borne his part in the eyes of all men as a son of Kings should do and since he took the cloak of kingship he has deepened the channels of our emotions towards him."

"There is a way out," suggested the liberal News Chronicle. "King Edward should agree to marry Mrs. Simpson in his capacity as Duke of Cornwall or Lancaster, rather than make her Queen of England; at the same time he should acquiesce to an act of exclusion, passed by Parliament, debarring from succession to the throne any heirs of his marriage."

Lessening of the seriousness of the situation was expressed by the Manchester Guardian, which said:

"Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's assurance in the House of Commons that there was no constitutional difficulty may legitimately be read as the present confirmation of the hope all of us have been cherishing—that no direct conflict between the wishes of the King and the advice of his Ministers would arise."

Critics of King Assailed.

Opposition to criticism of the King was expressed by the Daily Mail which asserted the country "resents the one-sided attacks which have been made by censorious critics who have shown an utter want of human understanding, respect and pity."

"Abdication is out of the question," the Mail stated.

The Telegraph said: "It matters in the highest degree, matters radically, matters constitutionally that the first lady in the land shall be untouched by such rumors and reports as of late have been in general circulation throughout the world."

The News Chronicle carried a stream of developing comment in its "Letters to the Editor" column. Many of the writers argued the King should marry the "woman of his choice." New blood is needed in the English royal family, one letter stated, adding "Why not an American to furnish it?" The same writer said the United States, as a democracy is naturally an ally of England's "since we have dropped the Japanese and put them in the arms of Germany."

Laborite Paper's Comment.

The Herald, a Laborite organ, declared the sole dispute concerned constitutional questions and had nothing to do with the King's apparent wish to marry a commoner.

"In the Labor party, marriage with a commoner, if that were the issue, would give much democratic satisfaction," the Herald said. "But that is not the issue. And of all parties, labor must be the most sensitive to constitutional implications of the dispute where the outcome has public consequences between the King and the Government which the people have freely chosen to represent it."

In a front page editorial, the Daily Worker, Communist spokesman, said: "There is no crisis in all this business for the working class. Let the King marry whom he likes. That is his personal business."

The Daily Worker called on Baldwin to resign and let Labor take over the "real burning issues," such as unemployment, the depressed areas and the crisis in Spain.

A similar note was struck in an article on the Worker's editorial page by John Strachey, author of "The Coming Struggle for Power," which said it was "simply a question of whether a rich young English rentier (man of private means) shall marry an American divorcee."

Another editorial in the paper said the affairs of King Edward VII were the commonplace gossip and scandal of the press of the world for years but that his regular appearances at church and "outward conformity to the code laid down by the Bishop of Bradford salved the upholders of morality and royal dignity."

The Sussex Daily News, referring to the situation, asserted "It smacks more of the Balkans than Shakespeare's England.

"The unhappy situation turns on the King's friendship with an attractive American lady of 42 who has been twice married already. Her family claims connections with a Norman house that came over with William the Conqueror but her mother at one time kept a Baltimore lodging house."

Opposite Views by Bombay Papers.

Well-informed circles in London watched with interest India's reaction because the crown is considered the strongest link with the empire.

The Bombay Chronicle, favoring King Edward in the controversy, stated: "The King is trying to render a distinct service to British democracy by proposing as its head to marry democratically and our sympathies are entirely with him."

The Times of India took the opposite view, saying: "If the Crown is to keep its luster undimmed, it must be along the high path of duty set so nobly by the late King-Emperor."

The Melbourne, Australia, Argus paid tribute to the ruler's place in the affections of the people, but said it was impossible to dissociate his individual actions from his responsibilities as a King.

The newspaper Age said only King Edward could relax the tension and while his sacrifice might be unreasonable, it was necessary for the sake of the monarchy.

Comment in South Africa.

The Natal Advertiser of Durban, South Africa, editorially said:

"The crisis should not pass without a loyal and respectful expression of sympathy with His Majesty in this grave predicament." After paying tribute to King Edward for his "magnificent services" to his people and the Empire, the paper declared such a man does not jeopardize the State for any light whim.

The Rand Daily Mail at Cape Town expressed the belief King Edward will "act wisely for himself and for his empire."

"But let us say plainly that such a marriage as is the subject of reports would be utterly unacceptable to South Africa."

"Many of us forget the King is a man like ourselves," commented the Natal Mercury, published in Durban. "We see only the external trappings of his office, seldom giving a thought to the human personality who is never freed from service nor the cares of duty from the moment he ascends the throne until death calls him.

"But the King, although he may be the custodian of his own conscience, is also the custodian of the great traditions attaching to his position. He should not allow certain aspects of his private life to impinge upon his public life."

Germany Forbids Comment.

In Germany, copies of the Muenchner Zeitung were confiscated after it had appeared with the headline "Constitutional Crisis in England—Severe Tension Between Throne and Cabinet." Below the headlines the paper printed a long dispatch from London giving the developments there as well as a summary of the whole case.

It was stated at the Ministry of Propaganda:

"Differences are said to have arisen between the King and the British Government. Inasmuch as the grounds for these seem to be of private nature, the German press waives expression of any opinion on

DELEGATES FILE 25 PEACE PLANS AT BUENOS AIRES

Saavedra Lamas, Nobel Prize Winner, Tells Conferees Roosevelt's Visit Was Providential.

'HIS SPONSORSHIP IS AUGURY OF SUCCESS'

Foreign Minister Also Asserts New World Nations Mustn't Think of Isolation From Europe.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 4.—The Inter-American Conference gave precedence to peace and disarmament proposals today as more than 25 plans were filed at the Secretary-General's office. Chile alone, during the first two days, had introduced 18 plans dealing with the two subjects.

Argentine Foreign Minister Carlos Saavedra Lamas, made head of the steering committee, hailed President Roosevelt as an apostle of peace as he greeted delegates to the first full session of the conference. Saavedra Lamas, Nobel peace prize winner this year, is permanent chairman of the conference.

President Roosevelt's visit to the opening of the parley Tuesday, Lamas declared, "was not only opportune but providential. The peoples who acclaimed him saw in him a triumphal expression of democracy itself.

"An Augury of Success."

"The initiator of this conference and an apostle of peace," we owe to his presence and his sponsorship the moral atmosphere which he has left us and which constitutes an augury of the success of our deliberations."

Democracy, he declared, must form the foundation of inter-American peace and prosperity, along with the economic and cultural welfare of American people and high living standards. Countries of the new world must not think of isolating themselves from Europe.

"We cannot consider the consolidation of peace while limiting its horizons," he declared. "We cannot give way to suppositions of continental isolations, which would be asserting that we do not live on the same planet with the old world."

United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who is scheduled to speak at tomorrow's primary session, listened attentively to a translation heard through earphones.

Replies for Visitors.

Foreign Minister Jose Espalter of Uruguay, replying for the visiting delegations, praised President Roosevelt and urged that the conference, besides strengthening the American peace structure, "prepare solid bases for a new commercial and economic policy to develop our countries among themselves."

A proposal for joint American action against any outside aggression—suggested by President Roosevelt—was laid before the conference last night. Manuel Castro Ramirez, a Salvadorean delegate, said he presented the proposal in collaboration with four other Central American delegations—Gautemala, Honduras, Costa Rica and Nicaragua.

The measure, described as "a treaty of inter-American solidarity and co-operation," provides that "any extra-continental aggression against any American nation should

'NATION'S' CORRESPONDENT IN SPAIN MISSING TWO WEEKS

Louis Fischer Last Heard From in Madrid Nov. 17; No Response to Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — Freda Kirchwey, managing editor of The Nation, said last night that Louis Fischer, the weekly's special correspondent in Spain, has been missing since Nov. 16.

Fischer, who was supposed to cable a weekly story, was last heard from in Madrid, Miss Kirchwey said. She cabled to the War Ministry in Madrid, but received no response.

Formerly a special writer for the New York Herald Tribune and other New York newspapers, Fischer had been The Nation's Moscow correspondent for about 10 years.

SHIP ADRIFT OFF LABRADOR

Radio Message Tells of Plight of Norwegian Freighter in Gale.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The Radiomarine Corporation reported early today that its Chatham (Mass.) station had received the following message from Cape Race, Newfoundland: "Steamer Kastelholm adrift, in heavy swells and strong gales."

The position of the steamer was given as latitude 56.44 and longitude 61.20. Vessels in the vicinity were asked to indicate their positions. The navy yard here plotted the Kastelholm's position as Hopedale Harbor, Labrador, about 300 miles north of Boston. The Kastelholm is a Finnish freighter of 3210 tons. There was no indication whether the vessel was in immediate danger or how many persons were aboard.

FRANCE PLEDGES AID TO DEFEND ENGLAND

Belgium Also Included in Promise of Foreign Minister.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Swift military aid to Great Britain and Belgium —on land, sea and air—was pledged by France today, in the event of unprovoked aggression.

Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos, addressing the French Chamber of Deputies, recalled Foreign Minister Anthony Eden's promise of British support to France, and announced:

"I declare similarly that all the forces of France, on land, sea and air, would spontaneously and immediately be used for the defense of Great Britain against an unprovoked aggression."

Delbos also offered a similar guarantee to Belgium.

AMUNDSEN'S AID FOUND DEAD IN CABIN OF OLD POLAR SHIP

Capt. Oscar Wisting Succumbs Aboard the Fram Which Was Installed in Museum at Oslo.

By the Associated Press.

OSLO, Norway, Dec. 4.—Capt. Oscar Wisting, 65 years old, who was Roald Amundsen's second in command on his polar expeditions, was found dead today in his old cabin on Amundsen's polar ship Fram which had been installed permanently in the Bygoe Museum here.

Wisting was one of the four men chosen by Amundsen to accompany him across the ice to the South Pole in 1910. Death was due to a heart attack.

GERMAN DECREE RATIONS FATS, GIVES WORKERS PRECEDENCE

Retail Dealers Must Supply Lists of Customers So Government May Apportion Supplies.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—Needs of workers take precedence over those of the bourgoisie in a decree rationing fats under the Nazis' four-year plan for economic rehabilitation.

"The consumption of fat by the German people is at present considerably larger than in pre-war times," said the decree, issued yesterday. "Therefore, it is essential that German, hard-working laboring people, standing in the forefront of the four-year plan, should be the first to receive necessary amounts of fats."

Retail dealers must supply lists of their customers to the Government, from which it will be decided how many persons in each household should be served fats. The Government will then apportion available butter, margerine and lard.

ROOSEVELT SAILS FROM MONTEVIDEO ON WAY TO U. S

Cruiser to Refuel at Port-of-Spain, Trinidad—Due to Reach Charleston, S. C., Next Week.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD U. S. S. CHESTER, Dec. 4.—President Roosevelt sped homeward today on the cruiser Indianapolis, which he boarded yesterday afternoon at Montevideo, Uruguay. The ship is expected to dock at Charleston, S. C., next week in time for the President to reach Washington by Dec. 15. The Indianapolis will stop for refueling at Port-of-Spain, Trinidad.

A throng estimated at 600,000 packed the docks for five blocks, under a summer sun, as Roosevelt took leave of President Gabriel Terra of Uruguay. Roosevelt stopped at Montevideo after opening the peace conference Tuesday at Buenos Aires, Argentina. He visited Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, on the way to Buenos Aires.

Receiving Uruguayan and United States newspaper men in his cabin just before the Indianapolis sailed from Montevideo, Roosevelt said he felt his "good-neighbor" policy was no longer merely his, but had been taken up by all the American republics. Hereafter, he declared, it should be called a unanimous Pan-American policy.

Speech at Luncheon.

Before embarking, Roosevelt told President Terra and other officials at a luncheon that "a new era of friendship and confidence among the Americas" had been born at the Pan-American conference here in 1933.

Contrasting problems of former years with those of the present, Roosevelt said:

"None of the fathers of any of our republics had even heard of an eight-hour day, of minimum wages, of protection for women and children, of collective bargaining between employers and employes, of old age security, of modern sanita-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

State Finance Suggestion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AS THE Representative-elect of Morgan County, I read with much interest the article in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, entitled "Will Somebody Show Missouri?" I do not feel competent to point out the entire solution of the State's fiscal policy for the next two years. It is my belief, however, that the State Highway Commission is receiving more funds than are absolutely necessary during these critical years.

In my opinion, the Legislature should cut out the license tax on all cars and trucks, except busses and trucks operated as public carriers, and charge $1 for State registration. It could then pass an act enabling counties to license cars and trucks at rates to be determined by the Legislature. The funds derived from this act by the counties should be used in whole, or in part, as a county road fund and distributed to the various road districts in an equitable manner. The cities should receive all, or part, of the fees paid by their citizens to be used in maintenance of the streets in said cities.

This plan would release large sums of money now raised by property taxes in the several municipalities of the State. With this relief, the various communities could take care of the wants of the needy. Relief of the poor is a local problem and can and should be administered locally. The past several years have demonstrated that a Federal and State system of relief is wasteful and inefficient.

The tax on gasoline should provide sufficient revenue, with the license fees from busses and common-carrier trucks, to take care of the outstanding bonds and interest of the State Highway Commission. In addition, these funds should provide for the maintenance of State highways and a limited amount of new construction.

The State has gone far enough in the building of its highway system to permit a little slacking up. Farmers who pay auto license fees and gasoline tax are obliged to maintain their local roads through poll taxes and property taxes. They are entitled to a fair share of the fees they pay for use on their own roads. The State system of highways is a good thing, although it has enhanced the value of all lands adjacent to them at the expense of the cities and the farmers on the side roads.

We have taken the tourist out of the mud, and now it is about time to lift some of the farmers out of the mud.

Stover, Mo. R. J. MURRAY.

Toward a Landladies' Union.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

REFERRING to the letter entitled "Landlady's Lament": Why not form an alliance of woman house owners and circulate among them a list of all defaulting tenants? This would soon stop the tenant from having two or three months' free rent on the landlord who has to pay his taxes or lose his property.

It is high time to have drastic treatment for those tenants who own automobiles but pay no rent. One of them showed me a bankbook with an entry of $400, but laughed in my face when I asked for the rent. I have to pay my good money to sue him out and have his rubbish hauled away. A VICTIM.

Plight of Small Business.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM a small restaurant owner, having been in business for a number of years in the same block. In past years, my place was the only one in this block and therefore I was able to make a nice living and save a little money. Now, within a distance of a little more than two blocks, there are 12 eating places. The result is, I daresay, that no one is making any money.

One reason for the passing of the little man is the coming of the big chain drug stores and 5-and-10-cent stores, which have very elaborate and up-to-the-minute fixtures, a large variety of foods and prices so low that the little man cannot compete.

I would suggest a zoning law allowing one eating place in each block; the big chain stores should not be allowed to sell food.

Although I am speaking for the restaurant owner, nearly every other line of business is likewise affected. A. O. G.

As It Looks to a Milk Shipper.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AS a farmer and small milk shipper, I would like to reply to Alderman Couplin's letter about the standard milk ordinance.

Mr. Couplin says there can be no compromise where the health of the community is involved, yet what has the City of St. Louis done about the smoke problem—that daily gas attack on its citizens? I know that every time I go to St. Louis I come home with a bursting headache, something that I never have out here in the country. So why worry about a few harmless bacteria in the milk? We raise our children on the same milk we ship to St. Louis, and they do fine on it, even if the doctors do say it's unfit for human consumption.

I wonder how some of the women who have fought so hard to get the ordinance passed would feel if their husbands came home with their last pay envelopes? That is just what the passing of the standard milk ordinance would mean to over 2000 farmers, who, after all, are human beings, even if they don't live in St. Louis.

HEART OR THRONE?

However it ends, the royal romance is historic. Queen, consort or jilted, Mrs. Simpson will walk forever in the procession of the magnificently beloved. So superbly a poetic climax in a century that has exalted realism and affected to thrust aside sentiment as a pagan creed is a triumph for the lyricists of all the ages. The outmoded Byron is the spokesman of the hour.

The world has for months been watching the attention of King Edward to the charming woman from Baltimore. In the beginning, it seemed to be the temporary preference of a confirmed bachelor for a delightful companion. Certainly his majesty's subjects, after a decade or more of sincerest matchmaking efforts, had seemingly become reconciled to his single state. So many purple eligibles had been presented, punctiliously received, gallantly bowed out.

Prince or peasant, "a man's a man for a' that," and in the lexicon of the eternal feminine there is no such word as fail. And an association that may have been widely regarded as an unusual friendship, proceeding along the predestined paths, has flamed finally into an old-fashioned love affair, and an Empire drinks—not an exultant toast, but "a cup of trembling."

It is difficult for us, born and bred in the equality of democracy, to understand the tempest that is sweeping not only England but the whole Empire. Surely a King may exercise the prerogative of the humblest citizen to marry the woman of his choice. Such is the instinctive American reaction. And, after all, with the divinity that doth hedge a King and a lot of other superstitions blown away, it does seem as if the anxiety occasioned by Edward's romance and his apparent determination to assert his individual rights is a jittery throwback to a quaint mythology.

But between David Windsor, the man, and Edward VIII there is a distance so vast as to be measured only by the imponderables. Monarchy to the English "is a social, moral and ceremonial agency and a visible symbol of the unity of the nation . . ." The King, we are informed by Edward Jenks in his authoritative study, "Government of the British Empire," > supplies the personal and picturesque element which catches the popular imagination far more readily than constitutional arrangements, which cannot be heard or seen, and a King or Queen who knows how to play this part skillfully by a display of tact, graciousness and benevolence is rendering priceless services to the cause of contentment and good government.

> Very closely allied to this personal character of the King is the great unofficial and social influence he wields, and not he alone, but the Queen and in a lesser degree the other members of the royal family. Their influence in matters of religion, morality, benevolence, fashion, and even in art and literature, is immense.

The latitude of his personal privileges is sharply defined by the requirements of his office. When his deportment and purpose invite the grave opposition of the Government, the press and the church, when the Prime Minister protests the intention to marry, as Mr. Baldwin is reported to have done, when the church will, reputedly, refuse to accept the lady, a divorcee, as Queen, when public opinion, so far as it is expressed by the press, remonstrates with courtesy but firmness—when, in a word, the King finds himself under the fire of ministerial, clerical and popular judgment, what course must duty prescribe?

What is Edward's prior obligation—his crown or his heart? He knows the troubled state of the world. He knows that Europe is on the edge of an explosion that threatens civilization. He knows the solidarity and force of the British Empire constitute the most steadying influence today for the peace of Europe. If he should abdicate, as has been proposed, he cannot foresee the consequences. If he defies imperial tradition, counsel, entreaty—if he defies the Empire and elects to be not a King but a lover—

Antony tossed Rome away for a kiss.

OUT OF THE DIM PAST.

"Dr. Townsend indicted by Federal grand jury," says a news dispatch from Washington. The name stirs vague memories. Dr. Townsend? Who is that? It all begins to come back from the distant days before the Spanish civil war, Mrs. Simpson and Buenos Aires monopolized the headlines. Had something to do with the election, didn't he? Backed a man from one of the Dakotas named—let's see—oh, yes: Lemke. Whatever became of him?

But why is Dr. Townsend being indicted? It takes a few minutes of pondering. Unless memory fails, he had a plan for saving the country, some sort of pension scheme for the aged; $200 a month and spend it right away. But a man can't be indicted for that; this country still has freedom of imagination. The news dispatch explains: Dr. Townsend's plan was investigated by a House committee; he absented himself and refused to testify.

Lucky thing for Dr. Townsend, that indictment. Without it, the country might soon have forgotten him completely. The committee really did him a favor by its rough questioning, which roused him to walk out on his inquisitors. And the House helped his cause along by voting to cite him for contempt. Whatever the courts do about it now, the doctor and his pension scheme are back in the headlines. His journey to oblivion has been postponed for a while.

ON RED FLANNELS.

A couple of years ago, Grant Wood, the Iowa artist, needed a pair of red flannels to round out and give verity to a canvas of the Saturday night bath, as it flourished 'way back in the '80s. Mr. Wood's operatives scoured the country for two months before they could find what was once a characteristically American garment. The end of the search came in Minneapolis, where a family had just received a pair of red flannels from relatives in Boston who were moving to Georgia. We remarked at the time how fitting it was that so sturdy a garment was not thoughtlessly cast aside, but was kept in the North, where it could fulfill its destiny.

It now appears that red flannels are not so close to extinction as Grant Wood's experience indicated. "You'd be surprised," says E. T. Pickard, of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, "but lots of people still wear them." They, of course, do not enjoy their old vogue, but thousands of Americans cling to them, or vice versa. It is well.

There is a certain rugged nobility about the all-enveloping flaming garment. It is associated with the mighty deeds of the pioneers, with the long, dangerous treks through the forests, with the felling of trees and the making of homes and the hardihood with which our ancestors endured the cold winters. Could Missouri have been settled by people who wore shorts and scanties and teddies and the other ridiculous things that now go under the name of underwear? Could Dan Boone and Sime Kenton have done their stuff clad in pink and violet panties?

Let the wearers of red flannels step forward and receive the accolade for preserving a virile American tradition.

AN IMPENDING CLASH.

It will be interesting to observe the outcome of the forthcoming clash between the Mayors' lobby, headed by Mayor La Guardia of New York City, and WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins, over the latter's order to drop 425,000 WPA workers by Jan. 1.

Hopkins' action is being taken for the sound reason that the requirements of expanding business and industry are absorbing jobless persons and that the Government, therefore, may begin to curtail its emergency activities. This is thoroughly in line with public expectation, but it is highly distasteful to the Mayors because WPA men and money are now being used on numerous projects which otherwise would have to be financed with municipal funds. Many of these projects involve necessary improvements which, prior to Federal work-relief, were considered routine municipal activities.

Critics of WPA have often pointed to this fact as contrary to sound public policy. They have contended that WPA projects should not be such as to relieve municipalities of their ordinary responsibilities, and they have predicted, once the Federal Government attempted to withdraw from the field, just such political resistance as Mayor La Guardia's lobby now proposes to offer. It is, of course, far more expedient to have the Federal Government pay for municipal activities than to finance them as they should be financed, from local taxes.

So the impending clash will have considerable significance. It will be a test of strength whose outcome will have an important bearing on the whole question of Federal emergency expenditures.

WHY THE RELIEF DRIVE FELL SHORT.

Confusion and unwillingness to give, it is evident, caused the United Charities campaign to fall short of its goal. The reports of Tuesday showed $2,115,964 subscribed, or $484,036 less than the $2,600,000 sought. Though the community's economic condition is considerably better than last year, this year's pledges are actually $68,182 below the 1935 total.

Confusion entered in the widespread belief that the Government has assumed full responsibility for relief, and that the Social Security Act's payroll tax somehow takes the place of United Charities subscriptions. Unwillingness to give is shown in comparison with other cities, which discloses that St. Louis ranks low both in number of givers and size of gifts.

The result, of course, is that the 90 relief organizations financed through the joint campaign will again be forced to curtail their activities among the needy. St. Louis should think about the outcome. Can the fallacies attendant on the campaign be dispelled? Can more and larger gifts be obtained? If the answer to these questions is No, then the alternatives will be to cut down on relief to the needy, or to finance this work through taxes.

REDISTRICTING THE CITY.

It is undoubtedly an excellent idea to redistrict the city's 28 wards, as proposed by a new organization known as the Municipal Initiative League. Since the wards were last redistricted, population movements have taken place, giving rise to inequalities of size, and, hence, inequalities of representation in the Board of Aldermen. Some wards, like those in the downtown section, are too small. Others, notably the Twenty-fourth, are too big. The Twenty-fourth has 35,000 registered voters, whereas the Fifth Ward has only 8800.

But the league's plan, logical as it may be, collides with political considerations. Jimmy Miller now controls the Fourth Ward and Senator Kinney is kingpin in the Fifth. Neither of them would care a bit for the surgical operation the league suggests. The notion of Jimmy standing idly by while part of his domain is handed to his enemy, Mike Kinney, and another part is turned over to another enemy, Joe Brogan, must seem laughable to practical politicians.

Of course, the league, unless it is marvelously innocent, knows that redistricting always means a battle with existing political powers. It is never a one-round affair. It goes on and on, collecting popular interest all along the way. Finally there comes a time when the tight little principalities of the Kinneys and the Millers and the Brogans go the way of all flesh. They are knocked out. So, while the league may appear to be hopelessly overmatched at the moment, its proposal will grow stronger as time goes on. It is a good idea, a sound idea, and it will eventually win.

F. D. R. UNDERTAKES A NEW TASK.

In his speech at Montevideo, President Roosevelt said: "It is a great regret of my life that, while with some difficulty I can read a little Spanish, I cannot yet converse in it." He added his hope that, at a future time, when he returns to South America, "I shall be able to speak with all of you in your native tongue."

It will be recalled that, earlier this year, the President delighted a French-Canadian audience by addressing it in French. Now, apparently, he intends to take up the study of Spanish. Just how the overburdened executive of this nation expects to find time for this occupation is something which puzzles us. But it would not surprise anyone acquainted with his amazing versatility to learn a year hence that Mr. Roosevelt had made a speech in Mexico City or Buenos Aires or Santiago in the purest Castilian.

A BAND OF PROPHETS.

The beginning of the twenty-fifth year of Survey Associates, Inc., is a milestone of no little importance in the world of social thought and work. Formed as a co-operative publishing society in New York when the era of Taft was giving way to the New Freedom of Wilson, this pioneering organization began at once to blaze trails on the frontiers of knowledge. As Paul Kellogg writes in the current issue of the Survey Graphic, newspaper headlines today read like some of the titles of articles which the Survey printed five, 10 and 20 years ago. Housing, slum clearance, minimum wages, maximum hours, unemployment insurance, old-age benefits, collective bargaining—these front-page topics of our times have been discussed for years in the publications of Survey Associates. It would be impossible to overstate the service which this organization of men and women of vision has performed in carrying on the non-commercial venture. They have had a hard struggle, but all their efforts are richly rewarded in the realization that as prophets of a better social order they helped shape the course of American life.

'ROUND AND 'ROUND.

Spoils System: A Challenge to Youth

Students in America should have opportunity to prepare for secure careers of public service, as in England, where official business is efficiently conducted by trained workers, says Law School Dean; assails fallacies that perpetuate the spoils system, and urges youth to attack it; sees merit system as aid in preserving democracy.

From an Address by Joseph A. McClain Jr., Dean of the Washington University Law School, Before the Student Body of Soldan High School.

HOW many of you are giving serious consideration to a position in government service in connection with your problem of selecting a career? I think I can quite confidently answer the question for you by saying that very few, if any, of you are considering such a career as your life's work. Yet if this same question should be asked in England of a similar group of students, there would undoubtedly be a good percentage of them who would answer in the affirmative. Why the difference? The answer is not difficult to find.

For over 50 years, England has followed the policy of staffing its public service with young men and women of the finest educational attainments, regardless of political affiliations. To these people, England offers not only an appointment on merit, as distinguished from political pull, but secures for those who prove themselves worthy a life position and a program for advancement that assures security of position and adequate compensation for service rendered.

It is no wonder that English youth, in making a selection for a life's work, gives serious consideration to the public service on the same basis that the professions of medicine, law and others are considered. As a result, not only does England offer career opportunities to youth in the public service, but it also has one of the most efficient personnel systems in administering public affairs that can be found in the world.

It is estimated today that almost one-tenth of the people gainfully employed in the United States are working for some unit of government, Federal, state or local. The total number is estimated at 3,250,000, and the annual payroll for them is approximately four and a half billion dollars. It is also estimated that $250,000,000 is thrown away each year through corruption and stupid personnel in the public service.

Would not one think that, under these appalling circumstances, the people generally would be interested in improving the situation? The answer is that they are interested. Their influence will not be felt in a change of policy, however, until and when the people become sufficiently interested to demand a change. The time is ripe and overdue for such change.

Only nine states and 365 municipalities have the merit system in any form, and even in these instances, the politicians have been too successful in getting around it because of inadequate protection in the laws which should have been more strongly drawn and administered. The picture of our public service is a rather dark one, both in the Federal Government and in the states, with few exceptions. Certainly the picture offers little inducement to the young man or woman who is trying to choose a career.

One bright example of what the merit system can accomplish is that offered by the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice under the direction of J. Edgar Hoover. Mr. Hoover refused to take the directorship until assured that he could select employes without political interference. Consequently, he accepted only graduates of standard law and accounting schools.

The record of what Mr. Hoover and his employes did toward ridding this nation of gangsters and racketeers is too well known to you for me to repeat now. Do you think Mr. Hoover could have succeeded in his program if he had had to accept for service only people who were "politically right"? I fear we would still be hearing the bark of the guns of Dillinger, "Baby Face" Nelson and other gangsters, if we had waited for the good Democratic or Republican ward heelers to come to our rescue. At least that was Chicago's experience, and that of other cities, until Federal intervention.

What explains the failure of the Government to install a merit system throughout its various units? It is submitted that the inertia and lack of action are largely based upon some fallacies in American thinking regarding propositions popularly accepted without critical examination.

The idea that someone should be given a job because of physical disaster or other misfortune is prevalent. It costs much more to maintain these unfortunates as public employes, so often incompetent as they are, than directly to aid them by public funds. This does not mean that they should not receive assistance, but not by means of public office when their only qualification is some misfortune.

Another fallacy is the assumption that "patronage is the price of democracy"; that the parties cannot exist without spoils. This is perhaps the most powerful fallacy in preventing action. There are several answers to this. In other countries, the party system exists without the spoils system, for example, in England.

The truth is, as Theodore Roosevelt once said, "patronage is the curse of politics." It is the selling-out price of democracy, because it turns the political party into a job-brokerage machine. If no party had patronage available, they would be on an equal footing, and perhaps we would get a chance to vote on real issues, free from political job-trading. The parties might even thrive in a finer way under a merit system.

We frequently hear talk in this country about democracy having failed. We had better ask ourselves if democracy has been given a fair chance to prove what it can do through administration by capable and honest public servants, carefully selected. No one doubts that if for many years few men of ability entered the professions of law, medicine or finance, these fields would suffer greatly as a result and finally decay. Yet this is just what is happening in the field of public service, because it is undoubtedly true that our best young people are not being attracted into the government field. It is high time to take the matter seriously, and set about to repair the condition.

There are undoubtedly many loyal and efficient public officers. But they are capable in spite of the system under which they work, and in most instances they do not know how long they can plan their work for the future. In fairness to these men and to the people who are preparing themselves for life, in fairness to the taxpayers and to democratic government, it behooves us to work actively for abolition of the spoils system and substitution of a merit system.

Why a 30-Hour Week?

From the New York Post.

THE 30-hour week is "the paramount objective of the labor movement." So declared the American Federation of Labor in closing its convention at Tampa.

With the purpose of the A. F. of L, the Post is in hearty accord. And the purpose, of course, is re-employment. It is the A. F. of L. theory that, by compelling those who hold jobs to work shorter hours, new jobs will automatically be created for those who are now out of work.

Plausible as the theory may seem, it has obvious flaws. Aside from everything else it is foolish to talk about a 30-hour week—

When we have no idea of the number of employable jobless;

When we have no notion as to the type of employment for which those jobless are fitted;

When we have no reliable figures to show the distribution of the jobless and whether the bulk of them live in regions where they can possibly find employment;

When we have no idea of how much joblessness is occasioned by seasonal unemployment; how much occurs in agriculture; how much is technological, how much is due to the normal shifting of men from job to job.

It would be as reasonable for William Green to ask a tailor to make him a without taking measurements as it is to Uncle Sam to enact a 30-hour week when no one has the faintest idea whether 30-hour week will meet our problem.

Only last week, the Federation of Labor estimated the number of unemployed at 11 000,000. The weekly bulletin of the National Association of Manufacturers claimed that a census would show "less than 5,000,000 without work and seeking work." And the National Industrial Conference Board estimated the number of jobless at 8,975,000.

Why a 30-hour week? Why not a 32-hour week? Or a 28-hour week? Or a 36-hour week? Or even a 40-hour week?

The difference between a 36-hour week and a 30-hour week could have a profound influence upon our whole economic system. Where the former might meet a real need the latter might wreck industry by hamstringing its productive power.

We know that today there are shortages of skilled labor in several lines of business. We know that unemployment distress is greater in some areas than in others. We know that the "Help Wanted" columns in the classified sections of the newspapers have never been so fat since 1929.

A blanket 30-hour week might work irreparable injury to both employers and employes in a business which now faces shortage of skilled labor.

Particularly since during the depression organized labor has cut down sharply on apprentices so that now there are not sufficient men in training to meet the need which may be "just around the corner."

The way to re-employ the millions of jobless is not by a blanket 30-hour week, but by finding out—from the jobless themselves—how they can best be re-employed. The only way to obtain that information is through a census of the jobless. Such a census is a prerequisite to any intelligent attempt to grapple with the problem.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Control of the Boom

IF THE prosperity that has now arrived is to be kept going, it must be kept under the right kind of control.

This is the time when vigilance and foresight are most necessary. For good times are so pleasant that they make for complacency and for carelessness. Yet it is in the good times that things get out of hand, boil up into a boom and then end in a crash.

So it is now, before things are out of hand, that the preventive measures have to be taken. For the longer we wait, the more drastic and the more dangerous will be the measures that have to be taken.

This is not said in order to be alarmist. Things are not out of hand yet. But we are not so far from the time when prices will begin to rise, and then wages, and then prices in a vicious inflationary circle.

Unless the coming boom is regulated promptly and effectively, we shall see a rise in the cost of living accompanied by serious labor troubles. If the boom, the price inflation and the labor troubles are to be avoided, the necessary measures of control will have to be taken this winter.

Perhaps the simplest way for the layman to understand the problem is in terms which, I am afraid, will horrify the financial experts. But the ordinary man who is not familiar with technical monetary theory will not, I think, be misled by looking at the matter in the following way:

In the depression, there was an absence of active purchasing power. For reasons which we need not now attempt to understand, there were not enough buyers in the market. There were not enough buyers of goods, of labor, of transportation, of housing, of services. The essential recovery program consisted in creating buyers.

Two powerful buyers were deliberately brought into the market. Those two new buyers were the Government and foreign capitalists. They created a demand for goods and property which overcame the depression.

Now these same two new buyers, the Government and the foreign capitalists, are continuing to create a demand for goods. If that keeps up, they will push prosperity into a boom, and then when the Government and the foreign capitalists stop, as they will have to stop some time, the boom will collapse.

Perhaps this can be made a little clearer by showing somewhat more definitely how it has worked. I am going to use cruder figures than the technicians use—but they tell the main facts more easily. At the beginning of the Roosevelt administration, all banks in the United States had deposits of approximately 38 billion dollars. On June 30 of this year, they had 51 billions. Now bank deposits are the money used to buy goods and property and securities and to hire labor. So in these years, the money available for buying had been increased by one-third, or 13 billion dollars.

Now where did those 13 billion dollars of new purchasing power come from? They did not come from loans made by the banks to business men and private individuals. For at the end of those three years, the people owed less to the banks than at the beginning. Where then did the new 13 billion dollars come from? About 10 billions came from the deficit of the Federal Government, and the rest came from the gold that has been poured into this country by foreigners and perhaps by some Americans who in the early days took it abroad.

This calls for some more explaining. How did the deficit of the Government create 10 billions of new money in the banks? What happened was that the Government printed bonds and then sold them to the banks. The banks paid for the bonds by giving the Government the right to draw checks on the banks. The Government drew the checks to pay the contractors, the people on relief and others. Those who got the checks spent them at the grocery store, and the grocer deposited the money in his bank. Thus, out of nothing, there was created purchasing power that did not exist before.

That is how 10 billions came into existence, and in describing it I am not criticising the policy. On the contrary, I think it was the right thing to do: the country was violently deflated and it needed to be reflated.

What about the other 3 billions, perhaps 4 billions, which came from abroad? What happened here was that foreigners shipped gold into the United States, got $35 an ounce from the Government and used the American money they got for their gold to buy property in this country. The money they paid Americans for the property was deposited in the banks, where it remained as purchasing power for goods.

This is how, by Government deficits and gold imports, this country has been reflated.

So far so good. But the reflation has gone pretty far. It has gone so far that today the purchasing power already in the banks is greater than in 1929. What is more, the deficits continue to increase, gold continues to come in, and the banks are just beginning to create still more purchasing power by issuing credit to private persons.

Is it not obvious that unless we are to have a boom, a wild speculation in securities and real estate, a very high cost of living, and desperately serious labor trouble, we must at once stop the creation of still more money? Until the physical production of wealth is greatly increased we do not want very much more money than we had in 1929.

That means that the Government must stop creating new money by borrowing from the banks. It means that the import of foreign gold must be neutralized or checked. It means that credit expansion by the banks must be restrained. These are, broadly speaking, the three lines on which action is required.

What kind of action? So far as the Government goes, it must balance the budget in the sense that it stops borrowing from the banks. This is entirely feasible, I believe, and there is good reason to think that the administration intends to do this if only Congress will let it.

In regard to the credit expansion by the banks, the thing can probably be kept under control by raising the reserve requirements and by selling the bonds of the Federal Reserve System in the open market.

In regard to the foreign gold, the easiest measure to take is to "sterilize" it—by having the Treasury borrow the equivalent of the gold imports, and having borrowed it, to bury it temporarily by not spendng the money it borrows. Later, it may be necessary to take more drastic measures, such as reducing the price of gold.

All these precautionary measures, it must be understood, would have to be timed and measured so as to prevent inflation, but not to resume deflation. We are fully deflated now. These measures would merely prevent still more inflation.

There is no reason to think that, if taken early enough, and properly explained to the people, they will disturb the recovery, or end the cheap money which is so necessary to full re-employment, or upset the foreign exchanges which are now fairly staple. Their purpose is not to interrupt the good times today, but to check the inflationary forces which would in two or three years bring us to a boom and then a crash.

CLINIC FOR CHILDREN WITH SPEECH DEFECTS

It Treats Stammering, Lisping and Inability to Talk at All.

Defects of speech of 65 children are under treatment at the Central Institute for the Deaf, 818 South Kingshighway, in a free clinic which directors of the institute think is the only one of its kind in the country.

Features which distinguish it from several other free speech clinics are the extreme youth of the patients (the youngest child is two years old and most of the rest are less than eight) and the methods of treatment employed. Each child receives instruction for a 20-minute period each week from a student teacher under constant supervision.

The number of patients varies during the year, experience has shown during the three years the clinic has been in operation. It is expected that 125 children will be treated this year for stammering, lisping or inability to talk at all.

Allied Ailments.

Closely allied with any speech defect are mental or emotional irregularities which are usually corrected when the child is taught to talk like his normal associates, Miss Mildred A. McGinnis, teacher in charge of the clinic, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter who visited the clinic.

Instructors in the clinic are students who are taking the institute's course in speech pathology which leads to the degree of bachelor of science in education which is conferred by Washington University under an arrangement affiliating the institute with the university.

At present there are six seniors and 14 juniors in the two-year course, which must be preceded by two years of academic study in a college or university. The clinic is to them what the free dental and medical clinics are to dental and medical students in nearly all universities of the country. It affords practical experience in correcting speech defects under the guidance of trained and experienced teachers.

How Instruction Is Given.

From 3 to 5 on Wednesday afternoons and from 9 to 11 on Saturday mornings the children come to the clinic, usually accompanied by their mothers, but sometimes by their fathers or teachers. A registration fee of 25 cents is charged on the patient's first visit to the clinic.

The adult sits beside the child during the treatment period, observing as the teacher painstakingly tries to get the child to make the proper sounds of letters first, then phrases and finally the perfectly enunciated word. This is contrary to accepted psychological practice, according to Miss McGinnis, but the theory is that the parent or teacher can be made an assistant in the treatment, continuing it during the period between visits to the clinic.

In one booth of the large basement clinic room when the reporter called was a 3-year-old boy who never has spoken. The instructor, a young man, was working with him on the letter "m," showing the movements of the lips and tongue.

Nothing much like "m" was audible to the reporter but the teacher said he was making progress. The boy's difficulty was delayed speech or failure to begin talking at the usual age. His intelligence, as rated in the manual performance tests to which he was submitted on entering the clinic, is high, and while his failure to talk at 3 was not particularly serious, it was advisable to train him in order that his development would not be retarded unnecessarily by a speech defect, Miss McGinnis said.

Stammerers Cured.

Several of the children who stammered or lisped, are about to be graduated from the clinic. They were very willing to talk to the reporter and recite poems to show how well they could speak. But they were quite unable to show how they used to talk, and laughed loudly at the imitations Miss McGinnis made of the way they spoke when they came to the clinic.

The clinic is informal, and all the children seemed perfectly happy to be there, except for one or two who were attending for only the second or third time. They were a little solemn and uneasy in the noisy room.

Treatment is fairly simple in the case of children who lisp and have trouble in pronouncing particular letters, according to Miss McGinnis. The letters, alone and in phrases, are written in crayon in a note book and the child looks at the letter as he makes the sound. When one troublesome letter is mastered, another is taken up, until ultimately the proper pronunciation of all the letters and the common words in which they appear is learned.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

ST. LOUIS VISITOR

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

MISS ADRIENNE FABACHER

Of Biloxi, Miss., who is visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Max Feuerbacher, 3551 Sidney street. She is the fiancee of William Vollmer of St. Louis, whom she will marry in April.

MISS JUDITH CARTER OLIVER, Special Maid of Honor at last year's Veiled Prophet ball and Brooke McBlair Payne, whose engagement was announced a little more than a week ago, are to be married at 15 minutes before 5 o'clock this afternoon at Christ Church Cathedral. Bishop William Scarlett, a close friend of the bride's family, will perform the ceremony, at which only a small group of guests will be present. Afterward, the bridal party and a very few friends will greet Mr. Payne and his bride informally at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy W. Oliver of the Price road.

Simple urns of Easter lilies adorn the candle-lit altar and the tall candelabra used in the cathedral's candle-light services will be filled with tapers to illuminate the center aisle.

Miss Leah Oliver, the bride's youngest sister, will be maid of honor, and another sister, Miss Anne, flew home yesterday from Vassar College, where she is assistant professor in the natural science department, to be bridesmaid. They will be gowned alike in apricot-tinted satin, the one frock darker than the other, made with tight bodices and full skirts shirred in front, and short, widely puffed sleeves. Instead of hats they will wear caps fashioned of satin leaves to match their gowns, and will carry copper-tinted roses and maiden hair fern.

The bride, whose father will escort her to the altar and give her in marriage, will wear ivory satin, its high neck corded, and its long princesse lines ending in a train. There are long close sleeves. Mrs. Oliver's rose point lace wedding veil has been combined with tulle for today's bride, who will wear it from a tulle coronet banded in orange blossoms. She will carry roses and lilies of the valley combined with maiden hair fern.

James Keith Payne Jr. is to be his brother's best man, and the bride's brother, Guy Oliver Jr.; Clarkson Carpenter Jr., Theodore Desloge and Edward L. Bakewell Jr., ushers. Four-year-old John Van Riper Oliver will carry his sister's wedding ring.

Roses to harmonize with the bridemaids' bouquets decorate the Oliver home for the informal reception. Guests from out-of-town include Mr. Oliver's sister, Mrs. Stephen Clark Reynolds of Front Royal, Va., who is at his home, and the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Howell Peeples of Washington.

After a brief honeymoon Mr. Payne and his bride will live temporarily with her parents.

Miss Oliver was graduated from the John Burroughs School with the class of 1935, and made her debut last season. She is a provisional member of the Junior League. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Fielding W. Oliver and of the late Mr. and Mrs. John C. Van Riper, and is the niece and namesake of Miss Judith Oliver.

Mr. Payne is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Keith Payne, 6109 McPherson avenue, and is a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fitzhugh Payne and of the late Mr. and Mrs. William McBlair. His alma maters are the St. Louis Country Day School and Princeton University.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira E. Wight Jr., Ladue and Warson roads, will return tomorrow from Chicago, where they have been for the past week. Mr. Wight's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Wight, former St. Louisans who now live outside of Frederick, Md., at their country home, "Hopeland," spent Thanksgiving week with Mr. and Mrs. Ira E. Wight, 42 Westmoreland place.

Members of the school set will be guests of Miss Catherine Weed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh H. C. Weed, Ridgewood road, and Miss Jean Hermann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Hermann, 99 Arundel place, at a holiday dance the night of Dec. 30 at the Bellerive Country Club. The hostesses, both seniors at the John Burroughs School, have sent invitations in verse, inviting their friends for 8:30 o'clock.

Miss Carol McCarthy, sub-debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ross McCarthy, and a sophomore at Vassar College, will entertain at a dinner and theater party Friday night, Jan. 1, in honor of four of the season's debutantes: Miss Claire Angert, Miss Susan Thompson, Miss Frances Catlin and Miss Miriam Wilson. Following dinner at Miss McCarthy's home, the party will attend the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe at the Municipal Auditorium.

Miss Adrienne Fabacher of Biloxi, Miss., who has been visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Max Feuerbacher, 3551 Sidney street, plans to leave for her home Tuesday, Dec. 15. She has been entertained informally during her visit. William Vollmer, her fiance, will visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fabacher, during New Year's week. Miss Fabacher and Mr. Vollmer will be married the middle of April in Biloxi.

The engagement of Miss Jane Moore Ring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ring Jr., 6233 Northwood avenue, and Thomas Francis Schatzman was announced Tuesday by informal notes and telephone messages to close friends. Mr. Schatzman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jules J. Shatzman, 4482 Maryland avenue.

The wedding which will be simple, will take place Saturday morning, Dec. 26, at 9 o'clock at St. Luke's Church. The Rev. Joseph McMahon, pastor, will officiate. Mrs. Henry Ehri, sister of the bride, will be matron of honor, and Gustave C. Cramer will be best man.

Miss Ring attended Sacred Heart Convent and Maryville College. The year following her graduation from college, she was maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball. Her fiance was a student at St. Louis University.

Dr. and Mrs. Anthony B. Day, 107 Aberdeen place, are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. William H. H. Vail of Lake Forest, Ill., who arrived a few days ago. Informal parties are being given in their honor.

Mrs. Day's mother, Mrs. Tom R. Wyles of Highland Park, Ill., will be here Monday to spend a few days with her sister, Mrs. Robert McKittrick Jones, 6 Westmoreland place, before going to the Day home. Mrs. Wyles has a box for the Eric Templeton concert Wednesday night at the Municipal Auditorium for the School of Occupational Therapy.

Miss Patricia Van Schoiack, 56 Crestwood drive, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Van Schoiack, and a freshman at Vassar College, spent the recent Thanksgiving holidays with a classmate, Miss Jane Byron of Philadelphia. They attended the Army-Navy football game there Saturday.

Miss Van Schoiack will arrive home for the Christmas holidays Dec. 19 and the evening of Dec. 29 Mr. and Mrs. Van Schoiack will entertain 150 members of the college crowd at a costume party at their home.

Christmas day, they will have open house for about 50 of Miss Van Shoiack's friends.

YESTERDAY'S mail contained invitations from Mrs. William H. Nolker, 4946 Pershing avenue, to a tea from 3 to 5 o'clock, Tuesday, Dec. 22, at Bellerive Country Club to meet her daughter, Miss Mary Louise. Miss Nolker is making an informal debut during the holidays, while she is home from Smith College. All of the debutantes have been asked to serve. Friends also received an invitation from Mr. and Mrs. Nolker to a ball at Bellerive that same night in honor of Miss Nolker.

Miss Nolker and Miss Elaine Bonnet Meyer, daughter of Mrs. Irma Teichmann Meyer, 7542 Byron place, will share honors at a buffet supper and theater party to the Princeton Triangle Club play Monday night, Dec. 28. About 14 couples have been invited to be guests of Miss Alma Holm, 4914 Argyle place, who is the aunt of both Mrs. Meyer and Mrs. Nolker.

Miss Harriet Edwards, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Edwards, 5870 Clemens avenue, has issued invitations to a tea at her home Christmas eve, from 3 to 5 o'clock, in honor of Miss Muriel Gross, who will be the house guest of Miss Marjorie McCarthy, and Mrs. Robert Turner of York, Pa., who is here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. A. Vesper.

Red and white invitations were sent yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson Nardin, 6253 Westminster place, to a dance at Bellerive Country Club Dec. 21 in honor of their son, Robert Conway Nardin.

Dr. and Mrs. Roland M. Klemme of the Oxford apartments have returned from a two-week visit in New York and New Haven, Conn., where they attended the Yale-Harvard football game and visited Mrs. Klemme's son, Charles Rayhill, a Yale student.

In New York they were entertained by Mr and Mrs. Herbert Mundin, by Mary Servoss, who played here in Tobacco Road and is now with Leslie Howard in "Hamlet," and by Blanche Yurka, whom Dr. and Mrs. Klemme entertained when she was here last month. Later they gave a dinner at the Plaza for their hosts and hostesses.

Last Friday Charles Rayhill attended a party with Miss Dorothy Lee Culver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Culver Jr., a student at Miss Porter's School, Farmington, Conn.; Andrew Bauer and his sister, Miss Adele, who attends Smith College; Howard Bird of London, Miss Betty and Miss Peggy Wing of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Courtland Carrier Jr., a former St. Louisan, at dinner at the Plaza, and Saturday went to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wing.

Miss Alice Jane Meyer, who has been visiting in the East for several weeks, was joined by her father, Edwin R. Meyer, in New York, yesterday. After spending several days at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel they will return home tonight or tomorrow.

Mrs. Reginald Dougherty of Scranton, Pa., arrived a few days ago and will be at the home of her father, Le Grand Jones, 6316 Pershing avenue, until after the marriage of her sister, Miss Marian Elizabeth Jones, and Carl Edwin Kirk, Wednesday night. The wedding will take place at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church at 8 o'clock, followed by a reception at the Jones home.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Kirk of Moultrie, Ga., parents of Mr. Kirk, and other relatives will arrive next week to be present at the wedding.

Mlle. Lucienne Radisse, violincellist, will be in a joint recital with Gari Shelton, pianist, at the Wednesday Club Monday night at 8:30 o'clock. Accompanist for Mlle. Radisse will be Mrs. David Kriegshauser.

The concert is sponsored by the Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Society, the Junior Women's Committee, and the Young Men's Auxiliary. The hosts and hostesses are: Dr. Robert W. Bartlett, Lon Hocker Jr., Dr. Frederick Jostes, Max Putzel, Jay Rice, Mrs. Harry Johansen, Miss Katherine Mahaffey, Miss Nancy Mitchell, Miss Helen Pauley, Miss Kate Davis Pulitzer, Miss Elsie Rauh and Mrs. Carl Schlapp.

Mlle. Radisse will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Vladimir Golschmann, old friends of the artist, during her stay here.

David McElroy of New York will arrive here to spend Christmas with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Finley McElroy, 23 Portland place.

PUBLIC SALE OF TICKETS FOR BALLET RUSSE DEC. 14

Subscribers and Guarantors to Have Last Chance for Reservations Monday.

The management of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra announced today that Monday would be the last day on which season subscribers and guarantors may reserve seats in advance of the general sale for the performances of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carol at the Municipal Auditorium, Jan. 1, 2 and 3. The public sale will start Dec. 14.

There will be four performances in the three days, with matinees on Jan. 2 and 3 and evening performances on Jan. 1 and 2.

Five new productions will be presented this year, including a ballet interpretation of Berlioz's "Symphonie Fantastique" in five movements; "The Afternoon of a Faun," danced to Debussy's musical poem of the same name; "Gypsy Dances," from the Russian opera, "Rousalka"; "Le Pavilion," with music by Borodin," and "Cimarosiana," with music by Domenico Cimarosa.

To Entertain Legion Commander.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Dec. 4.—Final arrangements have been made to entertain American Legion National Commander Harry W. Colmery here Dec. 11. Colmery will speak at noon to service clubs and at 8 o'clock to the public at Houch Field House. An informal dinner is also on the program.

Walter O'Keefe Quits Saturday Program.

Walter O'Keefe has resigned as master of ceremonies of the Saturday Night Party on KSD and the WEAF networks. It is said in New York that he will not take part in the broadcast of the program tomorrow night.

It has been reported of late that O'Keefe was having differences with the producers of the broadcasts, particularly over the way in which the weekly scripts were written.

His place on the program probably will be taken by "guests" stars from week to week.

SAMUEL S. CARLISLE DIES; FORMER ST. LOUIS GRAIN MAN

Suffers Cerebral Hemorrhage at St. Joseph; Funeral Services to Be Here.

Samuel S. Carlisle, former St. Louis grain dealer, died last night of a cerebral hemorrhage in St. Joseph, Mo., where he was a sales manager for the Archer-Daniels-Midland Co. He was 58 years old and had resided for the last 10 years in Kansas City.

A native St. Louisan, he was associated with his father, the late David Carlisle, in the grain business here. He formed his own company and was in business in Omaha, Neb., from 1914 to 1924. He was then associated here and in Kansas City with the Continental Grain Co.

Surviving are his wife, Charlotte; a daughter, Virginia; a sister, Mrs. George G. Gambrill of St. Louis, and a brother, David Carlisle, of Los Angeles. Funeral services will be at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Wagoner mortuary, 3621 Olive street, with burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

13 HURT IN TROLLEY ACCIDENT

Detroit Street Car Jumps Track and Hits Telephone Pole.

DETROIT, Dec. 4.—Thirteen persons were injured, four of them seriously, when a Detroit street car jumped the track, turned over on its side and hit a telephone pole here last night.

The conductor suffered skull and back injuries. The motorman told police the brakes failed to hold as he applied them on approaching the curve.

Canadian Papers Express Concern Over Outcome of Dispute.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 4.—Canada's press, hitherto voluntarily reticent concerning Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson and King Edward, spoke out today.

The Toronto Globe and Mail stated its position plainly, saying: "The basis of the whole dispute is whether Mrs. Wallis Simpson is worthy of this position (as Queen) although there is not authoritative evidence of His Majesty's intentions.

"The empire has moved too far from the old ideas of royal unions for the question of a commoner to raise such an issue. The simple facts are that Mrs. Simpson is an American twice divorced, who was introduced to the British people as a notorious expatriate.

"These are the circumstances which carry actions attributed to the King out of the realm of private affairs and offend the standards circumscribing his position as the constitutional sovereign."

The controversy between the ruler and the Cabinet has arisen, the Winnipeg Free Press declared, "because the Government of Great Britain are proceeding to define the relations between the King and Parliament in a field where these have hitherto been indefinite and shadowy."

"Anything which touches its (the throne's) dignity or honor is a matter which directly concerns the whole British commonwealth," said the Halifax, N. S., Chronicle.

Prompt action to settle the dispute was urged by the Montreal Star which asserted "untold mischief is resulting from the spate of rumors that are flooding foreign nations everywhere."

"No one need worry about the dominions," the Star asserted. "They can face the rough with the smooth as well as the mother country. But it is not a situation which can be allowed to continue with equanimity."

The Winnipeg Tribune said Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin "is right," and commented: "The King, as the King, must hold high the trust his father passed on to him. The throne of England must continue to stand for all that is best in the traditions of England and the empire."

The Ottawa Journal said: "In this particular trouble between the Cabinet and the King the people of Canada can have but one concern. That concern is involved in a realization His Majesty, if he is to remain on the throne, must take the advice of his advisers."

The Ottawa Citizen raised the question of the difficulty of separating the King's public position and his private life and suggested a reawakening of British personal freedom might result.

"It is to be hoped," the paper said, "that His Majesty does find it possible to remain on the throne even at great personal sacrifice....

"Whatever the King's decision, it may be taken as certain that His Majesty is starting a train of thought that will lead to a searching of British conscience in other directions."

Irish Times Hopes King Won't Let Duty Be Outweighed.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Dec. 4. — The Irish Times, Unionist organ, expressed the hope today King Edward would not allow his personal affections to outweigh his duty to the empire and the church. If he does, the paper said, "the religious feelings of the Irish people whatever creed they may profess will be sorely wounded."

The paper, referring to "the gutter press of America which has been excelling itself in vulgarity" said the Irish press refused to publish the rumors previously because of decent reticence and the Free State's interest under the statute of Westminster.

PROPOSAL OF UNIFORM LABOR LAWS IN 7 CENTRAL STATES

Program Includes Workmen's Compensation Laws Covering Occupational Diseases.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The Midwest conference of labor commissioners adopted a program yesterday proposing the enactment of uniform labor laws in Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, Nebraska, Michigan and Kansas. Legislation suggested included:

Workmen's compensation laws covering accidental injuries and occupational diseases.

Laws limiting working hours of children 14 to 16 years old to four hours a day, between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. with a bar on hazardous occupations; and laws permitting the employment of children 16 to 18 years old only if they are employed regularly as apprentices in some trades.

Uniform laws covering hours of labor, wages and working conditions for all persons.

FUNERAL OF A. H. DRUNERT

Services Tomorrow for Former Legislator From Jonesburg.

Funeral services for A. H. Drunert, attorney of Jonesburg, Mo., and former State Senator, who died of the infirmities of age yesterday at St. John's Hospital, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Methodist Church in Jonesburg. Mr. Drunert, who entered the hospital Sunday, was 76 years old.

Born in Truxton, Mo., he was admitted to the bar in 1887. He was elected to the House of Representative, of the State Legislature in 1904 and to the Senate in 1906. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Felista Drunert, and a brother, Dr. Lyon Drunert of Truxton.

SISTER IGNATIA MULLEN BURIED

Former Rosati Kain Teacher Died Wednesday After Long Illness.

Funeral services for Sister Ignatia Mullen, a former teacher at the Rosati Kain High School, who died Wednesday at St. Mary's Hospital after a long illness, were held today at Nazareth Convent, on Forder road, in St. Louis County, with burial in the convent cemetery.

A native of Carsonville, Mich., Sister Ignatia, who was 53 years old, had been a member of the Sisters of St. Joseph for 25 years. She taught at Rosati Kain for 12 years before going to Catholic University in Washington, D. C., where she took her M. A. degree in religion last June. She had been living for the past six months at the mother house of the Sisters of St. Joseph, 6400 Minnesota avenue.

Five Candy Firms Cited.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. — The Federal Trade Commission announced today it had ordered five companies and two individuals "to discontinue selling candy so packed and assembled that sales to ultimate purchasers are made, or may be made, by means of a lottery, gaming device or gift enterprise."

INTERNATIONAL ARMY URGED BY DR. GARNER

In Speech at Missouri U., He Advocates Collective Defense Against Dictators.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 4.—Ultimate destruction of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini through their own pyramiding self-seeking immorality; and a powerful armed police force among peace-inclined nations as the only means to lasting peace were envisioned here today in an address by Dr. James W. Garner, noted authority on international affairs.

Dr. Garner is head of the University of Illinois department of political science, former president of the American Political Science Association, president of the International Institute of Public Law and at one-time Carnegie Foundation visiting professor to Europe. He addressed an audience of 1500 as a part of arts and science week which brought many Missouri educators here for a conference.

Dr. Garner saw only war as the immediate European prospect, but held out some hope that "swashbuckling, drum-beating, Caesar-worshipping dictators" might "keep running amuck so badly their own people will refuse to follow. I feel certain that in the end they are going to destroy themselves."

Describing the current European situation, Dr. Garner asserted that "It has been likened by man to a volcano which might erupt at any time. I think it is better called a powder magazine in which three or four lunatics are running around with lighted torches. There is no place in Europe secure and safe—except Iceland."

"I believe," Dr. Garner declared, "that if all the nations which opposed aggression had imposed an airtight embargo against Italy, Mussolini would have been obliged to give up. The threat of more force still is the only factor which can control such an aggressor nation. It is the same as the community where there are individuals to whom only the force argument appeals. That is the reason why we have police, the judges and militia."

Saying that those who "expected Utopia got only Ethiopia" from League of Nations' efforts, Dr. Garner added that "everybody in Europe knows that when Hitler is ready he will annex the German part of Czecho-Slovakia. There are no questions of morality or right with Hitler; only the matters of power and expediency."

Explaining that the whole basis of international security by pacts and treaties has been "undermined" through repeated flouting by Mussolini, Hitler, the Japanese and others, Dr. Garner, still pleading for a powerful collective army among non-aggressor nations to enforce peace by war, said:

"Nations must learn if they want peace, they must pay a price for it. It is not to be obtained simply by signing treaties and pacts. We already have a network of treaties and pacts. From them we have nothing but insecurity."

Pointed answer to Gov. Park's recent criticism here of the State Teachers' Colleges as "little state universities in competition with the State university" was made in an address by President Uel W. Lamkin of the Maryville State Teachers' College. Although Dr. Lamkin did not name the Governor, there was no doubt he was replying to Gov. Park's remarks in his address here Nov. 21.

"I think it is very dangerous," Dr. Lamkin said, "for people who know nothing about the teachers' colleges and what is going on in them to proclaim in the newspapers through the State criticisms of them. It is not the intention of the teachers' colleges to invade the liberal arts field and they are not liberal arts colleges.

"The teachers' colleges are not universities, little or big, nor are they seeking to be universities. They do not offer professional courses in law or medicine or agriculture or business or engineering or journalism, nor do they grant degrees in any of these fields."

CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATES FILE CAMPAIGN EXPENSES

Dyer Spent $1998, Wiehe $589, Anderson $1559 and Rosecan $1794.

L. C. Dyer, Republican, defeated for Congress in the Eleventh District, spent $1998 in his campaign, according to a report filed yesterday with the Recorder of Deeds. Principal items of expense were a $608 donation to Republican City Committee members and ward workers and $500 to the City Committee.

Harry E. Wiehe, Republican, defeated for Congressman of the Thirteenth District, filed a report showing total expenditures of $589, including a $250 contribution to the Republican City Committee. He also listed receipts of $250 contributed by friends for his campaign.

C. Arthur Anderson, Democratic Congressman-elect in the Twelfth District, spent $1559 in the campaign and his Republican opponent, Harry P. Rosecan, $1794, according to reports filed in the Recorder of Deeds office at Clayton.

Other expense accounts filed at Clayton included the following: Henry Beckman, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Sheriff of St. Louis County, $1106; Dr. Chester A. Poe, Republican, defeated for Coroner, $1311; Circuit Judge Fred E. Mueller (Rep.), defeated for re-election, $660; Constable Joseph L. Doran Jr. (Dem.), re-elected, $279; Andrew Tegethoff (Dem.), defeated for Constable, Clayton Township, $233; St. Louis County Democratic Campaign Fund Committee, receipts and expenditures, $3806.

E. ST. LOUIS WOMAN ARRESTED AS ACCOMPLICE IN MURDER

Mrs. Billie Butler Held on Indictment in Shooting of Walter Welch Oct. 2.

Mrs. Billie Butler, 36 years old, 206 North Third street, East St. Louis, was arrested yesterday under an indictment, returned a week ago in the East St. Louis City Court, charging her with being an accomplice in the murder of Walter Welch, transient Canadian war veteran, last Oct. 2, in front of 225 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis.

Welch, a bystander, was fatally shot and Ernest Tharp, a barber, was wounded when shots, believed by police to be intended for Tharp's brother, were fired from an automobile occupied by three men and two women.

Mrs. Butler was arrested shortly after the shooting, suspected of being one of the women in the car. Police said she named those with her, but subsequently refused to acknowledge her statement before the grand jury, which then returned the indictment against her.

Marvin Bohn, 1216 South Sixth street, St. Louis, also is being held, charged in an indictment with Welch's murder.

Woman Jailed for Drunkenness.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 4.—When Mrs. Belle Cotton, 65 years old, of Vincennes, Ind., came here yesterday to visit her son, George Daffron, in the county jail, police arrested her on a drunkenness charge and placed her in the city jail, across the street. Daffron, arrested Sunday near Elnora, is awaiting trial here on charges of vehicle theft, kidnaping, robbery, burglary and automobile banditry.

JANITOR SHOT IN THE LEG BY PROWLER IN BASEMENT

Walter Deshay, 75, Negro, Suffers Flesh Wound at 426 Lake Avenue.

Walter Deshay, 75-year-old Negro janitor at 426 Lake avenue, suffered a flesh wound in the right leg early today when he was shot by an unidentified assailant as he entered the basement of the building.

He was found about 8 a. m., three hours after the occurrence, by his nephew and helper, Eugene Harris, who said Deshay was unable to ascribe a motive for the shooting.

Deshay was beaten about three years ago, Harris said, in the course of a dispute over organization of a janitors' union.

ADMITS FAKE MAGAZINE SALES

Police yesterday arrested in South St. Louis a man who, they say, admitted operating a fake magazine sales business since last July.

The prisoner stated, according to police, that he obtained sums ranging from 25 cents to $1.98 in a door-to-door solicitation for a magazine of national distribution, which he had no authority to sell. His arrest was caused by a woman who paid him 80 cents and then became suspicious. She notified police, who picked up the man in the 5400 block of Blow street. Warrants charging obtaining money by false pretenses will be sought.

TULANE U. DELETES ARTICLE ON LOUISIANA RED-BAITING

Press Stopped to Take Reprint From Post-Dispatch Out of Student Paper.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.—The news article published recently in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch on "red-baiting" in New Orleans, including references to three Tulane University professors, was deleted from this week's issue of Tulane's student periodical, "Hullabaloo," after the editor had been called before the university's acting president, Prof. Robert L. Mennet. Prof. Mennet learned of the article and talked to the editor, Donald Schulz, so late that 500 printed copies of the paper had to be destroyed in the printing office. The paper was made over and filled with reprint.

The Glendy Burke Literary and Debating Society unanimously adopted a resolution opposing all censorship of the university's press and urging that articles suppressed from "Hullabaloo" be printed in circulars.

The article which was to have been reprinted from the Post-Dispatch was headed "St. Louis Paper Defends Drs. Swearingen, Noxon, Allen." It was accompanied by an editor's note, written by Schulz, which declared that certain Tulane professors had been "branded as Reds" and subjected to many attacks and that "now, for a change, someone has come to their defense."

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER MURDERED IN OHIO HOME

Canton Police Seeking Third Husband of Elder Woman Who Was Killed With Hatchet.

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, O., Dec. 4.—The bodies of Mrs. Minnie Long, 40 years old, and her daughter, Virginia Pyatte, 18, were discovered today in their apartment. Police Chief Ira Manderbaugh described the death as double murder and said he was seeking Sherman Long, Mrs. Long's third husband.

The girl's body was found early today but it was not until late this morning that an autopsy disclosed a bullet wound in her temple. Her mother's body was discovered this afternoon. She had been killed with a hatchet. Police said they missed it in a first search of the apartment because lights were out and the body was concealed under a bed.

ORPHAN, 14, SHOOTS HERSELF

Says She Did It "Because People Think I'm Dumb."

GARY, Ind., Dec. 4.—Virginia Bidell, 14-year-old orphan, lay in a hospital here today in serious condition with a bullet wound in her abdomen. She said she shot herself "because people think I'm dumb."

She shot herself at the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Don Shirley, near Cedar Lake.

M'KITTRICK'S VIEW ON COURT ORDER TO OLD AGE BOARD

He Says Decision Raising Pensions of Two Is Final and of Great Importance.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 4.—Attorney-General Roy McKittrick commented today that the order of Circuit Judge F. J. Frankenhoff of St. Joseph increasing the old age pensions of two recipients was of great importance.

"The decision definitely established the Circuit Courts' statutory power to fix the amount of the pensions," McKittrick said.

The ruling is final, the Attorney-General added, pointing out that under the Missouri law there can be no appeal from the decision.

Judge Frankenhoff increased one man's pension from $10 to $23 a month, and the other's from $12 to $30 a month. It was the first Circuit Court ruling on the amount of pensions since the old age assistance act went into effect Aug. 27, 1935.

Allen M. Thompson, State Old Age Assistance Commissioner, advised of the decision yesterday, said he would "naturally follow the order."

PETITION TO RECALL MAYOR OF SEATTLE HELD DEFECTIVE

City Counsel Says Signers Failed to State Postoffice Addresses; 5 Charges Ruled Out.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 4.—Corporation Counsel A. C. Van Soelen ruled yesterday that a petition containing recall charges against Mayor John F. Dore was defective and that but one allegation—relating to the recent Post-Intelligencer newsroom strike—constituted ground for a recall.

The petition was held defective because signers failed to state their postoffice addresses. Five charges were ruled out on the ground they did not constitute malfeasance or misfeasance of office.

Dore was accused of encouraging a crowd around the Post-Intelligencer building the night the strike started, Aug. 13, Van Soelen said.

PACIFIC MUTUAL INSURANCE PLAN APPROVED BY COURT

California Judge Says in "Commercial Sense of Word Company Is Not Insolvent."

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—Superior Judge Henry M. Willis approved the California Insurance Commissioner's plan for rehabilitation of Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. yesterday. He also upheld constitutionality of previously untested sections of the State's insurance code.

Judge Willis declared that "in the commercial sense of the word, the company is not insolvent."

All attorneys for opponents of the Carpenter plan entered exceptions to the decision to lay foundations of possible appeal.

Insurance Commissioner Carpenter took over the company, which has 340,000 policyholders in 42 states, July 22, after finding that reserves for non-cancellable health and accident policies were legally inadequate.

TWO CONVICTED OF VIOLATING SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT

Found Guilty in Pittsburgh of Part in Manipulating of Five Gold Mining Companies.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 4.—Melvin S. Patterson and W. Homer Porter were convicted in Federal Court here yesterday of violating anti-stock rigging sections of the Securities Exchange Act. They were found guilty of participating with Robert B. Vaughan in the manipulation of five gold mining companies.

Vaughan said he was the ring leader in the operations which attorneys said cost persons in the Pittsburgh area $90,000. A directed verdict of acquittal had been ordered for a fourth defendant, E. M. Garwood.

LEE DE FOREST, INVENTOR, FILES BANKRUPTCY PETITION

Lists Liabilities of $103,000 and Assets of $390; Sued for $10,000 Rent.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 4.—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal District Court yesterday by Lee de Forest, inventor of more than 300 radio, talking picture and radio-telephone developments.

He listed liabilities totaling $103,943 and assets of $390. The bankruptcy plea followed a real estate firm's suit for $10,000 back rent. The principal claim by creditors was $50,000, due the Railway Co-operative Building & Loan Co. of New York City.

PARK APPOINTS DR. H. S. GOVE

Linn (Mo.) Man Acting State Health Commissioner.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 4.—Gov. Park formally appointed Dr. H. S. Gove of Linn, Mo., now State Director of Child Hygiene, as acting State Health Commissioner today to succeed Dr. E. T. McGaugh, who resigned after an investigation into his handling of State and Federal health funds.

Park said Dr. Gove will serve until Gov.-elect Lloyd C. Stark is inaugurated. Dr. Harry Parker of Warrensburg, Mo., has the indorsement of T. J. Pendergast, Kansas City Democratic leader, for the permanent appointment.

Driver's Sight Poor; in 4 Crashes.

PEORIA, Ill., Dec. 4.—After being in four automobile accidents within 24 hours police arrested Charles W. Brown, 73 years old. They learned that his eyesight was impaired and that he had been drawing a blind pension since 1932.

provoke uniform and joint action."

President Roosevelt, in his address at the first session of the conference Tuesday, pictured American countries standing "shoulder to shoulder" to resist any foreign attack.

The Central American project must be approved by divisional committees and then the Steering Committee before getting to the floor of the parley at a full session.

Members of conference delegations were guests last night at a banquet given by President Agustin Justo of Argentina.

"The most solid foundation for social order and external peace consists in assuring the highest standard of living to the people," Justo declared in an address.

Peace Petition Presented.

A peace petition signed by more than 1,000,000 women in American nations was presented today to the peace conference. Ten women who flew from the United States to Buenos Aires took the petition with them.

Mrs. Burton T. Musser of Salt Lake City, an American delegate, presided over the special session as Mrs. Caroline O'Day, United States Congresswoman from New York, presented the document on behalf of the people's mandate committee to end war.

Regular delegates to the parley sat in their assigned place in the Chamber of Deputies—where the full sessions are being held—while the women's delegation occupied honor seats.

Besides Mrs. O'Day the visiting women included Miss Mabel Vernon and Mrs. Cecil I. McReynolds of Washington, D. C.; Countess Alain de Pierrefeu of Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Albert Lytle Deane of White Plains, N. Y.; Miss Eva Garrette of New York City; Mrs. P. J. Simmen of Buffalo, N. Y., and Mrs. E. W. Frost of Texarkana, Ark.

COLUMBIA CITY ATTORNEY WANTS GAS QUALITY CHECKED

Says Justification of Numerous Recent Complaints Should Be Determined.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 4.—George Spencer, city attorney, has announced that, because of complaints of consumers here, he will request the Columbia City Council to establish a system under which a constant check may be kept on the pressure and quality of gas being sold in this city by the Missouri Utilities Co.

"I find," Spencer said, "that so far as the public is concerned, it has no means of knowing the quality of gas it is paying for. It is a practical impossibility for each individual consumer to check this problem.

"I do not raise this question publicly," Spencer added, "because of any thought that the gas furnished is not proper. However, something should be done to determine the justification of complaints."

Accident Verdict in Auto Fatality.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, Mo., Dec. 4.—A Coroner's jury yesterday held that Gilbert Blackburn, Audrain County farmer who died yesterday after being struck by a car on Highway 54, met his death by accident. E. C. Stevens, Negro, of Columbia, Mo., driver of the car that struck Blackburn, was released from police custody after the verdict was returned.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

A cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. You can relieve them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery that aids nature to soothe and heal the infected membranes and to relieve the irritation and inflammation as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

Medical authorities have for many years recognized the wonderful effects of Beechwood Creosote for treating coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations. A chemist worked out a special process of blending Creosote with other ingredients so that now in Creomulsion you get a real dose of Beechwood Creosote which is palatable and can even be taken frequently and continuously by adults and children. Thousands of doctors now use Creomulsion in their own families and practice, and druggists rank Creomulsion top because in this genuine, original product you can get a real dose of Creosote so emulsified that it goes to the very seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles, especially those that start with a common cold and hang on and on. Get a bottle of Creomulsion right now from your druggist, use it all up as directed and if you fail to get satisfactory relief, he is authorized to refund every cent of your money. Get Creomulsion right now.

BROTHERS MURDERED; ONE'S FINGERS CUT OFF

Minnesota Farmer, 71, Apparently Tortured by Robbers in Search for Money.

By the Associated Press.

PRESTON, Minn., Dec. 4.—Knute and Severt Oleson, bachelor farmers, were found murdered yesterday, apparently by robbers.

Neighbors found the body of Severt, 71 years old, in the farmhouse, his throat slashed. Three of his fingers had been cut off, establishing, the authorities said, that he had been tortured by robbers attempting to find money on the premises.

The body of Knute was found in the farmyard, near a strawstack. He had been shot. The authorities think he entered the house while the robbery was in progress Wednesday evening, and was shot by the robbers.

A wallet in Knute Oleson's pocket contained $830.

E. ST. LOUIS POLICE SAY MAN ADMITS BREAKING INTO TAVERN

Confesses Robbery After Arrest on Charge of Driving Through Stop Signs.

A man arrested early today by East St. Louis police, after he had driven an automobile through two stop signs, admitted, police said, that he had broken into a tavern at 3528 State street, East St. Louis, shortly before being arrested, and had taken a slot machine, a pin ball machine and a quantity of liquor and candy.

Police reported that they found in the automobile a tin box containing about $9 in nickels. The man told police, they said, that he had taken the devices to Forty-second street and Lake drive, where he broke them open and took the coins. The automobile he was driving had been stolen last night, police said.

METAL TITANIUM FOUND IN SPACE BETWEEN STARS

Mount Wilson (Cal.) Astronomers Announce Identification Made by Spectroscope.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Discovery of titanium, a common metal of the earth, in the almost complete vacuum between stars was announced yesterday by the Carnegie Institution. Astronomers of the institution's observatory at Mount Wilson, Cal., reported that with the aid of the 100-inch telescope and spectrograms they had identified the element in the vast dust clouds of the nebula of orion. Previously calcium and sodium had been discovered between the stars.

39 GERMAN OPPONENTS OF HITLER LOSE CITIZENSHIP

Fugitives' Property Confiscated and 55 of Their Relatives Also Disenfranchised.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—German citizenship of 39 fugitive opponents of Adolf Hitler's Government were canceled yesterday and their property was confiscated for "disloyalty to the Reich and its people." Fifty-five relatives, most of them wives and children, also were disenfranchised.

Prominent among the 39 were Mathias (Brax) Braun, Socialist, who led the plebiscite fight against return of the Saar to Germany; Thomas Manin, novelist; Wilhelm Koenen, Communist and former Reichstag member.

Of Koenen, a Government communique observes that "he was prominently active in an unsuccessful boycott movement against holding the Olympic games in Berlin."

Of a number of journalists, and other writers, the communique said they fled to France or to Czechoslovakia and there published "Hate Filled Pamphlets," poems and novels against Germany.

Nine of the 39 were identified as Jews, among them Alfons Goldschmidt, "prominent member of numerous international Communist organizations," who was said to have delivered lectures in many American cities "wherein he attempted through crude falsehoods about internal affairs in Germany to foment feeling against the Reich."

STAY-IN STRIKE DELAYS THIRD DETROIT PLANT

Division of Ford Factory Affected but Settlement Is Reported Near.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Dec. 4.—Several hundred "sit-down" strikers marched today from the Midland Steel Products Company plant, which they had occupied for a week, and union leaders said an end of the strike was "in sight." Evacuation of the plant disclosed only about half of the 1200 men who originally started the "stay in" strike had remained inside.

Joseph M. Jacobs, general counsel for the United Automobile Workers of America, said the inside pickets would join other company employes in a mass meeting to vote on terms for a settlement and said he had no doubt that the men would accept the proposals.

The Ford Motor Co. announced yesterday that the assembly line in the Lincoln-Zephyr division would be idle unless it was able to obtain frames overnight. Pickets at the Midland plant remained on guard to prevent the removal of frames completed before the strike was called last Friday.

The first to be affected by the shortage was the Chrysler Corporation, later the Briggs Manufacturing Co. reduced its operations because Chrysler needed no more bodies until it could get additional frames.

The United Automobile Workers of America called the strike, demanding a 10 per cent wage increase and abolition of piece work. Union leaders said the management has agreed to the second request, and conferences have been held over the first.

James E. Dewey of Washington and A. L. Faulkner of Cleveland came to Detroit to represent the Department of Labor in the negotiations.

SEC CHIEF DISCUSSES DUTIES OF BUSINESS

Tells Investment Bankers That Election Result Emphasizes Responsibility.

By the Associated Press.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 4. — James M. Landis, chairman of the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission, told the Investment Bankers' Association of America today that industry and finance should accept responsibility for control of recovery to prevent repetition of evils of the last boom.

In his first public speech since the election, Landis added, business should recognize its own responsibility in light of the vote which returned President Roosevelt to office.

"Any interpretation of our national aims as looking for the return of the shallow prosperity of boom days is false," he said.

"You cannot forget that the last recovery was your recovery and that it almost destroyed you. Fairly or unfairly, you became the scapegoats of a bewildered and discouraged people.

"This new recovery, certainly in its initial stages, will also be your recovery. Its responsibilities are now yours.

"How well you will discharge them is your challenge.

"If the mandate of last November means to us that we must not fail, more clearly does it mean to you that you dare not fail."

Landis held the "verdict of Nov. 3" reflected "enthusiastic acceptance of new concepts of what the aims of an enduring governmental system must be."

The decisive vote, he predicted, will find expression in new legislation and administration of laws relating to control of recovery forces.

"Questions as to what can be done to prevent a stock market boom used to be grimly academic," he continued. "Now throughout the country there is an unmistakable concern as to whether our commission or the governors of the Federal Reserve System, or both, have the power to check the recurrence of 1929."

"The intensity of our present sellers' market is in danger of bringing about a subtle dulling of responsibility," he said.

"If we fail," he said, "others will take charge. But have no doubt, the objective of our national life in this field will be attained.

"We cannot accept the conception of the place of speculation in our security markets that built a justification for the prices of the late twenties. Pure speculation we can tolerate at the race track or elsewhere, where it cannot stalk under the enticing garb of investment."

TWO AMERICAN VICE-CONSULS PERMITTED TO WED FOREIGNERS

First Such Action Taken Since Issuance of Order by President.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—R. Walton Moore, acting Secretary of State, announced today that Elvin Seibert of Elkhart, Ind., vice-consul at Shanghai, China, and Myles Standish of New York, vice-consul at Manchester, England, had received permission to marry women who are foreigners.

They were the first such permissions granted since President Roosevelt's recent order requiring the approval of the Secretary of State in advance of such marriages by members of the American foreign service.

The two men, asserting their engagements to marry had been made before the order was issued, cabled their resignations as soon as they learned of the edict.

Seibert will marry Miss Christine Beck-Friss, daughter of a Swedish diplomat formerly stationed in Washington. Standish said he was engaged to Miss Betty Walls, a British subject, and that their wedding had been set for Dec. 21.

OREGON ARGUES FREE SPEECH IS NOT "ABSOLUTE" RIGHT

Files Brief in Supreme Court Against Communist Convicted of Criminal Syndicalism.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Oregon contended today the right of free speech and assembly "is not an absolute one," in a brief filed in Supreme Court in opposition to an appeal by Dirk de Jonge, a Communist convicted under the Oregon criminal syndicalism law. The court will hear arguments in the case next week.

De Jonge is under sentence to serve seven years in prison as a result of activities in Portland, in 1934. He and others were arrested when police raided a Communist meeting called to protest against police activities during a seamen's strike. De Jonge contended he had not violated the law, although he spoke at the meeting.

The State argued in its brief that a state in the exercise of its police power may punish those who abuse the right of free speech by utterances inimical to the public welfare.

R. O. Clarida Dies.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 4.—R. O. Clarida, 68 years old, assistant secretary of the Illinois Teachers' Pension and Retirement Board, died today following a heart attack. For 18 years Clarida served as secretary of the board, and took the assistant's post last year. A former resident of Williamson County, he will be buried Sunday in Marion.

ESTIMATE BOARD APPROVES $438,000 APPROPRIATION

Supplementary Measure for City Expenses to Be Placed Before Aldermen.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment today approved for introduction in the Board of Aldermen a supplementary appropriation bill for $438,115 for various city expenses during the rest of the present fiscal year, which will end next April. Of the total appropriation, $394,065 will be from municipal revenue, $34,000 from Water Department funds and $10,550 from the Municipal Bridge account for maintenance of the bridge.

The supplementary appropriation will increase total appropriations for the present fiscal year to $30,177,560. The deficit at the close of the fiscal year in April has been estimated at $800,000.

Most of the additional appropriations from municipal revenue are for supplies and equipment for city institutions including the followin: City Hospital, $68,900; City Hospital No. 2, $85,950; City Sanitarium, $73,400; Koch Hospital, $20,000; St. Louis Training School, $12,700, and City Infirmary, $10,000. Other items include $45,000 for lighting parks and boulevards and $30,000 for judgments against the city.

Other appropriations approved by the Board of Estimate include $10,290 for compensation of Ben H. Charles, special bond attorney for the city; $240,000 from bond issue funds for equipment for the new Homer G. Phillips Hospital for the Colored, scheduled to open next March, and $13,500 for lighting the new River des Peres highway in the southwestern part of St. Louis.

SOCIAL SECURITY TAX CHECK ON EMPLOYERS

Board Estimates That 2,000,000 Out of 3,500,000 Have Failed to Register.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Registration by employers under the Social Security Act was running so far behind expectations that the Government has started to check up on delinquents.

It had been estimated that 3,500,000 employers would come under the act, but only about 1,500,000 applications for identification numbers have been received at the Baltimore office of the Security Board to date. The deadline was Nov. 21, but postal officials said some applications were still dribbling in.

In requesting the Postoffice Department to list the delinquent employers, the Security Board said the enrollment of 26,000,000 workers was progressing according to schedule. The deadline for the workers' applications for "wage account" numbers is next Saturday night.

Employers and employes who fail to supply information required for the pension taxes are subject to a $10,000 fine and a year's imprisonment.

Postmasters have been instructed to re-canvas the delinquent employers before drawing up the lists.

The delinquency is largely in small towns and rural areas. A 90 per cent reply has been reported from metropolitan centers. In Brooklyn, N. Y., where 26,000 did not return the forms within the week stipulated, an implied threat of punitive action resulted in a rush to comply.

Under the pension law, employers of one or more persons in business or industry, and their employes are subject to the taxes.

REPORT URGES STATE DRIVERS' LICENSE LAW

Missouri Traffic Safety Committee Makes Recommendations to Governor.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 4.—Recommendations for the enactment of a State drivers' license law, for the enlargement of the personnel of the State highway patrol from 115 to 200 men, and for uniform statewide motor vehicle reguations were formally made to Gov. Park yesterday by the Missouri Traffic Survey Committee.

The report, submitted by Oak Hunter of Moberly and Otto P. Higgins of Kansas City, chairman and secretary, respectively, contained the findings of the committee since it was organized here March 20.

The committee said it would prepare bills for presentation to the General Assembly, which convenes next month.

Principles Stated.

The report said the recommendations were based on the following principles:

Enforcement of the motor vehicle laws should be practical and preventive rather than punitive.

Motor vehicle regulations shall be reasonable and shall be uniformly administered and enforced without fear or favor.

Obsolete laws should be replaced by regulations designed to meet modern conditions and Missouri should revise its laws to conform to standard driving regulations now in force in other states.

Regulations should be as simple as possible.

Enforcement agencies of the State should be given additional powers to aid them in the enforcement of the motor vehicle laws, in order that operators of motor vehicles may be better controlled and the habitually careless driver or offender against the traffic laws may be prevented from operating a motor vehicle on public streets and highways.

Holding that almost all accidents were a result of faulty driving, the committee said safety education was the most important part of a program of highway accident prevention.

Establishment of a traffic safety training school for police officers and others to aid in "intelligently enforcing the traffic laws" also was recommended.

Drivers' License Proposal.

"As an adjunct to more rigid enforcement and better control of motor vehicle operators," the committee reported, "we recommend the enactment of a State drivers' license law so that proven careless operators of motor vehicles may be controlled through the suspension or revocation of their licenses."

Holding that the regulation of pedestrians "is as much a traffic problem as the regulation of motor vehicles," the committee said it desired "to impress upon police officers the fact that they should exercise as much vigilence and extend the same privileges to pedestrians as they do to vehicular traffic."

Other members of the safety committee are W. N. Anderson of the State Public Service Commission; Lloyd W. King, State Superintendent of Schools; Col. B. M. Casteel, of the State Highway Patrol; C. W. Brown, chief engineer of the State Highway Department; V. H. Steward, State Motor Vehicle Commissioner, and Albert Bond Lambert, vice-president of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners.

Hunter, a former Speaker of the State House of Representatives, represents the Missouri Automobile Club, and Higgins is director of police in Kansas City.

4 TEMPORARY APPOINTMENTS MADE IN FIRE DEPARTMENT

Mental Examinations for 400 Applicants Will Be Held About Dec. 26.

Four temporary appointments as city firemen have been made recently to fill vacancies, the Efficiency Board eligible list for new firemen having expired.

Those appointed, who must pass an Efficiency Board examination to be retained permanently, were: Leo Hogan, 3861A Shaw boulevard, son of Mrs. P. H. Hogan, Fifteenth Ward Democratic Committeewoman and matron at City Hall; Frank Tiff, 2852 Shenandoah avenue; William Trantina, 5846 Goerner avenue, and Joseph Deutsch, 5537 Robin avenue.

Time for applying for the new Efficiency Board examination has ended. The board received 986 applications, beginning Oct. 24, but 236 of the men were eliminated at once for failure to meet the height, weight and age requirements. About 350 of the remaining 750 failed in the physical examination. The mental examination for the 400 left will be held about Dec. 26, probably in a high school. It may consist largely of writing a report on a fire or accident. Firemen, who are paid $140 a month the first six months and $180 thereafter, must be between 21 and 35 years of age, at least 5 feet 7 inches tall and weigh between 140 and 175 pounds when employed.

Mark Barron to Wed Actress.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Erin O'Brien Moore, actress, will be married Sunday to Mark Barron, New York newspaper man. Miss O'Brien Moore said the wedding would take place in Westchester County with only a few friends present. After a brief honeymoon she will return to Hollywood to continue her motion picture work.

MUNICIPAL BRIDGE TOLLS TOTAL $3,966,000 SINCE 1932

35,000,000 Vehicles Assessed to Meet Public Relief Needs in St. Louis.

In the period between July 21, 1932, when the city began collecting tolls on Municipal Bridge to meet public relief needs, and Nov. 30, last, there were 35,100,467 vehicles, mostly automobiles, crossing the bridge, the Comptroller's office reported yesterday. Tolls amounted to $3,966,924, the charge being 10 cents each for 25,962,915 private vehicles and 15 cents each for 9,137,552 commercial vehicles.

During November the traffic was 199,709 private vehicles and 208,467 commercial, with tolls of $81,240. Since the beginning of the fiscal year, last April 14, the traffic totaled 3,999,181 vehicles, with $615,263 in tolls. Cost of collection has amounted to 3.3 per cent of the receipts. So far the city has received only $66.98 in counterfeit money in tolls.

JUDGE TO APPROVE MERGER OF CALIFORNIA OIL COMPANIES

Sinclair Interests Propose to Unite Richfield Firm and Two Others.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—United States District Judge William P. James announced yesterday he would approve the reorganization plan for the Richfield Oil Co. of California and its subsidiary, the Pan-American Petroleum Corporation, submitted by Harry F. Sinclair's Consolidated Oil Corporation.

The Sinclair interests proposed merger of Richfield and Pan-American with Rio Grande Oil Co., a Consolidated subsidiary. The merger will mean the formation of a new oil company on the Pacific Coast to be known as the Richfield Oil Corporation.

Judge James reserved the right to incorporate certain modifications in his formal sanction of the plan.

Members of the board of directors of the new company, as set forth in the reorganization plan, include: Harry F. Sinclair, chairman of the board of Consolidated Oil Corporation; P. H. O'Neil, director of the Petroleum Corporation of America; W. Alton Jones, vice-president of Cities Service Co.; Charles S. Jones, president of Rio Grande Oil Co.; F. B. Coates, president of Cities Service Co.

STATE RELIEF BUDGET PUT AT $10,056,000

Administrator Crossley Estimates Needs for Next Biennium.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 4.—The State's share of unemployment direct relief requirements for the biennial period of 1937 and 1938 was estimated at $10,056,000, at the rate of $5,028,000 a year, in a report submitted to the State Budget Department today by Wallace Crossley, State Relief Administrator.

The report, embodying an appropriation request, was submitted as an aid to the Budget Department in preparing recommendations on the 1937-1938 budget and its estimate of revenues and requirements, to be submitted to the Legislature.

The 1935 Legislature appropriated $6,000,000 of State funds for direct relief in the biennium of 1935 and 1936. This sum proved inadequate, despite the fact the Federal Government paid most of the costs of relief in the State. The State appropriation was exhausted early this year.

Crossley's Estimate.

The request to the Budget Department to recommend an appropriation of $5,028,000 a year for 1937 and 1938, was based on an estimated requirement of $400,000 a month for relief and $19,000 a month for administration, as the State's share, Crossley said.

Aside from whatever funds the State provides, Crossley said the State Relief Administration would continue to distribute surplus commodities amounting to $250,000 to $300,000 a month, so long as the Federal Government continued making allotments for surplus commodity distribution in Missouri. This distribution was not included in his estimate of $400,000 a month as the direct relief requirement of the State.

The direct relief "case load" in Missouri varied, Crossley said, due to seasonal employment, and similar factors, but that a conservative average figure, under present conditions, would not be less than 40,000 cases. Someof these cases represent individuals, others entire families. He estimated the 40,000 cases represented about 110,000 persons who would require direct relief.

$10 a Month.

At present a fair average minimum cost a case is $10 a month, Crossley said; or a requirement of about $400,000 a month, exclusive of administration expense.

"In analyzing the estimated needs for relief for the years 1937-1938, based on the present case load statistics," Crossley said, "certain consideration must be given to the anticipated financial assistanle that may be expected from the Federal Government. In the event the WPA program is discontinued, or reduced, the relief cases now cared for by this program will naturally become the care of the State and its subdivisions.

"The various phases of the social security program, and the expected results, are also taken into consideration in making these estimates. With all considered and with all public assistance co-ordinated, there will still be a widespread need for relief.

"There is a relief need in the State of Missouri which can not be denied and should not be ignored, unless the State is willing to permit squalor, suffering and lack of actual subsistence to be a continuing menace."

Total expenditures for relief in Missouri, from a small beginning in September, 1932, u ptolastAug.31, were placed at $124,446,507in a preliminary report recently compiled by the Relief Administration. Of this amount about 81 per cent was derived from Federal sources.

CUT ON HAND BY ROBBER

Salesman Seized Knife of Man Who Held Him Up.

Harry Weitz, a salesman, 712 North Seventh street, was cut on the hand when he seized a knife with which a Negro robber threatened him at Leonard and Bell avenues last midnight. The robber fled with $11.

Weitz told police the Negro jumped on the running board of his automobile and demanded money. When Weitz said he had no money the robber struck at him with a knife. Weitz grabbed the knife, and the Negro drew it through his hand, cutting him, then took the money from his pocket and ran away. Weitz was treated at City Hospital.

MO.-PAC. EMPLOYE INSURANCE

Court Grants Authority to Pay New Rate.

Authority to continue payment of premiums for group insurance on employes of the Missouri Pacific Railroad System was obtained from Federal Judge George H. Moore today by Trustee Guy A. Thompson, who informed the court the rate had been increased by the insurance companies from $1.10 per month per $1000 of insurance to $1.25.

Under the new rate the railroad would pay $44,136 annually. The railroad paid 80 cents of the old rate of $1.10 and the insured employe paid 30 cents. New payments will be made in the same proportion. The group plan has been in effect since 1927.

Campaign Costs in Pennsylvania.

By the Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 4.—Presidential campaign expenditures totaling $1,194,533 were reported yesterday by Republican and Democratic State committees. The Republican committee said it had spent $657,207 while the Democrats listed $537,326.

FUNERAL OF MRS. J.P.DOWNTON

Services Will Be Held in Richmond Heights Church Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Mrs. Maude B. Downton, wife of J. P. Downton, superintendent of the heel factory of the International Shoe Co., who died yesterday of a heart attack suffered Wednesday at her home, 1505 Del Norte street, Richmond Heights, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at Richmond Heights Presbyterian Church, Silverton place and Lindbergh drive, with burial in Valhalla Cemetery.

Mrs. Downton, who was 53 years old, was corresponding secretary of the Richmond Heights Presbyterian Church and a sister of Mrs. J. M. Jensen, wife of the former mayor of Richmond Heights. Surviving, besides her husband and sister, is a daughter, Mary Emily Downton.

40,000-ACRE GAME REFUGE

Secretary Wallace Sets Aside Oklahoma Tract.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Plan for making a large outdoor wild life laboratory in a 64,000-acre tract in Wichita Mountains in Oklahoma were announced today by the Bureau of Biological Survey. Administration regulations were signed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Large herds of Buffalo, elk and Virginia white-tailed deer, and flocks of wild turkeys are found in the tract. It was announced that 40,000 acres of the tract would be restricted, although ample recreational facilities were being provided for camping, swimming, fishing and other outdoor sports. Two CCC camps now are at work on the refuge.

NEW SUPPORT FOR RAYBURN

Pennsylvania Democrats for Texan for House Leader.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Pennsylvania's big bloc of Democratic Congressmen swung its support yesterday to Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas for House majority floor leader in the next Congress. That action brought word from Rayburn that he thought he could "reasonably expect more than enough votes to nominate" him.

From Representative John J. O'Connor of New York, a candidate for the leadership, it drew a prediction of "reaction" among House members and a remark about a Texas-Pennsylvania tie-up for 1940, with Vice-President Garner and Gov. Earle the party candidates. Only two days ago Vice-President Garner came out "200 per cent" for Rayburn and said he would do everything possible to bring about his election.

LAWRENCE BOOK WITHHELD

Two $500,000 Copies Double-Locked in Library of Congress.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The Library of Congress disclosed today it has two of the $500,000 copies of "The Mint," a book by Lawrence of Arabia which, under his will, is not to be given to the general public until 1950. The volumes are kept behind double-locked steel doors in a library vault.

"The Mint" describes in unsparing language the life of a rookie in the British Royal Air Force 14 years ago. That is what T. E. Lawrence was in the fall of 1922. The company which bought the publishing rights copyrighted the manuscript. This necessitated "publishing" it and placing two copies in the Library of Congress. The "publication" consisted of offering 10 copies for sale at $500,000 each.

O

What Is
MRS. SIMPSON REALLY LIKE?

Do you think the King will marry her? Isn't there some way of getting real facts about her . . . her clothes, characteristics, habits and background?

These questions have been asked by millions. To answer them Edwina H. Wilson has obtained from those who know her best the story of the American woman who has captured the fancy of the world's most popular monarch. It is a story, interspersed with comments by Mrs. Simpson herself, comments clever enough to be remembered by her friends. Included among the illustrations are many authentic pictures which have never before been published.

You'll want to read this delightful story of romantic history in the making.

Here Are Some of the Questions Answered in This Interesting Story

What actually was Wallis Simpson's birthday?
How tall is she?
Who was her first beau?
What is her outstanding characteristic?
What is a dinner party like in Mrs. Simpson's home?
What are her favorite flowers? Jewels? Colors?
How does she treat her servants? How many does she employ?
What is her favorite menu?
What are her theories on entertaining?
What are the origins of her family?
What was her childhood like?
Do you know the real story of her meeting with the King?
Was it romance, infatuation or just a bad case of first love which caused Wallis to rush into marriage at twenty?
Who were the friends Wallis made in Shanghai who have seen two of her romances blossom and fade?
Did she ever have ambitions to be a business woman? What would you expect a woman of her charm to do?
Did she yearn to be presented at court?
What was the most striking accent to her court costume?
What American women were presented at the same court?

MONEY TO LOAN

LOANS ON THE Promise-to-Pay Plan
YOUR NOTE—NOTHING ELSE
No Security—No Endorsers

One year ago, making loans without security of any kind was unheard of. Today we are doing it, in fact, we have done it successfully for over six months. Still, many people stand on the sidelines and argue it can't be done. Well, seeing is believing. If you are one of those who think it can't be done, come in and we'll show you. You can get $100, $200, $300 by signing just an ordinary note. Your honesty, integrity and ability to pay are the sole requirements. Also auto financing and other types of loans.

Upward Movement
Forenoon is Base
Sharp Price Uptu
Liverpool Market.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Prospects shipments to Chicago from other markets did much late today to gains scored earlier.
The Chicago spot wheat ba quoted 1 to 2 cents lower. Adv
Winnipeg also failed to hold, de estimates that export purchases nadian wheat today totaled 3 bushels.
Wheat closed unsettled, at the yesterday's finish to ⅝c lowe
$1.25¾ @ ⅞; May, $1.20¾ @ unchanged to ⅝c higher, Dec.
@ ¾; May, new, $1.02⅝ @ ¾; o
½c advanced, and provisions vary
5 cents decline to 10 cents gain.
Responsive to about 3½ ce rocketing of the Liverpool marke in Chicago shot upward almost t early today, but then reacted und taking.
Trading in the Chicago wheat on a large scale, unusually close ment of world wheat supply and serving to stimulate speculative b thusiasm. Special notice was ta
Germany had joined the ranks o pean countries purchasing new A wheat, and that there also has b 000,000 bushels reduction in unoffi mates of Argentina's crop. Atten aso given to the fact that cash all United States centers was at um over futures.
Winnipeg estimated fully 2,000,0 els of Canadian wheat was taken for export. Meanwhile, some bulli ment was based on talk of a gro lief that wheat prices are cheap
tion to other commodities. On t

WHEAT FAILS TO HOLD ADVANCE; CLOSES MIXED

Upward Movement in Forenoon is Based on Sharp Price Upturn in Liverpool Market.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Prospects of wheat shipments to Chicago from other domestic markets did much late today to wipe out gains scored earlier.

The Chicago spot wheat basis was quoted 1 to 2 cents lower. Advances at Winnipeg also failed to hold, despite late estimates that export purchases of Canadian wheat today totaled 3,000,000 bushels.

Wheat closed unsettled, at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝c lower, Dec. $1.20¾@⅞; May, $1.25¾@⅞; corn unchanged to ⅜c higher, Dec. $1.07⅝@¾; May, new, $1.02⅝@¾; oats ⅛@½c advanced, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to 10 cents gain.

Responsive to about 3⅓ cents skyrocketing of the Liverpool market, wheat in Chicago shot upward almost two cents early today, but then reacted under profit taking.

Trading in the Chicago wheat pit was on a large scale, unusually close adjustment of world wheat supply and demand serving to stimulate speculative buying enthusiasm. Special notice was taken that Germany had joined the ranks of European countries purchasing new Argentina wheat, and that there also has been 15,000,000 bushels reduction in unofficial estimates of Argentina's crop. Attention was also given to the fact that cash wheat in all United States centers was at a premium over futures.

Winnipeg estimated fully 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat was taken overnight for export. Meanwhile, some bullish sentiment was based on talk of a growing belief that wheat prices are cheap in relation to other commodities. On the other hand, Liverpool closing prices were at a material setback from the day's top, although 2¼@2⅜ cents higher than yesterday.

Reactions from today's peak quotations in Chicago carried the market in some cases down to equal with yesterday's close. This was particularly true as to July wheat, representing the 1937 domestic crop.

Feeding and commercial demand gave relative firmness to corn and oats. Provisions took their cue largely from grain strength.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 35,000,000 bushels, corn 10,073,000. Open interest in wheat was 93,781,000 bushels, and in corn 52,669,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Dec. 4.—Wheat and corn futures here were without quotations today.

Winnipeg wheat opened 1@1⅛c higher. The close was net unchanged to ⅛c higher.

Liverpool wheat opened 1¼@1¾d higher and in a subsequent cable was 2½@2¾d up. The close was 1⅞@2d higher.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market today wheat was 2c higher; corn unchanged to 1c lower; oats unchanged to ½c lower.

Sales made on the floor of the exchange were as follows:

WHEAT: No. 1 red garlicky, $1.28; No. 2 do, $1.27½.

CORN: No. 2 mixed, $1.07@1.07½; No. 3 do, $1.05; No. 5 do, $1.03; No. 2 yellow, $1.07½@1.10½; No. 3 do, $1.06@1.06½; No. 4 do, $1.03½@1.07; sample grade do, $1.02½; No. 3 white, $1.07; No. 5 do, $1.03.

OATS: No. 1 white, 49½c; No. 3 do, 48½c; No. 4 do, 48c; sample grade do, 47½c; No. 3 mixed, 48c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 21,000 bushels, compared with 31,500 a week ago and 10,500 a year ago, included 13 cars local and 1 through. Corn receipts, which were 130,500 bushels, compared with 211,500 a week ago and 99,000 a year ago, included 73 cars local and 14 through. Oats receipts, which were 12,000 bushels, compared with 52,000 a week ago and 12,000 a year ago, included 6 cars local. Hay receipts were 1 car local and 4 through.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 2 HIGHER TO 8 LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — Cotton was steady today and trading less active owing to a disposition to await the Government crop report Tuesday. Trade demand counter-balanced hedge selling and prices fluctuated in a narrow range. March rallied from 12.02c to 12.08c and at mid-afternoon was selling at 12.07c, with prices generally 5 points higher to 3 net lower.

Futures closed steady, 2 higher to 8 lower. December, 12.23-25; January, 12.06; March, 12.04-05; May, 11.92; July, 11.76; October, 11.25. Spot steady; middling, 12.64.

Dec. opened 12.25, Jan. 12.05, March 12.03, May 11.92, July 11.78, Oct. 11.34.

Trading was mixed, with foreign orders on both sides of the market. After the call hedging tapered off and prices developed a steadier tone. There were December notices for 1500 bales, with near months holding steady in the early trading.

More interest developed in the coming Government crop estimate to be issued Tuesday with the appearance of three additional private reports pointing to production of 12,197,000 bales, 12,496,000 bales and 12,498,000 bales.

March sold up from 12.02 to 12.08 and at the end of the first hour was holding at 12.06 with prices generally net unchanged to 6 points higher.

Liverpool reported traders cautious, pending constitutional developments.

The market became quiet later in the morning but the tone held about steady except for a slight increase in liquidation and hedging in the more distant positions. By midday March was selling at 12.08 and prices generally were four points higher to two net lower.

The average guess of 100 members of the New York Cotton Exchange was for a bureau crop estimate of 12,337,000 bales, which would compare with the Nov. 1 Washington estimate of 12,400,000 bales.

BAR GOLD, SILVER AND MONEY

The St. Louis Clearing House Association reported clearings for Dec. 4, 1936, $17,000,000; corresponding day last year, $13,900,000; this year, $4,121,200,000; corresponding period last year, $3,656,300,000.

Report of debits for Dec. 3, 1936, debits to individual accounts, $21,700,000; total to date, $6,134,700,000; debits to banks and bankers' accounts, $10,600,000; total to date, $2,881,000,000; combined debits to individual and bank and bankers' accounts, $32,300,000; debits to date, $9,015,700,000.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — Call money steady; 1 per cent all day; prime commercial paper ¾ per cent; time loans steady; 60 days—6 months 1¼ per cent offered; bankers acceptances unchanged; rediscount rate, N. Y. Reserve Bank, 1½ per cent offered.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Bar silver easier, ¼ lower at 45¾.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Bar gold remained unchanged at 141s. 9½d. (Sterling price equivalent to $34.77.)

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Money ½ per cent. Discount rates, short bills ⅜; three-month bills 13-16@⅞ per cent.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Bar silver barely steady, 1-16 lower at 21 3-16d. (Sterling price equivalent to 46.74 cents.)

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Three per cent rentes, 77 francs 60 centimes; 4½ per cent rentes, 81.30. Exchange on London, 105.15. The dollar was quoted at 21.45.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Raw sugar was quiet and unchanged early today at 3.85 for spots and 3.80 for 1937 quota.

No sales were reported, although there were further offerings of 1937 quotas at the last paid price.

Futures were quiet and after opening unchanged to 1 point higher on a little trade covering, reacted under renewed commission house liquidation and hedge selling. March sold off from 2.82 to 2.81 and May from 2.85 to 2.82, or 1 to 2 points net lower, and were holding around these levels at midday.

Refined was unchanged at 4.80 for fine granulated. Aside from further moderate withdrawals against old contracts, business was light.

The market rallied late in the day on trade buying, futures No. 3 closing steady, unchanged to 1 higher. Sales 6000 tons. Jan. 2.80b; March 2.83b; May 2.85b; July 2.86b; Sept. 2.87b.

ONLY THIRD OF SOCIAL SECURITY BLANKS IN

Postoffices Open Till 9 P. M. Tomorrow to Receive Enrollment Cards.

Registration of employes under the old-age benefit provisions of the Federal Social Security Act, which the Postoffice Department was expected to complete by tomorrow, was far from finished today in the St. Louis postal area. Postmaster W. Rufus Jackson announced that most of the postal stations in the city and county would remain open until 9 p. m. tomorrow to receive enrollment cards.

Only 102,000 of the employe enrollment cards, known as Form SS-5, had been returned to the postoffice this morning. There have been distributed to employers and labor organizations, at their request, 330,000 enrollment cards, indicating approximately that many persons in the St. Louis postal area are subject to the act.

In most cases employes may hand their completed cards to their employers or to labor union officers to be turned in to the postoffice, but any individual who wishes to do so may return his card directly to the postoffice by handing it to a letter carrier, mailing it to the Postmaster, or delivering it to a postal station. Postal clerks will be on duty in the lobbies of postoffice stations tomorrow afternoon to assist applicants in filling out their cards and to receive cards.

The enrollment card is technically an "application for account number." When it is filed with the Social Security Board the employe will receive an account number that will permanently identify him for purposes of the old-age pensions authorized by the act. The employe will receive an identification card bearing his account number and wherever he works in employment covered by the act he will be enrolled under that number.

Persons working in covered employment will be subject to an income tax of one per cent of their wages, up to $3000 a year, beginning Jan. 1, the tax to be deducted by the employers from wages as paid. This tax increases by steps to three per cent for the year 1949 and thereafter. The employer is required to pay out of his own funds an excise tax exactly matching the tax on his employes' wages.

Employes subject to the act will be entitled to old-age benefits beginning at the age of 65, but not before Jan. 1, 1942, and payable monthly as long as they live. The monthly pensions, limited to $10 minimum and $85 maximum, will be determined according to the total amount of taxable wages received during the qualifying period.

WORK ON SCHOOL GROUNDS APPROVED IN COMMITTEE

Finance Group of Board of Education Favors Spending of $50,000.

A recommendation by Building Commissioner George W. Sanger for a $50,000 appropriation for materials, equipment and supervision, for improvement of the grounds of 30 schools, was approved yesterday by the Finance Committee of the Board of Education. The money would be used in connection with a prospective WPA allotment of $200,000 for the labor.

Sites to be improved were selected in a survey. Much of the work would consist of providing permanent surfaces for playgrounds. Heretofore the board has spent $15,000 and the WPA $80,000 on a joint program of other work.

The board will pass next Tuesday on a recommendation for establishment of a new school center, using six portable buildings, on ground owned by the board on Gustine avenue, between Keokuk street and Dunnica avenue. This school, to be opened Feb. 1, would accommodate younger children residing at some distance from the neighboring Fanning, Oak Hill and Long schools.

ICKES SUGGESTS VERMONT BE PARK REFUGE FOR G. O. P.

Proposes "Rapidly Disappearing Homo Republicanus Be Fostered and Protected There."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. — Secretary of the Interior Ickes suggested today making Vermont a national park refuge for "that rapidly disappearing specimen, the homo Republicanus."

"I wonder," he said in a message to a dinner here for Pennsylvania Democrats, "if Senator Guffey or one of your able Congressmen would be willing to introduce a bill at the next session of Congress setting up Vermont as a national park. In our national parks we foster and protect wild life and surely some national sanctuary should be established within which we can foster and protect . . . homo Republicanus."

THREE MAIL BOXES LOOTED

Taken From Street Corners and Broken Open.

Three mail boxes were taken from street corners in Fireworks Station, a community adjoining East St. Louis, last night and were smashed open in a school yard by thieves who looted their contents, apparently in search of money.

The boxes were found this morning in the rear yard of Garrison School, on South Forty-first street. Opened letters and packages were strewn on the ground. An investigation was begun by postoffice inspectors.

STOCK LIST IRREGULAR; SPECIALTIES ARE LEADERS

Oil and Aircraft Shares Record Gains, Some Sharply — Old Leaders Among Lower Issues for Day.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Aircrafts, oils and specialties furnished the principal recovery fireworks in today's stock market, although early gains of fractions to six points or so were reduced or cancelled in late selling.

Steels and many of the other so-called leaders were in the slipping category and prices were uneven at the close. Transfers were around 2,200,000 shares.

It was said encouraging business news continued as the main sustaining influence. In addition it was thought there was less apprehension over repercussions from foreign happenings.

A less than seasonal drop in last week's freight shipments, officially reported today, and visions of expanding operating earnings, brought belated support for some of the rails.

A boost in crude rates by mid-continent petroleum producers stimulated oil issues in the best advance they have enjoyed in some time.

Bonds were moderately improved. Commodities were mixed and European currencies were lower in terms of the dollar. Wheat at Chicago was unchanged to off ⅝ of a cent a bushel and corn was the same as yesterday's finish to up ⅜.

Outstanding shares on the upside most of the day were Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Sperry, Curtiss-Wright, North American Aviation, Wright Aeronautical, Standard Oils of New Jersey and California, Seaboard, Continental Oil, Texas Corp., Amerada, Ohio Oil, Pure Oil, Gulf States Steel, Atlantic Coast Line, Southern Pacific, American Locomotive, Westinghouse Airbrake, Newport Industries, Paramount, Blaw-Knox, International Hydro-Electric and International Paper & Power.

Backward were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, North American, Anaconda, Westinghouse, General Electric, du Pont, Goodyear, Schenley and National Distillers.

Other recessionary shares included Libby-Owens, Postal Telegraph preferred, Celanese, International Telephone and American Water Works.

The French franc, at mid-afternoon, was off .00 7-16 of a cent at 4.66⅛ cents, and sterling was 7-16 of a cent lower at $4.90⅛.

Cotton was 10 cents a bale up to down 40 cents.

News of the Day.

In the light of further governmental regulation expected to be imposed on stock trading, Wall street studied the speech of Chairman Landis of the Securities and Exchange Commission before the Investment Bankers' Association in which he warned industry and finance against the evils of a reptition of the last boom.

War orders, both actual and potential, brought additional attention to the aviation shares.

A less than seasonal drop in freight shipments last week failed to stir the rails generally.

More activity in the oils was attributed partly to the fact this group has usually done very well in the final quarter. A mid-continent producer announced an increase in crude prices.

Paramount first preferred jumped to a new high following announcement of the directors that a dividend—amount not specified—would be declared on the issue of Dec. 10. The company's net for the current quarter was expected to be around $3,000,000.

Rail equipments again were out in front as orders from the principal carriers began to assume sizable proportions.

Weekly Mercantile Reviews.

Interesting to merchandising shareholders was the week-end review of Dun & Bradstreet which noted a brisk upswing in retail sales throughout the country.

The increase over the previous week was estimated at from 6 to 10 per cent. The volume, it was said, was from 15 to 30 per cent ahead of the comparable week a year ago.

Demand, it was added, extended to nearly all seasonal staples and in some lines unit distribution passed the 1929 level.

C. E. Hopkins Re-elected Director of Federal Land Bank.

C. E. Hopkins of Pontiac, Ill., has been re-elected local director of the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis, to serve a three-year term beginning Jan. 1 next. He has been a director continuously ever since the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis was organized on March 8, 1917, nearly 20 years ago. Mr. Hopkins was elected by the 478 national farm loan associations in the three states of the Sixth Farm Credit District.

ADVANCE IN CRUDE OIL PRICE ANNOUNCED

By the Associated Press.

PONCA CITY, Ok., Dec. 4.—Dan Moran, president of the Continental Oil Co., announced today his company would advance the price of crude oil in areas in which it is a large purchaser 17 cents a barrel on crude of 40 degrees gravity and above, effective Jan. 4, 1937.

Moran said the "statistical position of the oil industry" justified an increase in price.

The Continental company's increase will boost the price of crude oil to $1.35 a barrel on oil of 40 degrees gravity and above.

Barnsdall Oil Corporation, which purchases 10,000 barrels of crude oil a day in Oklahoma and Kansas, announced in Tulsa it would match the new price.

WICHITA, Kan., Dec. 4.—Officials of the Globe Oil & Refining Co. and the Derby Oil & Refining Co. said today their organizations would follow action of the Continental Oil Co. in increasing the price of high gravity oil to $1.35 a barrel, effective Jan. 4.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Improvement in prices and sentiment occurred in the stock market today and trading was more active. British war loan issues sold fractionally lower along with other gilt-edged securities. Trans-Atlantic shares and European bonds remained steady. The industrial section was somewhat mixed and the mining and railroad groups were quiet. Mexican Eagle oil shares sold higher following the favorable production figures.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Tre Bourse closed with a generally firm tone although rentes finished 25 to 45 centimes lower. Canadian Pacific, Royal Dutch and banking shares sold higher while other railroad and coal issues were mixed.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 4.—After advancing as much as three pence, wheat futures reacted partially on realizing and closed 1⅜d to 2d. Inquiry for cash grain was better and Italy made heavy purchases of Argentina and Central European wheat.

WEEK'S AUTO PRODUCTION

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Dec. 4.—Wards Automotive reports today estimated automobile production this week at 101,660 units, compared with 102,399 in the curtailed Thanksgiving period preceding, and with 97,190 for the corresponding week a year ago.

Total output for the week was estimated by Crams Reports, Inc., at 100,545 cars and trucks, compared with 104,190 for the previous week and 103,030 for the comparable period of 1935.

Both reports attributed the curtailment to strikes in accessory plants of the industry.

SCULLIN STEEL BONDS JUMP IN BIG TRADE

Issue Advances 5 3-4 Points on Turnover of $112,000 of Which $69,000 Are Bought in Afternoon Session.

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, Dec. 4.—A buying rush in Scullin Steel 6 per cent bonds took place in the afternoon session, some large blocks of the securities changing hands as the price bounded forward. The old high of 98¾ made on Nov. 28 was passed as the price went well over 100.

The buying of the bonds, as in recent activities, was credited in the Street to eastern sources. The reputed near approach of filing of reorganization plan and reports as to earnings again were cited.

The session sales of the bonds amounted to $69,500 between 98 and 102. At the morning session $44,000 sold, with low of 97.

The preference stock also was bid up on large trade.

Developments otherwise in the market were overlooked.

Huttig and Laclede Steel were lower, Hussmann-Ligonier unchanged and Griesedeick-Western higher at the forenoon session. Eisenstadt Mfg. preferred was bid up 2 points to 32. The issue has been very inactive.

Stock sales in the morning session amounted to 1228 shares, compared with 1292 yesterday. Bond sales were $44,000, compared with $5000 yesterday. Afternoon session stock sales were 1094 shares, compared with 1222 yesterday afternoon. Bond sales were $69,500 compared with $5500 yesterday afternoon.

Week's Review of Business

Retail Sales for Country as a Whole Estimated 6 to 10 Per Cent Over Previous Week, 15 to 30 Better Than Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — Retail trade entered the final month of the year with a fresh burst of speed, aided by Christmas gift-buying and a broader demand for winter merchandise, Dun & Bradstreet said today in the weekly review of business.

Lower temperatures throughout the country, widening employment and rising consumer income also played an important part in the upswing, the agency said.

"Wholesalers succeeded in reducing backlogs but had little to offer retailers seeking off-price goods for post-holiday promotions," the review stated. "The more extended rise in durable goods production continued to be led by the automobile and steel divisions."

The agency estimated retail sales for the country as a whole at from 6 to 10 per cent ahead of the previous week and from 15 to 30 per cent better than the comparable week last year. Percentage increases in the major geographical areas follow: New England, 16 to 25 per cent; East, 15 to 30; Middle West, 25 to 30; Northwest, 20 to 25; South, 22 to 30; Southwest, 20 to 35, and Pacific Coast, 12 to 17. The maritime strike again retarded business in the latter region, it was said.

"Retail distribution was featured by broadness," the review said, "buying extending to nearly all seasonal staples and Christmas items. In some lines unit sales passed the 1929 level, but the dollar volume has yet to set a new record. Sales of toys have been nearly double last year's at some centers."

Re-orders built up the greater proportion of increased wholesale orders, the review said, adding that in this branch business was at least 25 per cent better than it was a year ago.

The review by city areas follows:

St. Louis, Kansas City, Louisville.

ST. LOUIS—Extending the previous advance, retail sales broadened widely on the week's comparative and went 15 to 20 per cent over the 1935 total. Early Christmas buying stressed the higher-priced items. Largest gain in wholesale orders from farm districts. Foreclosures reduced as call for farms increased. Sharp drop in relief rolls, more workers finding permanent employment in various industries.

KANSAS CITY—Orders to wholesalers from country merchants at year's peak, with conditions in this territory better than was considered possible during the summer months. Retail sales gained nearly 10 per cent for the week, keeping the average about 15 per cent higher than a year ago. Gift-buying off to a splendid start. Sales at annual automobile show more than double last year's.

LOUISVILLE—Wholesale orders ranged 15 to 20 per cent larger than a year ago, with dry goods and Christmas merchandise up 20 to 25 per cent. Slow deliveries from manufacturers continued to curtail volume. While gift-buying contributed heavily to the improvement, bulk of retail demand was for seasonal merchandise; sales averaged 12 to 18 per cent more than in 1935 week. Difficulty experienced in supplying rising coal demand.

Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit.

CHICAGO—Strongly launched on the Christmas buying season, retailers' sales averaged 15 to 18 per cent larger than a year ago. Stores already crowded; more extra help employed than in 1935. Wholesale volume up 20 to 25 per cent from 1935 week, with acute shortages in many lines. Heaviest buying on record at annual automobile show. More automobiles and trucks registered than at any time in city's history.

CLEVELAND—Retail sales for November about 27 per cent ahead of year ago in dollar volume and 12 per cent in number of transactions. Anticipating the holiday rush, store inventories were up on an average of 10 per cent. Sales of new cars just prior to opening of automobile parts for eight months of 1936 above total for entire year of 1935.

DETROIT—Due to Thanksgiving holiday, automobile assemblies declined to 104,286 from 110,160 in week previous; a year ago the number was 93,995. Consumer buying moved strongly forward, retail sales going 22 to 25 per cent over 1935 week's. Toy sales already 100 per cent above last year's. Luxury lines in good demand. Wholesale volume about 25 per cent more than in 1935, with reorders heavy.

Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Youngstown.

PITTSBURGH—Index of business activity at six-year high. Industrial operations maintained at previous advanced level. Buying of finished steel products stimulated by scheduled price markup. Steel rate unchanged at 73 per cent of capacity. New car purchases at automobile show broke all previous records. Retail sales continued around 30 per cent ahead of last year's, with smaller stores doing well.

BALTIMORE—Business activity continued the upward trend displayed in recent weeks. Retail expansion was more marked, as holiday buying started in earnest. Inventories of wholesalers continued to dwindle, with shortages reported in more divisions. With the automotive division outstanding, durable goods industries made further headway. Employment and payrolls at highest level since September, 1930.

YOUNGSTOWN—Continued cold weather sent retail sales up 15 per cent for the week and 25 per cent over the corresponding 1935 period. Heavy apparel and house furnishings led the demand, although Christmas buying widened rapidly. Reorders added steadily to the rising wholesale volume. Steel rate to advance to 80 per cent of capacity at midweek, a gain of 3 points. Steady improvement in industrial employment.

Note: Summary is made up of reports covering period inclusive of Monday of week of issuance.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The closely-watched barometer of credit expansion possibilities—excess bank reserves—remained unchanged during the week ended Dec. 2.

In its weekly condition statement of Federal Reserve Banks, the Federal Reserve Board today estimated excess of reserves of member institutions at $2,-210,000,000 for the week.

The leveling off of excess reserves followed a $60,000,000 decline in the previous week.

Reflecting seasonal demands for money by business and commerce, the board reported a $37,000,000 increase in money in circulation during the week ended Dec. 2 to $6,466,000,000, of $623,000,000 over the same week a year ago.

This withdrawal was offset in part by a $26,000,000 increase in monetary gold stock, sending holdings to another new high of $11,188,000,000, or $1,179,000,-000 over the same date last year.

The board's statement said:

"The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended Dec. 2, as reported by the Federal Reserve Banks, was $2,465,000,-000, a decrease of $2,000,000 compared with the preceding week and of $10,000,-000 compared with the corresponding week in 1935.

"On Dec. 2 total reserve bank credit amounted to $2,467,000,000, an increase of $10,000,000 for the week. This increase corresponds with increases of $37,-000,000 in money in circulation, $14,000,-000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve Banks and $5,000,000 in November deposits and other Federal reserve accounts offset in part by a decrease of $20,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and increases of $26,000,000 in monetary gold stock and $2,000,000 in Treasury currency. Member bank reserve balances on Dec. 2 were estimated to be approximately $2,210,000,000 in excess of legal requirements.

"Relatively small changes were reported in the system's holdings of bills discounted, purchased bills, industrial advances and United States Government securities."

NEW YORK RESERVE BANK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—A sharp increase in the U. S. Treasurer's account was disclosed by the weekly report of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

This upturn, which financial circles attributed partly to the upturn in the Treasury's weekly note issues, carried the total up $46,809,000 to $60,617,000 in the week ended Wednesday.

Quickening of the trade pulse with the approach of the Christmas season explained in part, banking circles said, an upswing of $14,065,000 in Federal Reserve notes in actual circulation to $883,585,000.

ST. LOUIS RESERVE BANK

Federal Reserve notes in actual circulation increased $1,391,000 in the week of Dec. 2, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reports. Reserve account deposits of member banks decreased $1,224,000. Total deposits decreased $1,298,000. Total reserves decreased $528,000. Total assets and total liabilities each increased $4,085,000.

THOMAS H. PINDELL ELECTED HEAD OF ALTON & SOUTHERN

New President of Railway Has Been General Manager for 22 Years.

Thomas H. Pindell, 4475 West Pine boulevard, was elected president of the Alton & Southern Railroad yesterday at a meeting of the directors at the company's offices in East St. Louis. He succeeds C. B. Fox, president of the Aluminum Ore Company, who resigned. The ore company controls the railroad through stock ownership. The railroad operates 21 miles of track and 37 miles of sidings in and near East St. Louis.

Pindell, who celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday today, had been general manager of the Alton & Southern for 22 years. He began his career as a telegraph operator for the Erie Railroad in 1874.

Other officers elected were: James Davies, Pittsburgh, vice-president; Jesse R. Ford, Pittsburgh, secretary, and R. E. McClane, East St. Louis, treasurer. Raymond Durley was made general manager; A. L. Lenny, superintendent; W. W. Nuebling, chief engineer and purchasing agent, and Ellsworth Woodward, general traffic manager.

WEEKLY WOOL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—The "Commercial Bulletin" will say tomorrow:

"There has come a lull in the wool markets of the world this week. Contracting of wool in the West has almost entirely stopped with about 50,000,000 pounds now under contract.

"In the Eastern markets there is still a fair demand for nearby requirements. Mills are evidently willing to pay more for wools they must have soon than for wools to be delivered next summer. Medium wools in particular are in a "squeeze" and slightly stronger for the week.

"There is a let-down, too, in the secondary markets of Europe, where values are rather behind the prices being paid in the primary markets.

'Spinners and combers as well as manufacturers report a hesitancy on the part of consumers to pay the latest advances and so business is on a much smaller scale for the moment.

WEEK'S GOLD IMPORTS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Gold imports for the week ended Nov. 27 were reported by the Commerce Department today at $14,080,229, compared with $15,210,464 the previous week.

Gold exports were listed at $19,294 and $24,400 for the respective weeks.

Silver imports were $605,010 compared with $901,186 for the previous week. Silver exports were $52,503 and $63,346, respectively.

PROTEST ON WPA CUT SENT TO ROOSEVELT

Conference of Mayors Fails to Persuade Officials to Delay Reduction in Rolls.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Failing to persuade officials here to postpone a scheduled cut in WPA rolls, the United States Conference of Mayors yesterday appealed to President Roosevelt.

An executive committee of the conference, headed by Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York, sent a cablegram to the President in South America. Its text was not disclosed.

After a committee conference with Aubrey Williams, acting WPA administrator, LaGuardia said the situation had been "clarified" to some extent by assurance that reductions made during December and January will be limited to members of the administrative staff, non-relief employes and workers having other sources of support.

Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia expressed dissatisfaction with the outcome of the conference. He said in his opinion a proposed cut of 154,000 persons Dec. 15 would fall most heavily on the rank and file of WPA workmen, despite the official assurance to the contrary.

Wilson told reporters the committee had urged Williams to maintain WPA employment at the November level and stretch available funds over the first 15 days of January, instead of the first 20.

He said Williams contended this could not be done, and was "very evasive" when asked why the Government felt it necessary to extend its remaining funds to Jan. 20. By Jan. 15, Wilson argued, new funds could be made available by Congress.

LaGuardia said: "We find that employment has not kept pace with improved business conditions. Any suggestion of wholesale dismissals or substantial reductions at this time is simply out of the question. Every city is carrying its share and more of the load, and cannot assume additional burdens."

TAMPA FLOGGING VICTIM REINSTATED IN WPA JOB

Had Sought Election to Congress and Was Fired for "Political Activity."

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 4.—E. F. Poulnot, Tampa flogging victim, who sought election as a Socialist Congressman and lost his WPA job for "political activity," won reinstatement yesterday.

Malcolm J. Miller of New Orleans, field representative of the WPA, who investigated Poulnot's dismissal after his complaint to Washington, said Poulnot's removal from his truck-driving job was "an error."

PRINCETON DECIDES TO ADMIT 25 STUDENTS WITHOUT TESTS

Has Been One of Last Major Universities to Require Entrance Examinations for All.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 4.—Princeton University, one of the last major universities in the nation to require college entrance tests from every student, announced yesterday a limited number of freshmen, possibly 25, would be admitted without examination.

Students of "achievement and promise in secondary schools of the South, the West and rural communities in the East, are provided for in the plan.

"This new plan is in no way a lowering of the standards of admission to Princeton University," President Harold W. Dodds said. "The university will expect candidates from Eastern centers and from schools which offer definite preparation for college entrance examinations to take examinations as in the past."

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD HEAD TELLS OF INCREASED BUSINESS

M. W. Clement of Philadelphia, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who was in St. Louis yesterday, departed today for Omaha, Neb., to attend celebration of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Carl R. Gray, president of the Union Pacific Railroad, who formerly was a vice-president of the Frisco Railroad in St. Louis.

Gross business of the Pennsylvania for the first 10 months this year increased 19 per cent over that for the comparative period last year, he said, adding that the improvement was reflected in addition of between 20,000 and 30,000 persons to the payroll and larger expenditures for supplies and equipment.

Greek King Uneasy on Throne Ambitious Gen. Metaxas Set Up for Him Through Fake Election

Dictator's Administration Unpopular—Public Irked by Censorship of Mail and Telephone Calls.

From a Correspondent of the Manchester Guardian.

ATHENS, November. — The restored monarchy of Greece is one year old this month. King George II would be the first man to admit that his position today is no more secure than it was 12 months ago, when in response to a plebiscite faked (as all the world knew) by an ambitious general he embarked on the stormy sea-crossing from Brindisi to Phaleron.

In recent months the full implications of the Metaxas administration to which the King has given his support became apparent. It was no longer possible to conceal the Nazi flavor. Germany held Greece in economic subjection (due, principally, to a huge frozen debt on Greek tobacco): first Dr. Schacht went to Athens, and then Geobbels. And in decrees and public utterances Metaxas has now disclosed his sympathies.

The press is to obey the dictator unquestioningly, "as a soldier obeys his general in battle." The basis of education is to be "the disciplined attachment to a single purpose" by means of "the rhythmic repetition at regular intervals of the same thought, the same sentence, the same movements." There is a "penalty of deportation for whoever in writing of verbally or in any other way directly or indirectly encourages the propagation, the development, and the application of theories or ideas or social, religious, or economic systems tending to undermine the established order."

Listening In Encouraged.

The police are authorized "when the postal censors hand to them suspect correspondence to search the offices or the home of the sender or recipient of the correspondence in question." Telephonic censorship also is recognized in this:

"Postal or telephone employes who overhear a telephonic conversation, whether official or private, that is subversive of the laws, good habits, public order, and safety of the state should at once report it to the Government. (To this decree there is a rider). The conversations of the King and members of the royal family and the Prime Minister are subject to no restriction, and it is forbidden to listen-in to them."

Metaxas publicly congratulated three 16-year-old children "who had the courage to smack the face of a man who was impudently distributing Communist tracts."

The administration is unpopular. Metaxas is only maintained in power by the favor of the King and by the "philosophical" attitude of the general public, who, as yet, have no serious grudge against the King and who say: "Let him have a chance."

Compulsory Mass Meeting.

One evening in October I attended a massed open-air meeting in Syndagma Square when Gen. Metaxas spoke. Omnibusses and trams had brought passengers into town free of charge that afternoon. Peasants came in from the country with their primitive flutes and drums. Town workers were marooned in the city when their shops and offices closed, for all outgoing bus services were compulsorily suspended between 7 and 9:30 p. m. Many thousands went inquisitively to Syndagma Square. (In the press photographs they were represented as being enthusiastically Metaxist.) The rest strolled in the open spaces under the pepper trees in the Zappion Gardens. There was little applause. The crowd were listening to an individual—an equal—stating his case, as they had often stated their own case in cafes and law courts. Those who ceased to be interested sauntered away. Those who could not easily escape were the youths who had been paid to carry banners bearing the slogan: "Down With Communism."

A Greek politician said to me the other day: "When the moment is ripe we shall beg the King to restore the Constitution. That is the first step. The King has been shamefully hoaxed by Metaxas. We shall invite him to act constitutionally. All the Opposition will unite in this preliminary plea to the King." But he did not seem very hopeful that the plea would be effective.

I went to a theatrical performance which the King attended. He entered the theater smiling, his pince-nez gleaming. An American girl sitting behind me inquired, "Why doesn't the King Marry?" and her Greek hostess made this significant reply: "He will do, when he feels more settled."

BANK NIGHT TOO NEAR LOTTERY TO HAVE COURT PROTECTION

3 U. S. Circuit Judges Refuse to Uphold Denver Company's Copyright on Plan.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Dec. 4.—"Bank night" at the movie houses is "too closely akin" to lottery "to have the protection of a court," says an opinion handed down yesterday by three judges of the Tenth Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.

Refusing to protect the copyright on the plan, held by the Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., of Denver, the Court affirmed a lower court ruling for Fred Gantz of Sand Springs, Ok. Attorneys said the opinion would have the effect of permitting theaters to hold "bank nights" without paying fees to the company.

Emmet Thurmon, attorney for Affiliated Enterprises, said "we will take the case to the United States Supreme Court." He asserted five State Supreme Courts had upheld the plan.

Mrs. Leonard C. Hanna Dies.

WELL I'LL TELL YOU—By BOB BURNS

IN SELECTIN' a house or farm or a horse, sometimes the advice of your kinfolks comes in purty handy. But when it comes to affairs of the heart, they'd do purty well to keep out of it. I'll never forgit the time that Uncle Ukle started runnin' around with the widow Buppy. It purty near worried my kinfolks to death and we figgered that it was up to one of us to tell him about her. Finally they picked on me to break the news to him. Well, I figgered that it'd break Uncle Ukle's heart so I took him on a trip way back in the mountains thinkin' maybe the pure mountain air might help cleanse his heart of the bitter sorrow. Just before we reached the spot where I was to tell him, we stopped in a little store and Uncle Ukle asked the storekeeper how the candy was. The storekeeper says "Our candy is as sweet and pure as the girl of your dreams" and Uncle Ukle says "Well, maybe you'd better give me a plug of chawin' tobaccer."

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

Nero, in London.
The King May Say No.
The President Comes Home.
War as Soon as—

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(Copyright, 1936.)

MARLOWE'S "face that launched a thousand ships and burned the topless towers of Ilium," has not disappeared from the earth. The face of a charming young Baltimore lady has power to upset the British Empire, causing the Cabinet to say to the King-Emperor, "Choose between your throne and her."

Nero, fiddling while Rome burned, might be called a serious statesman compared with the British Cabinet, with the danger of world war blazing around it, threatening to upset the British Empire from within, over the silly issue of the King's right to marry a respectable and desirable young woman.

The latest news reports the King ready to defy Stanley Baldwin, the Prime Minister, and the virtuous British middle classes that would not object, and have not objected, in the past, to half a dozen or more royal mistresses, their illegitimate children transformed into Dukes, by royal order.

Only yesterday, England's population and press were praising the King as a great business builder for the Empire, the faithful worker for his people. England's present middle-class ingratitude reminds you of the treatment accorded to Lloyd George after his courage, resourcefulness and energy, combined with the fighting spirit of the old Frenchman Clemenceau, had saved the British and their allies from defeat.

The sympathizers of this country are with the King, regardless of the fact that the lady in the case happens to be of American birth.

Europe and the world in general are in a dangerous condition; the British Empire might be broken up, from the air, in a dozen places. Somebody ought to read to Prime Minister Baldwin the saying about "changing horses while crossing a stream."

But those tender words about "all for love and the world (empire) well lost" may not interest young King Edward, who possesses will power, and has been brought up in an atmosphere not calculated to develop submissive humility. To abdicate would be to "quit," and the King has done nothing that would justify his being made "a quitter."

A job is what you make it; the King may decide to prove that a British monarch is not necessarily a figurehead. If the Cabinet resigns, there will be a general election, and the King might win it, with the help of the radio; Baldwin could hardly keep him "off the air." There is hypocrisy in England, but if the King should say to the people, "I have given my word, do you wish me to break it?" the answer should be No.

You've heard, perhaps, that the value of American home-made securities has risen within a year by 15 billion dollars. That value went on increasing yesterday; stocks went up. In England, because a pleasant young man plans to marry a thoroughly estimable young woman, British stocks fell down. Men are little; little things influence them more than big things.

In this proud Democratic republic, Mrs. "Wally" Simpson has driven the President of the United States away from many front pages, but you will want to know that he is on his way home, from Buenos Aires, after stopping to congratulate the President of Uruguay on "great advances in behalf of the well-being of your citizens."

In his brief address, the President said, "The first battlefield of peace is that of securing well-being at home."

Even Maine and Vermont will agree to that; the question is: How can it be done?

Newton D. Baker, Woodrow Wilson's Secretary of War, who celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday yesterday, says war will start, in a big way, "as soon as statesmen make up their minds either that they want to fight or that they can't help fighting." It may happen also when some "statesman" makes a foolish mistake and some equally foolish nation begins shooting. One small, unimportant murder was enough to start the big war.

The spectacle of Madrid under bombardment should hold back the world war that threatens, but human beings learn slowly.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend, who had a plan to give every old person $200 a month, in indicted by a grand jury for contempt because he "walked out on" a House investigating committee. Congressmen used to walk around Dr. Townsend in gingerly fashion, for maybe he DID have the balance of power in his pocket. The Maine-Vermont Republican vote calmed those fears, and assorted would-be dictators have shrunk in importance.

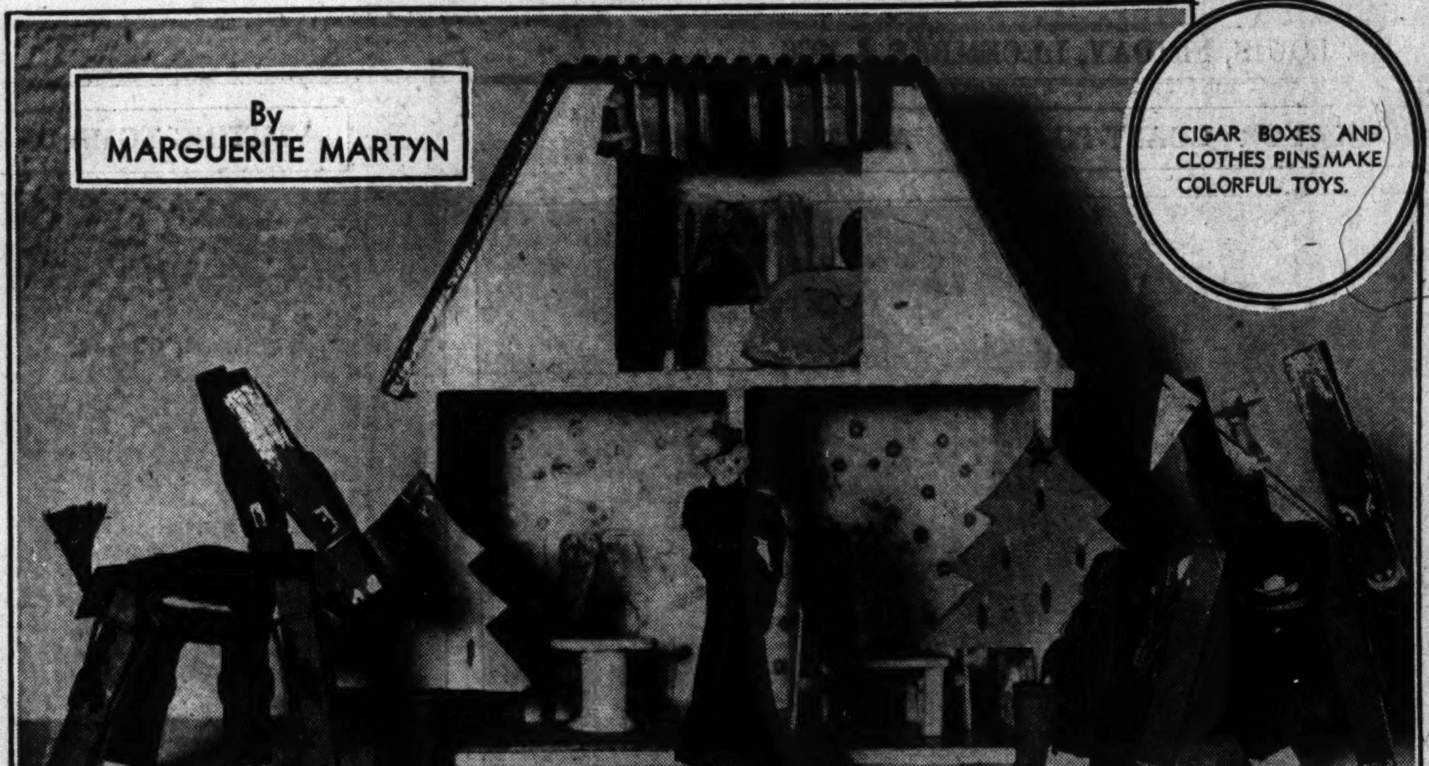
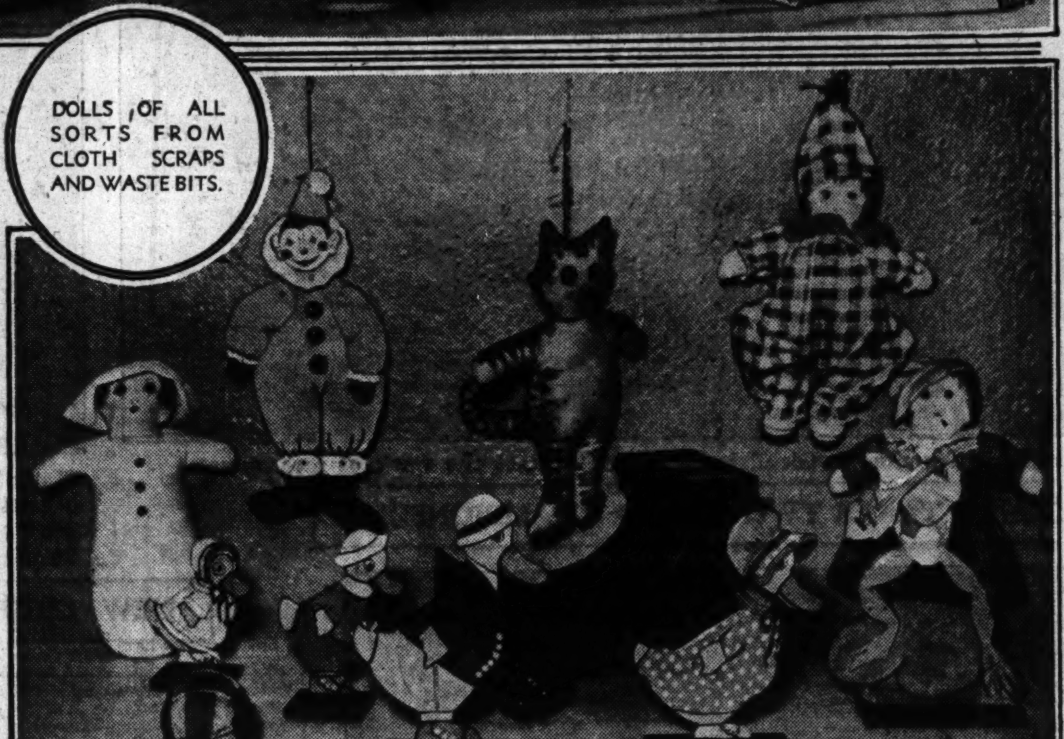
ODDS and ENDS TURN into TOYS

For 20 Years Ethical Society Group Has Created Novel Christmas Gifts

By MARGUERITE MARTYN



CIGAR BOXES AND CLOTHES PINS MAKE COLORFUL TOYS.



DOLLS OF ALL SORTS FROM CLOTH SCRAPS AND WASTE BITS.

A TROOP of Canadian Mounties, themselves dressed up tiny clothespins, their steeds made of clothespins—rather stiff legged as they stretch into a gallop and with ears so long they may be mistaken for mules, but all the funnier for that. Doll houses made of cigar boxes painted white with tile roofs of corrugated paper painted red, properly wall-papered inside, windows complete with lace curtains, awnings, flowerboxes, white iron grill work of lace paper from candy boxes, floors laid with pictures of rugs cut from catalogues, furniture made of spools and bits of cigarbox wood. Nothing lavish about them, but quaint and cute.

Menageries of highly colored animals scroll-sawed out of cigarbox wood, animals that stand alone, rock or roll or move in various ways, though without any of the intricate machinery of expensive mechanical toys. Jointed jumping jacks and all kinds of paper dolls representing humorous characters, cut from the card board the laundries send home in clean shirts. Nothing intricate about them, either, but amusing and stimulating to childish imagination without being too exciting. Checker boards made of laundry card board. Checkers of small darning cotton spools, painted red and black. Other block games of pieces decorated with the emblems of cigar bands. Ring toss games made of discarded spool winders from a factory, the rings, nothing more than Mason jar rubbers.

Puzzles in cellophane covered boxes backed by picture cards and enclosing shot you are supposed to trap into grooves and hollows. Scrap books and jig saw puzzles cut from magazine pictures, subjects being suited to the very juvenile mind. Little red wagons, all shapes and designs, made of cigar boxes, their wheels of typewriter ribbon winders. Gay balls that really bounce though their insides are nothing but old newspaper wadded up, covered with pieces of stocking stitched all over with colored yarns. Small tables with spool legs, doll beds with clothespin bed posts, breakfast trays, highly decorated, made of discarded school drawing boards. A stylish young lady, her body a clothes pin, platinum blonde hair of fuzzy pipe cleaner wire, her graceful arms of the same material. Cuddly and spankable dolls made of unbleached muslin stuffed with cotton, dressed in gay prints. And animals, birds, insects made of clothespins with ears, perhaps, or wings or flippers made of little wooden ice cream spoons. Yellow ducks and other cutouts attached to clothespins that enable them to roost securely on any sharp edge.

It's wonderful what can be done with clothespins, pipe cleaners, spools, button molds, lollypop sticks, bits of wire the Sunday paper comes wrapped in, corks, paper clips, hairpins, bits of lace, ribbon, colored string, old gloves, stockings, scraps of cotton prints. You'd think so if you saw the display of more than a thousand fascinating toys at the Ethical Society toy shop last week and were told how they didn't cost anything at all. Or practically nothing. The toy shop society which made them comprises 21 members who pay annual dues of 50 cents each and that provides the entire working capital. The toys are made of odds and ends and scraps which otherwise would find their way to waste baskets and rag bags.

But you can't put a price on the ingenuity, time, skill, industry, planning, direction, faithfulness and loving care that go into the making of them. For 20 years the same organization of women and a few men who have a taste for handicraft, have been meeting one afternoon and evening a week from the first of October through November, inventing and making these absolutely priceless toys to be distributed among charitable institutions at Christmas time.

IT was no part of the fiftieth anniversary observance of the founding of the Ethical Society but since that date and the twentieth anniversary of the toy shop society coincided, the latter thought they'd celebrate, too, with the biggest and best toy display they ever have had. It was no part of the august program going on in the lecture hall, but many a two-story thinker on the programs, stole into the toy shop to enjoy a lighter interlude. To have a good laugh, perhaps, at a puppet, a lifelike image of Ethical Leader Emeritus Percival Chubb, alongside likenesses of comic strip characters he himself has been known to deride.

Miss Josie K. Wangelin, a teacher of art crafts and maker of hand-wrought jewelry, and her sister, Miss Hattie Wangelin, also an artist, are leading spirits in the toy shop at present. They have been making Christmas toys out of any materials that came to hand since they were small children living in the country where there were no toy shops and having an artistic mother who taught them to make Christmas tree decorations of puff balls, pods, berries, vine leaves and things that grew in the woods and fields. Their father, too, joining in producing Christmas surprises in his workshop winter evenings.

The Misses Wangelin learned a lot those days about making something out of nothing, so much that even now they cannot pass a trash pile without examining it to see if there isn't something out of which a toy can be contrived. Meanwhile having all their friends saving waste baskets and rag bag rubbish for their sorting.

Both have studied at art schools, acquiring all the craft techniques, but at Christmas time memories hark back to when the simplest things delighted them as much and more than if there were a wealth of materials to revel in. Something of that same joy in simpler, less sophisticated, less realistic toys that leave something for the development of imagination, they would impart to children of today. Also they would instruct grownups in the art of making toys of inexpensive materials. A collection made by the Ethical Society toy shop was taken, as samples, by a Red Cross field worker to a backwoods settlement where children never had seen a toy. Seeing how simply made, how easily available the materials, the whole community set to work copying them.

The present collection of over a thousand toys is destined for children who are wards of social settlements, day nurseries, hospitals and children of families on relief. Richer children would delight in them, too, no doubt, for happily kids don't usually value things according to their costs and often disappoint indulgent parents by preferring their least expensive toy.

"Children Must Complete Their School Terms"

They Need to Learn Business World Wants Competent Thorough Men.

By Angelo Patri

NOW, nearing term-end, heads of schools are distressed by the requests of school-weary boys and girls to allow them to stop where they are and call it a school day. With six months to go to graduation, maybe a year, a student says, "I don't care about a diploma. I want to go to work, or to a business school, or anywhere else on earth but school." That is bad business for the student.

Angelo Patri

Any halfway intelligent boy or girl can complete a high school course and get a diploma. All it requires is steady routine work, sufficient application to study lessons that can be learned if there is the will to learn them. In these days of liberal courses there is no excuse for not finishing the job of school or college education.

These facts are well known and accepted by everybody so that when a young person confesses that he has no diploma, nothing to show that he had the intelligence and the perseverance to finish a job he had begun, the general idea is that the young person is lacking in ordinary ability. Ordinary ability, you see, covers intelligence and character. Most people can finish what they begin. Those that cannot—and to quit school on the eve of graduation indicates a failure—are not likely to be considered when the search for reliable, responsible, able people is going forward.

This is to be pointed out to all school-weary students, to all those who feel themselves competent to go out into the world and master its problems without first applying themselves to securing the best possible preparation. Education and training are essential to any such preparation. Every term completed in school or college is just so many pounds of power in mind and body. Nothing that a student learns is ever wasted.

I CAN hear voices, "What good is Latin? A lot of good this geometry will do me. What's the good of French? I can't learn it. How long am I to stay in school? I want to get a job and go to work earning my own living and being my own boss." And many more such ill thought out phrases indicate the great need of a further education and training for these very grumblers.

The business world wants no unprepared helpers. It needs competent, able people who can carry a job through to its finish. There are millions of people who are useless in business because they have not the power to see through a process and to carry through to the end if they do see it. They have never held their minds down to the task in hand long enough to see it clearly. All intelligent, able people have the power to do this, and that is what makes them able and successful. Nobody ever got anywhere by running away from his task.

Teachers have to try to hold such students. Parents have to try to show them the need for finishing their courses, to leave a finished job behind them. This is the process that turns untrained children into able leaders and efficient workers. Hold fast to it and see it through.

Angelo Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three cent stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

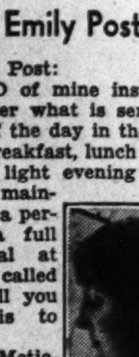
Distinctions In the Day's Various Meals

Type, Not Time, Decides Classification — Finger Bowl Propriety.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

A FRIEND of mine insists that no matter what is served, the meals of the day in their order are called breakfast, lunch and dinner, and a light evening meal is supper. I maintain that if a person eats a full course meal at noon it is called dinner. Will you explain this to us?



Emily Post

Answer: Meticulously speaking, dinner, no matter whether served at mid-day or in the evening, begins with soup in plates set on a tablecloth, and is followed by meat and vegetables, and there is no cup and saucer for a hot beverage on the table. It is the tablecloth and the soup in the soup plate, and the absence of cups and saucers, that classifies the meal as dinner. Until lately the presence of bread and butter plates also banished the name of dinner. Supper is recognized principally because set on a bare table, and it has cups and saucers and hot coffee, tea or chocolate on the table, and soup, if any, is served in cups. The difference between lunch and supper is that one is at mid-day and the other is in the evening. Less meticulously but according to its more usual interpretation, dinner is the substantial meal of the 24 hours, no matter at what time it is eaten, and the other meal is either lunch or supper.

Dear Mrs. Post: When the finger bowl is brought to the table on the dessert plate, on which is a lace doily, how does one remove the finger bowl to the table, and where is it put? Is the doily removed with it or is dessert put on the doily?

Answer: The doily should be lifted off with the finger bowl and both put down at your place wherever there is room. On no account put anything eatable on top of a lace doily.

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell me whether you think I can use a big silver electric coffee percolator, which has a spigot, as a water kettle on a large afternoon tea table?

Answer: If there is an electric outlet under your table so that no one will trip over the cord, there is no reason why you shouldn't use it.

Dear Mrs. Post: My living room table is a solid maple refectory style, which must necessarily be used as a dining table in our small apartment. Colored glasses on the maple table would, I believe, be most effective, but as many of my linen place mats are in color I shall run into trouble if I choose a particular color in glassware. Would you suggest that I buy white glasses and simply add color in candles and the center decorations?

Answer: White glass is of course the color of safety, since it goes with everything. On the other hand, amber glass looks particularly well with maple and might possibly look well with the colors you are thinking of using. This suggestion is merely for your consideration.

LAID OFF FROM WORK BY CONSTIPATION

"For four years I suffered from constipation. I had gotten so weak I had to lay off from work. My doctor told me to use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Since then, my grocery list has never been complete without it."—Mr. A. W. Murphy, 1010 16th St., Tuscaloosa, Alabama.

This delicious cereal will give you the same, sure relief. Laboratory tests prove it's safe. Within the body, its "bulk" absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the intestines. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B which tones the intestines, and iron for the blood.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. Serve as a cereal or cook into appetizing recipes. Isn't this natural food better than pills and drugs?

When you're at the grocery store today, get a package of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Try it a week, and see if you don't feel worlds better. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

The dandruff and falling out may be due to excessive oil of the scalp. Washing it more frequently is necessary for that kind of hair, but this can be overdone. You will save time, and perhaps money, by going to a specialist for examination and treatment. Another Hand Submitted by A Bridge Spy Doubled Game for North-South That Might Have Gone Other Way.

By Ely Culbertson

"DEAR CHIEF: I am afraid that my anonymity is wearing a bit thin. I have noticed some uneasy stares directed at me by commuters who may have recognized in your column, hands that came up in their own game. My salvation, so far, has been that I am only one of six or seven possible suspects: The regular kibitzers who festoon the surrounding seats in the smoking car. It did not occur to me that any of the actual characters in my dramas might recognize themselves in your column. As a matter of fact I didn't know that commuters could read, and thought they bought the newspapers only for the cross-word puzzles.

Ely Culbertson

"Well, as long as I still am undetected and, consequently, unshot, here is a gem for your collection.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West

"East-West were not playing the Culbertson optional double of preemptive bids and, therefore, East took his partner's double to be of the penalty variety. Of course, had he been able to foresee what West would defend against four spades like a lame duck he would have run to five diamonds.

"West opened the club king and obviously was disappointed when dummy's substantial heart suit and generally good hand appeared on the board. From the hurry with which he tried to cash his tricks it was quite obvious that he was frightened to death that declarer would discard a flock of losers on the hearts. Having noted the fall of East's club ten he played the ace and, when East failed to follow, a cagy gleam appeared in West's eye. It was easy to see what he was contemplating. He would give East a club ruff. First, however, probably as a supposed precaution, he planked down the diamond ace, and that was the beginning of the end.

"DECLARER ruffed, and now did just what misguided East had foolishly intended to do. He ruffed a club in the dummy, thereby giving East the opportunity to overruff, if he could! Because the declarer could see, of course, that the only thing East could overruff with was the ace of trumps, and he had little fear that that card was in East's hand. The king of diamonds provided a discard for declarer's fourth club, and the rest of the hand, of course, was a laydown on the concession of the ace of spades.

"Exactly why West should have feared dummy's heart suit, as long as he retained control of the other three suits, including trumps, would be hard to discover. With the club ten dropping from the East hand on the first lead the correct line of play was marked. West should have shifted immediately to a low trump. To lead the ace and another would, of course, be giving up control of the hand, since declarer then could draw trumps and run off hearts, but, against the low trump shift, declarer would be completely helpless. If he attempted to get a discard on a heart West would ruff in, draw dummy's remaining trump and later run off club tricks. If declarer attempted to ruff clubs in the dummy, West merely would win the second trick and proceed as before.

"To penalize the contract 300 points instead of presenting North-South with a doubled game would not have required much genius."

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Partner opened the bidding with one diamond. Next hand passed. I held:

♠K J 5 ♥A K Q 3 ♦Q 10 5 4 2 ♣6

Should I show the heart suit or raise diamonds?

Answer: Either two hearts or three diamonds would be correct. Both are forcing. Three diamonds might be preferred to set the trump suit for asking bids.

PRESIDENT'S BODYGUARD — and FRIEND

Loyal Yet Carefree, Gus Gennerich's Personality Lightened Entire "Official Family" Atmosphere

By
Raymond P. Brandt
Staff Correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.

THE tradition of the United States Secret Service is that a member of the White Detail must be prepared to give his life if necessary to protect the President. That is one reason why at least one well-dressed and sometimes distinguished looking man appears at the President's side at all public gatherings. This man is a secret service bodyguard who would step in the path of an assassin's bullet should the Chief Executive's life be in danger.

To August A. Gennerich, who died unexpectedly in Buenos Aires this week, the secret service tradition was merely a crystallization of his own feeling for President Roosevelt, to whom he had been a personal bodyguard since 1928. Called "Gus" by the President, the Roosevelt family and hundreds of Washington officials and newspaper men, he brought carefree humor, a vivid personality and an unawed viewpoint to the painstaking and at times, nervous, job of guarding the President. A member of the Roosevelt household, he remained in heart and in action a happy-go-lucky New York cop who wanted to see everybody happy. His record on the New York police force proved him a courageous man.

Although there are a score or more secret service men detailed to the White House, "Gus" was the most intimate with the President and was an almost constant companion for the past eight years.

He regarded himself as one of the family and he had expected to live on a farm in Dutchess County near "the Boss" after the President retired from Washington. He lived at the White House and roamed through the rooms and grounds as though it was the only home he had known.

Since 1928, when he was detailed by the New York City Police Department to guard the then New York Governor, he has grown up with the Roosevelt children. One of the Gennerich legends is that early one morning shortly after the President's inauguration, the White House establishment was aroused by weird sounds from the expansive east room, the scene of the elaborate official entertainments. Mrs. Roosevelt and some of the servants tiptoed down stairs to find the cause of the commotion. They discovered "Gus" at the huge gilded piano laboriously picking out the notes of "The Sidewalks of New York."

Shortly thereafter, runs another legend, the President was conferring with a congressional committee at Hyde Park on intricate tax legislation. The conference in the second floor sitting room was interrupted by a wall-shaking crash from the floor above, and then came a booming voice.

"That'll teach yuh not to tease me any more."

It was "Gus" addressing Towering Young John Roosevelt, whom he had downed in a tussle.

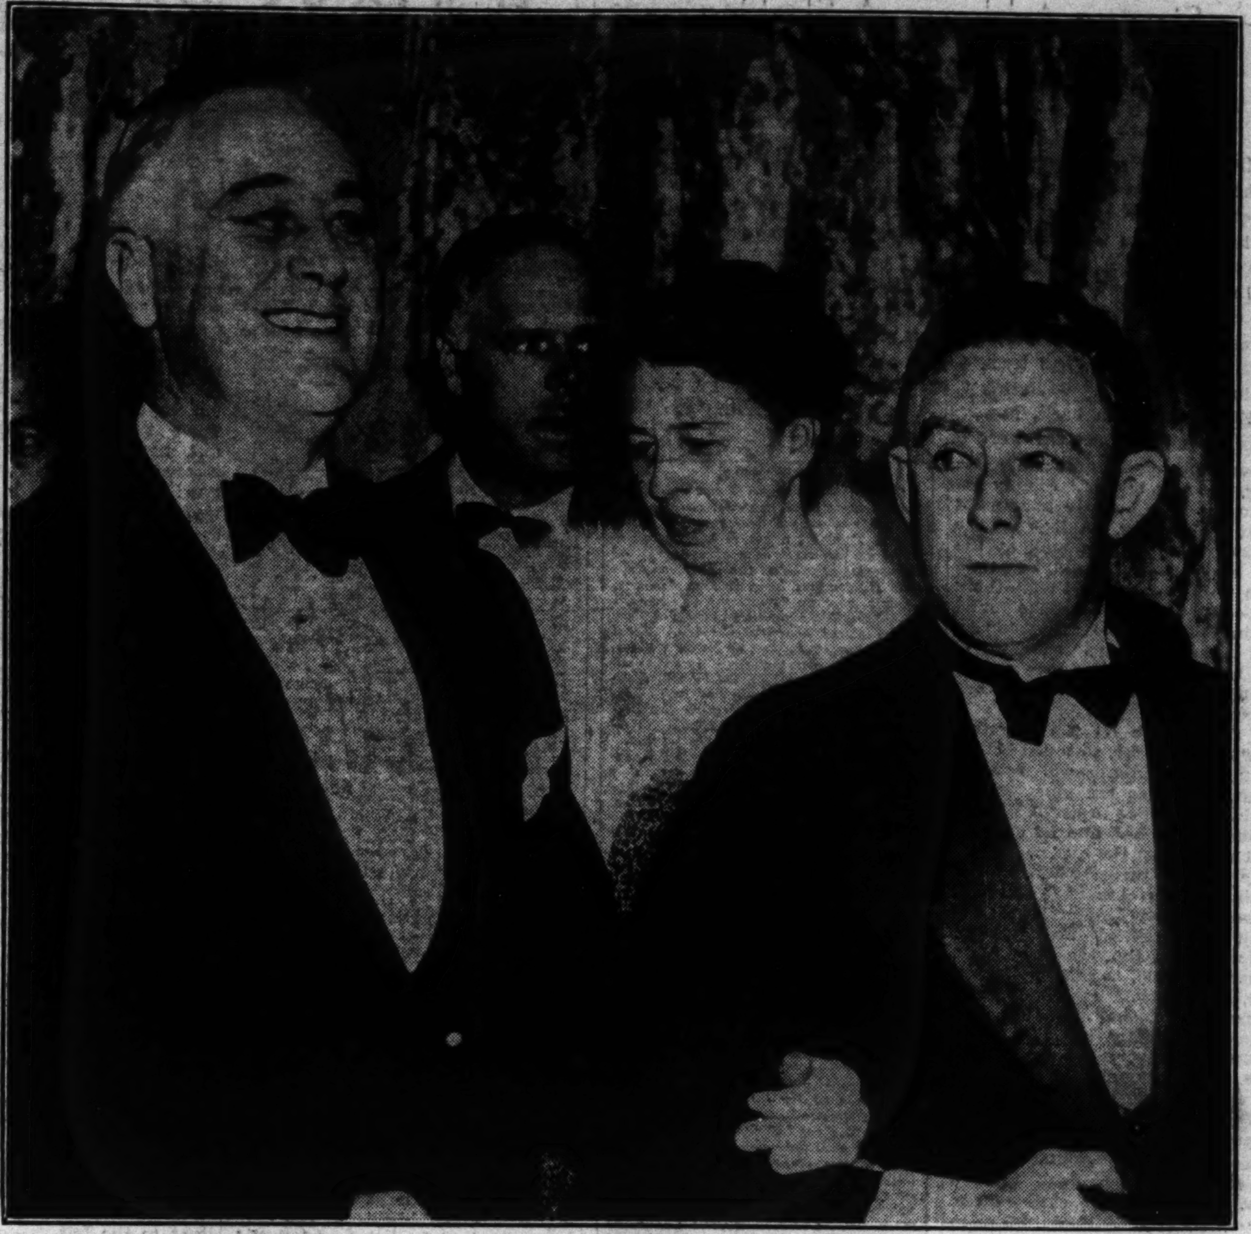
ALTHOUGH about 50 years old at the time, "Gus" was hard as a rock and the equal of any young football player. He took daily physical exercise to keep in condition and his well-knit figure concealed his weight of 195 pounds.

There have been occasions when he has picked up in his arms the President—who weighs about 185 pounds—and carried him to a chair. He acquired great tact in his duties with the President. One of his cares was to see that no one else, who did not know the proper precautions, attempt to help the President in and out of a chair or an automobile. Gennerich knew what to do without being told and was so unobtrusive that many audiences and callers never realized the extent of the President's physical handicap caused by infantile paralysis. At dinners such as those at the National Press Club, he arranged with the chairman to be signaled when the President was about to be called on. He usually sat at a table directly in front of "the Boss" and quietly moved to the back of the President's chair at the speakers' table.

He was about 5 feet 10 inches tall and had enormous biceps and heavy shoulders. Some 30 years ago, according to his New York associates, he was known as "The One-Man Track Team" of the Pastime Athletic Club. He joined the New York police force when he was 22 years old and before long he was made a motorcycle patrolman.



GUS GENNERICH IN HIS FAVORITE ROLE OF BODYGUARD TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, ACCOMPANIED BY MRS. ROOSEVELT, AT A SOCIAL FUNCTION.

As a policeman, he received three citations for bravery and outstanding service, one of them the Departmental Medal of Honor. The medal was for his capture of two gangsters in 1925 who fired at him with a machine gun from their automobile. Gennerich kept after them until the car turned over and he had captured the thugs. He received a citation for excellent duty in connection with a fire in 1911, and was commended in 1914 for having arrested an Italian who had shot a man and was attempting to shoot two policemen.

It is customary for the New York police to assign a detective to guard the New York Governor and in 1928 Gennerich was assigned to Mr. Roosevelt. When he came to Washington with the new President in 1933, he was still carried on the roster of the New York police. Shortly thereafter he transferred to the Secret Service of the Treasury Department.

Usually these Secret Service men detailed at the White House resent the presence of an outsider who they think might have influence with their charge. That was true when Lawrence Richey, a former Secret Service man, came to the White House as secretary to President Hoover.

A reporter once asked an old Secret Service man how his colleagues like Gennerich.

"They are all for him," the old official replied. "He's working for all of us. When the economy act was passed, we were reduced from $6 to $3 a day for expenses while traveling with the President. Gus fixed that up for us at Warm Springs. Secretary Morgenthau came down to see the President and before he could get out of his car, Gus went up to him and said, 'Henry, what th' hell do you mean by cutting us down to $3 a day?'

"Secretary Morgenthau asked him what he was talking about. When Gus explained, the Secretary said it had been done without his knowledge. Gus said, 'Henry, I want this fixed up right away. No stallin'. We can't live on $3 a day.'

"And the Secretary saw to it that the old rate was restored."

"Did he usually call Secretary Morgenthau 'Henry'? the reporter asked.

"Why, he used to call Secretary Woodin 'pops,' the Secret Service man replied.

WHITE HOUSE dignity found no place in Gennerich's life. At one of the most formal dinners—in honor of the members of the Supreme Court—he stopped a guest whom he knew by standing in the door to dining room and with grin said: "They don't allow the likes of you in there."

At another dinner, while the guests were assembled in the east room for the musicale, the roving eye of a guest near the door saw Gennerich in the outer reception room do a pantomime of leading the Marine band while the mute musicians smiled at his antics.

When he had nothing else to do, he would sit by the hour feeding the squirrels in the White House grounds or go across Pennsylvania avenue to Lafayette Park and help the children feed the pigeons.

But he was most at home with the children at Warm Springs, where next to the President he was the favorite. After the 1932 campaign, Fred Botts, manager of the Foundation, gave a long, learned and historical talk leading up to the introduction of Gennerich.

"We want Gus," chanted the patients.

"I'm just like the Governor," he said, referring to President-elect Roosevelt. "I lost my voice in the campaign speaking for him."

Roosevelt in a speech which followed, said, 'Gus is a disgrace and needs elocution lessons."

Gennerich reveled in the recent campaign with its huge crowds and excitement. Secret Service men are under instructions not to look at the President; their eyes must be always on the crowd, looking for any suspicious motion. There is a story, probably apocryphal, that several years ago a Western Mayor was cracked over the head with a Secret Service blackjack when he reached into his hip pocket for a handkerchief.

Gennerich enjoyed the applause and the pictures taken of him standing by the President. While his eyes roamed over the crowd he listened intently to the President's speech and if the crowd didn't applaud quickly enough, the bodyguard became a one-man claque.

When the President traveled by automobile, Gennerich rode with the chauffeur. As the campaign wore on, reporters noticed that he waved to the cheering crowds as much as his Chief. Gennerich always claimed that he was waving to friends.

Secretly Morgenthau, although Gennerich's official superior, treated him as a friend and took great pleasure in chiding him about his farm in Dutchess County, where some of New York's richest and most aristocratic families have country places. President Roosevelt had helped him select the farm and Mrs. Roosevelt had helped him decorate it. The thought of a gusty New York policeman on a 150-acre farm seemed to tickle Morgenthau. But Gennerich always had a ready answer for the Secretary of the Treasury.

Gennerich's favorite greeting for the high and low in Washington official life was 'How're yuh, pal, how're yuh?" His innate gaity did much to sweep away the pretentions of Washington life but he never forgot his duty. He was, as Secretary Morgenthau said, "an able, alert and loyal servant of the public."

Is Work Ever Without Its Painful Side?

"It Always Carries With It Fatigue, Failure, and Revolt."

By Elsie Robinson

(Copyright, 1936.)

PAINLESS INDUSTRY—there's the first requisite of a successful career, according to many moderns. Time was when we took our jobs as we did our castor oil—with grim endurance. Work, we were constantly reminded, was the original curse laid upon disobedient Adam, and sensible folk accepted it as such. Some jobs were fun part of the time, and all jobs were fun some of the time, but no one but a looney expected any job to be fun all of the time.

Elsie Robinson

Suddenly the Motor Age arrived and everything was changed. In came the machine age; out went elbow grease. Sweat and sacrifice, we decided, were no longer necessary. Only saps worked. Smart folks sat around and let the push-buttons do it.

Forthwith, all of our better minds began looking for the easiest way to accomplish nothing. Book shops became flooded with Happy Hints on How to Live and Like It. Particularly popular are formulas guaranteed to take the moan out of matrimony and the try out of industry.

Jobs must be joyous or there's something wrong with them. If your career bores you, quit it. Idleness under such conditions isn't shameful, as our doddering elders supposed. It isn't laziness—not really. It's just the Gypsy in You, seeking its proper astral adjustment. Or something. And eating on the homefolks meanwhile.

WHICH is certainly a sweet notion, if you can get by with it. But now comes Ida N. Tarbell—the old meanie!—and blasts the whole racket to smithereens in the December issue of Cosmopolitan. And Ida oughta know better. For 56 of her 79 years she has been a writer. Now writing, as everyone knows, is supposed to be one of those things that just bubble up spontaneously. You don't have to "work" at writing—you just sit still and let literature happen.

Such, I repeat, is the popular notion of writing—a notion enthusiastically accepted by several hundred thousand yearning amateurs who are having a Perfectly Ducky time sitting around waiting to become geniuses—while someone else does the breakfast dishes. And now Miss Tarbell spoils everything by announcing that there isn't a word of truth in it!

Writing, announces this heartless woman—is hard work! And then proceeds to paint this revolting picture of an author's travail.

"I have never in my life," says she, "undertaken a fresh piece of work that I have not been obliged to take myself by the scruff of the neck and seat myself at my desk and keep my hand on the scruff until my revolt had subsided."

Moreover, she's convinced that it is quite impossible to stay idle and be happy. For—"this is a working universe . . . there is no spot in it which stands still. Every star is on the move . . . The earth tolerates no dead beats; it keeps everything busy . . . If I am to be happy in this steady working world I must work, too; otherwise I'll suffer discomfort, uneasiness . . . There is a vast unhappiness, inexplicable to those it afflicts, which comes from idleness in a working world. The idle are self-destructive as would be a star which announced that it was going to stand still for an eon or two."

Nor does she, you'll note, say a word about your job being fun—or even congenial. To the contrary she calmly announces that work is never a snap. It always "carries with it fatigue, disappointment, failure, revolt."

In short—there is no Painless Industry! And only sissies demand it.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.

AS a close observer of winter sports (from a safe distance, of course, and usually by an open fire) I now feel safe in saying that skating, among the local pink- this season over the fine old art of skiing, among the local pink-cheeked Girls Who Do Things.

In the first place, this town abounds in rinks, both outdoor and of the roofed variety, whereas devotees of the twin barrel-staves must take a train in search of a minor Alp. In the second place, the fair sportswomen always have their eagle eyes cocked for the latest and most fetching sort of costume in which to perform their didoes, and the pretty new figure-skating outfits now being artfully promoted are a pleasant change from last year's coverall ski-duds.

So it's ho for the figure-eight, the pigeon-wing and the lusty thump as derriere meets ice! The fact that Sonja Henie's first skating movie is about to burst will not do the sport any harm either, for she is a dream skating, if ever one live.

A couple of our smart girls named Miriam Whittemore and Helena Horton, sensing the trend toward the gleaming runners, have done a whirlwind job of selling the skate-suit idea to the Gotham fair. They've set up a regular rink in a big Fifth avenue department store, and professional customers will show the lady customers just how cute they can look (they hope) whirling around in these short skirts with hems running from 90 to 108 inches. Knitted hats and gloves, sweaters and jackets and 42-inch stockings are also part of the fashion picture. It's all wonderful—and I'll be glad to see them in the newsreels!

AS you may have read, Rose, the famous Pekinese who was stuck in last year's local social register as a gag by her owners, the young George L. K. Morrises, didn't make the book this year. It's rank discrimination, I say.

Margaret Sullavan is honeymoonless, and laboring nightly in "Stage Door," the hit show, while Leland Heyward, the husband, is away on business. Odd note is that Maggie plays a non-drinking actress in the play—and her fellow-actors chipped in 37 cents apiece to buy the girl a large jug of champagne! She's just bought a nice tidy estate over in Jersey against the time she and Leland settle down and achieve a family.

The skaters are busy, but the ski-folk are doing all right, too. A potent avenue emporium has again installed its rock-salt Matternhorn, and Sig Buchmayr, hot from the Tyrol, is teaching the girls how to take their jumps with grace and charm. So the ducky little Tyrolean jackets and the cunnin' feather in the hat are with us once more . . .

I suppose thousands of us were waiting for the inevitable word that Mrs. W. Simpson won the heart of royalty by whipping him up corn pone and the fancier gastronomic delights of the Free State. It had to come—and it has, along with reams of the most unmitigated tosh that ever surrounded an international romance . . .

Out of our thousands of weird organizations here probably my favorite is The Millionaires' Alimony Defense Society, organized by Samuel W. Rushmore, who spent $85,000 getting rid of his missus. Qualifications for membership are a million and wife-trouble, and what a combo that is. Rushmore has already lined up six of the poor boys to fight the present alimony laws of the grand old State of New York. If the lads don't ante up here, you know, they get tossed into the Thirty-seventh street clink practically forever . . .

Ever hear of an "ash-can hat?" Oh, I know we've all seen 'em—but that's the name given here by the trade to those second-hand hats placed on sale without new labels announcing the fact that the sky-pieces are used. The sale of "ash-can hats" has risen to the dignity of a regular racket here, and seven gents were given stiffish fines the other day for the practice. Twenty-three small-time hat manufacturers were arrested for this foul deed.

Teach the very young child his name, address and city as soon as possible. Go over it as you would a game until it is firm in his mind.

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

HELIUM is a gas which is much lighter than the gases we breathe. Nitrogen, which constitutes about 80 per cent of the air, is seven times heavier than helium.

Dr. Clendening

Some years ago, an ingenious physician thought there might be some advantage in this property to patients who had a hard time getting the breath. In asthma, for instance, there is a continuous difficulty in breathing, probably due to a partial obstruction of the smaller bronchial tubes. The patient is constantly under the painful necessity of using all the accessory muscles of respiration to get any air into the lungs, and even more to get it out.

"Wouldn't a thinner and lighter gas go through the narrowed air tubes easier?" he asked. And then he tried it out.

Making a mixture of 79 per cent helium and 21 per cent oxygen, it was found that the pressure required for the movement of this mixture through the air passages is about one-half that required for air. Air is a mixture of about 79 per cent nitrogen and about 21 per cent oxygen at sea level. Hydrogen and carbon dioxide exist only in fractional amounts.

In asthma, this mixture has been found very useful. Some patients who appear to be just about at the end of their rope, and who can get no relief from the drug, adrenalin, are made quite comfortable in a helium-oxygen atmosphere.

This atmosphere may be obtained by building a special room in the hospital, and pumping the artificial air into it at one corner and drawing it out at another. Or it can be obtained by a small tent which fits over the patient's head in bed. Or, by having the patient suck it in and out of a can, which has a movable inside—spirometer.

THE asthmatic patient in this atmosphere is relieved somewhat within a few minutes. In two to eight hours the spasm is very much relieved, and the breathing becomes easier and stays so for some time. Curiously, the relief of the spasm overcomes the patient's refractoriness to adrenalin. Adrenalin is, in most instances, the most reliable drug we have for cases of intractable asthma. It relieves by relaxing the spasms of the bronchial tubes. But the doses have to be made larger and larger for relief, and sometimes a patient loses all sensitivity to the drug and gets no relief, no matter what the dose given. So it is a help of the first grade to get this sensitivity back.

The mixture has been found useful in other conditions—shortness of breath from heart disease, chronic bronchitis.

So man, in his ingenuity, has created an improved air.

IN LOVE WITH A T-MAN

A Serial Romance

By ROB.. EDEN

Carol Makes a Night Investigation of the Strange Address—A Startling Encounter.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE.

THE neighborhood was not a prepossessing one at night. Although the street lamps were as bright as they were in her own district, yet to Carol they seemed dimmer. The night was very dark, and very lonely as she walked along, slowly, now, because she had begun to be afraid.

In the daylight, her trip to 1649 Minor street, would not have been so bad, but at night and alone—several times she halted and wondered whether she should go back, forget the strange girl who left the strange card, and leave the whole business up to Fred Taggart in the morning. Certainly that would be the easiest way.

She didn't turn back, however, she kept on, wishing the three blocks from the street car were only one.

It was nothing dangerous she was doing, she told herself. Simply going to see who lived in apartment 150 at 1649 Minor. A look at the apartment building, a look at the mail boxes—there would be mail boxes with names on them—there were every place. When she found out the tenant of 150, she would go right home. Perhaps she would even take a taxi. Yes, she would, although she really couldn't afford one.

So few people on the streets—she would have felt so much better, so much safer, in a crowd. A woman ahead of her hurrying, almost running, a big bag in her left hand. No one behind her, and no one she could see across the street.

The woman turned into a flat building and Carol had the sidewalk to herself. Her heels clicked distressingly on cement—there was no comfort in her tap, tap, tap. They seemed too loud, too noisy for the quiet, still, hushed neighborhood.

A few cars rushed past, but they weren't comforting, either, because they were going too fast. Going home, she thought. That was where she should be.

At Tenth and Minor she came to the Minor Building, and looked up at the second-story windows.

The windows were dark, but she knew what the white card on one of them read. Not really white in the daytime and the sunlight, but a yellowed old white burned from sun and age. At night it was very white, though. Foster School of Art.

She stopped before the entrance, which was on Minor street, and looked up above the door to see if the address checked with the telephone book. It did, 1629 Minor. On the curb in front of the entrance were several large cans of trash waiting to be taken away in the early dawn. Through the glass entrance door of the Minor Building which gave the Foster art school its egress, she could see nothing, because there were no lights.

Farther on, she came to the alley and then to the Helena apartments.

The number was as faded and weathered as the name of the building above it, but it was the right number. All the way out from her home, she had been doubtful about the number—whether there was one at all. Whether her evening would be wasted and the mystery of the card deeper than ever.

She looked past the alley back to the Minor building, and then to the second story of the Minor building. Was it simply a coincidence that the school was so close? That was what Paul would say. That was what Fred would say.

Carol didn't know. She hoped not. She hoped that this Helena building was in some way connected with the school and Jessica.

"Well, here I am," she said to herself, but it seemed that she was uttering the words aloud. "Here I am."

A faint light was burning inside the glass-paneled door, but it was bright enough so that the girl could see dimly the entrance hall and in the darkness beyond what seemed to be a corridor. And some mail boxes inside the door to the left.

The door might be locked — it wasn't. She hardly touched the knob when it slid back, and she was in the entry, stumbling over the frayed doormat and thankful that she didn't have to come home night after night to a home like this.

FIRST she thought it was the damp acrid smell that depressed her so. Then she knew it was the place which must have been a home for so many years for so many people, people who didn't want to make it their home, and yet who had to. People who came and went without a thought of home.

For the small light did not erase any of the shabbiness, or the carelessness, or the neglect of the Helena. Once it might have been bright and new, the paint fresh and clean, the carpets shining. Now it sagged, inside as it did outside. I don't care, it might have been saying.

Even the mail boxes didn't care, 24 mail boxes, eight in a row and three tiers. Some of them were broken, the shields dropping down. All of them were tarnished, although they must have once been clean polished brass. How the postman found the proper boxes Carol didn't know.

Some of them were numbered and some of them were not. A few were closed and locked, and had fairly neat name cards in small glass slides, but 150 was not one of these. No. 150 was entirely missing from the cases. Carol went over the numbers carefully several times, but could find no box containing that number.

She counted five boxes unnumbered and unnamed.

No wiser than she had been when she started out, unless she looked from door to door, for the doors were all numbered. The door at her right across from the mail box held the number 101, and under the number, a card which read, "Manager. Inquire here for vacancies."

The door beyond that of the manager she could not see well on account of the bad light. She was stepping across the corridor away from the mail boxes when the door of 101 opened, and a woman stepped out.

"Looking for someone, Miss?" She was middle aged and very large.

"I was looking for Mrs. Campbell in 150—but I don't see her name on the box"—

"No Mrs. Campbell here at all. I'm the manager and I know all the tenants. Hasn't been a Mrs. Campbell here for a good while. Maybe four years. When she was here, she didn't occupy 150. She was upstairs. I can't remember the number."

"I was told that I'd find her in 150." Carol grew a little bolder. Perhaps the manager would tell her who was in 150. The manager did.

"Well, she's not there. Mr. Rhodes is there, and he's been there for a long time. You weren't looking for a flat, were you? I've got several vacancies. Nice places, couldn't find better ones in town for the money. Six dollars a week is what I get."

CAROL said she wasn't looking for a flat but would remember the price. Perhaps later. The manager popped back into her own flat and the girl was left alone in the hall.

Mr. Rhodes occupied number 150, whoever Mr. Rhodes was. . . .

It was her curiosity again that took hold of her when she was outside the entrance door on the sidewalk. Nothing but her curiosity. But it made her push open the glass door again, step past the mail boxes, past the little cubicle which was called a lobby but which was no more than a small square set in front of the door.

It brought her to the corridor which was merely a narrower extension of the lobby. A long passage, which had been carpeted decently once, and still was carpeted, but with the same original material, much worse for years and wear, the wear being supplemented in the bad spots with small rubber mats thrown down carelessly.

The doors flanking the hall on both sides were the worse for wear and age, too, and when the light from the lobby faded out Carol had no way to make out what the numbers were until she came to a break at the far end and saw another light to the left.

The left branching corridor was a short one, much shorter than the right, but she found what she wanted, the second door from the turn. No. 150.

She knew the position of No. 150, anyway. She could go home. With a little sigh of relief she turned, but as she turned, a man slipped into sight. One moment he was not there and the next he was. And he was Nick Oliver.

SYNOPSIS.

CAROL MAYO loves her employer, PAUL DEVLIN, who is, on the surface, a real estate dealer and is actually a T-MAN, a secret service operative on the trail of a clever band of counterfeiters. In the four months that Devlin has been in Los Angeles, he has become engaged to JESSICA REYNOLDS, a beautiful young widow whom Carol heartily dislikes. Carol even suspects Jessica of being a member of the counterfeiting band when she learns that NICK OLIVER, leader of the suspects, is in love with Jessica. She has not dared make the suggestion to Devlin, but FRED TAGGART, his assistant, laughs at her.

But Carol is right. Outwardly Jessica and Nick are merely friends, but they are really lovers, accustomed to meeting secretly in a cheap flat. Of late, however, Devlin has had Nick so closely shadowed they have not dared to meet. Hoping to get rid of him, for a time at least, Nick and Jessica plan an "accident" to Paul and Carol. But Devlin has been expecting some such move and, when a big truck attempts to ram his car one foggy night, he fires into the cab, wounding a man. After caring for Carol, Paul attempts to pick up the trail of the wounded man.

Paul does not learn that the wounded man is LARRY, younger brother of Nick, who with his wife, MARGARET, and SAM and NORA BOLES, their "servants," have been part of Nick's society "front." Nick refuses to have a doctor for Larry, and Margaret grows to hate Nick, holding him responsible for Larry's death. Though she is guarded every moment, she nevertheless manages to get a note to Carol Mayo, who she knows is Devlin's secretary. The note gives an address, 1649 Minor street, Apartment 150. Carol is curious about the address because it is so near the art school Jessica Reynolds attends, and because she knows that Fred would laugh at her, she starts out at night to investigate. Nick Oliver leaves his home about the same time as Carol and goes to meet Jessica in their cheap flat.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

by WYNN

For Saturday, Dec. 5.

FIRST of three days accenting business, occupational, reputation and matters of personal and collective honor; be upright; look ahead in these departments. Today: A day for serious contemplation, not frivolity; avoid unwise actions.

Money of Aquarius III.

If you were born in the third decan of Aquarius (Feb. 9-18) you have numerous ways of making money, being able to profit by almost anything to which you will apply your mind and hand. It should be something you do in a personal manner. But avoid becoming too emotional about it; never trade in anything where the feelings are negatively affected. Serve the majority.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead brings no major hindrance to continuing gain and harmony other than own errors or indulgence, if this is your birthday. Put in and take out. From Jan. 20; push aread. Danger: March 30-April 15; Aug. 18-Oct. 17.

Sheer Fun Is Found Often In "Just Living"

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

"JUST living is sheer fun," writes a reader-friend, who is a painter and poet, as well as a dramatist. Having known him for years, I know how much he has been in love with the job of living.

"No doubt I was lucky," he goes on, "to have been born with so great a sense of wonder and curiosity, that I have never been able to get used to the incredible oddness of just being alive.

"It is amazing. Even when I am disillusioned as regards my own life, as I sometimes am in off moods, the strangeness of my fellow-livers fascinates me. They are not only amusing but interesting.

"They are funny and pathetic by turns, like myself; and I have found that in the darkest seasons of life there is always consolation to be had, if we are not completely imprisoned within ourselves.

"How dull the world would be if it had been peopled exclusively by persons of my type. We should all be living quiet pastoral lives, far from the maddening crowd—not a machine on earth!

"If everyone else had my likes and dislikes, belonged to my political party, held my religious faith, and lived as I want to live, it would drive all of us to the last ditch of desperation.

"To me every human contact is an experience, every friendship—or even acquaintance—is an adventure. Never yet have I met any human being in whom I did not find something unique, charming."

In respect to the future, my friend has a mystic philosophy—he does not call it a faith—the roots of which are too deep to discover, which assures him utterly—leaving no margin of fear.

How good it is to see a man who loves life for itself, who enjoys it and does not simply endure it; one to whom it is a romance, not a burden or a bore. Yet he has known hard knocks aplenty.

Surely the secret of his joy in living is that he is not imprisoned within himself. He knows how to get into the lives of his fellows; and that secret is open to us all.

Jar Covers

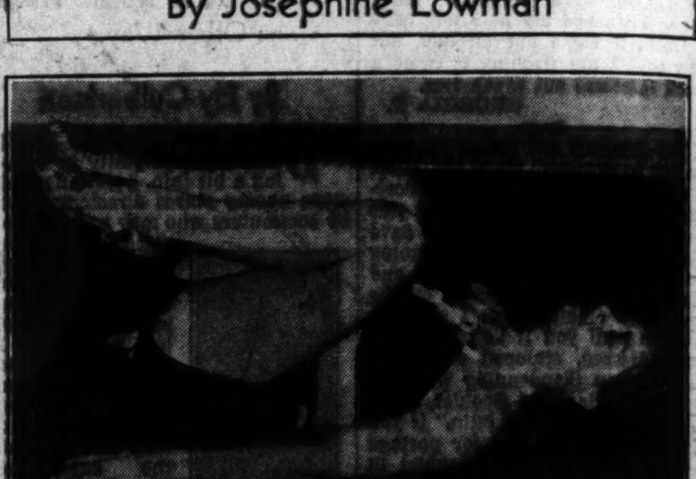
If you do not have tin covers for all your jelly glasses, cover the tops with circles of brown paper after the paraffin top has been hardened. Tie down with string. If this paraffin top is protected from dust it may be used over again for next year's jelly, while if it were exposed to dust all season, one would hesitate to use it.

To Wash or Not to Wash.

It sometimes makes a great deal of difference in the cooking of meats if they are washed first and if your butcher is reliable there is no actual need for this process. It is well to wipe off chops, steaks, etc., to remove any pieces of splintered bone that may have clung to the meat and would prove disastrous to your teeth.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman



I DO NOT hold with those who say that we are all born with limitations as to the health and vitality we may possess. I think that the only limitation we have is the ability to want them badly enough to get them. It is literally amazing what some people, who apparently started with a small store of health, have made of themselves. The muscles of the body, the skin, the hair, the circulation, the vitality, all respond so quickly to proper care.

This is another exercise to help you with constipation.

Lie on your back with your arms at your sides and your knees straight. Feet together. Bend both knees up as close to the abdomen as you can. Straighten the knees lowering the legs to the floor. Continue.

These exercises should be used in connection with the routine I have outlined for you in the pamphlet on constipation which you can have by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to Josephine Lowman in care of St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Egg Novelty

Cut egg in four pieces straight across as with an egg slicer, only the slices have to be larger. Remove the yolk, press through sieve, add a little butter, season with English mustard, salt, pepper, and very little anchovy paste. Fill center of egg slice with paste using a pastry bag, decorate top with a small cut of ripe olive or caper.

Systematize the Family.

Have a place for everything in the home and see that the entire family knows where that place is. Further insist that the things are returned to their proper place when finished with them. It may take a little nagging at first but soon the family will be as annoyed as you when they see things lying all around and creating a disorderly appearance.

A pastry tube comes in handy when the platter is to be edged with mashed potatoes.

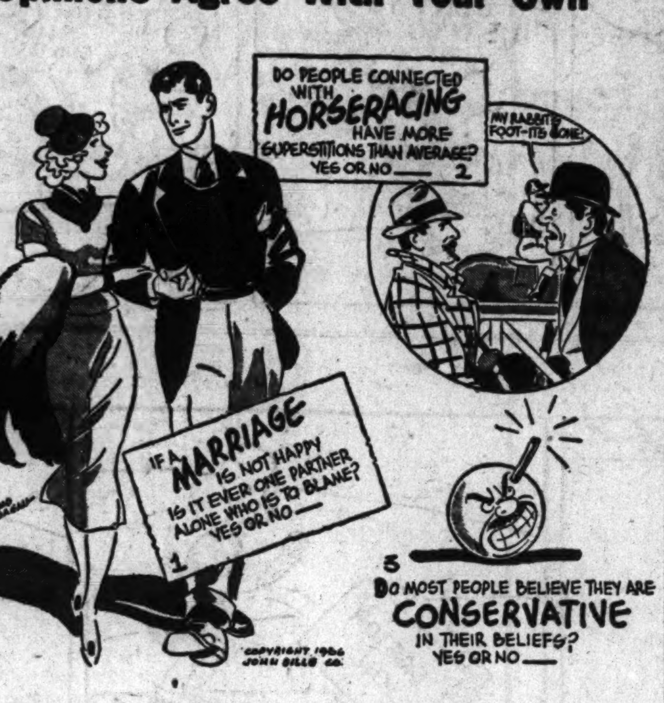
Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: Answers are from the scientific viewpoint. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.



DO PEOPLE CONNECTED WITH HORSERACING HAVE MORE SUPERSTITIONS THAN AVERAGE? YES OR NO—— 2
MY RABBIT'S FOOT—IT'S GONE!
IF A MARRIAGE IS NOT HAPPY IS IT EVER ONE PARTNER ALONE WHO IS TO BLAME? YES OR NO——

DO MOST PEOPLE BELIEVE THEY ARE CONSERVATIVE IN THEIR BELIEFS? YES OR NO——
COPYRIGHT 1936 JOHN DILLE CO.

1. —That wise woman, Olga Knopf, maintains in her fine book "The Art of Being a Woman," that there are always errors on both sides. Both partners are responsible. One partner may have made greater effort to keep the peace than the other but each is always partly to blame. Often the party who thinks he is the most nearly blameless is the one whose fault is the greatest. What a pity all unhappily married people will not confide in some distinterested friend or, still better, consult a psychiatrist or psychologist, trained in such problems. Send for booklet "How to Be Happily Married," three-cent stamped addressed envelope and ten cents to cover cost of printing.

2. —John McCarthy discusses horseracing delightfully in Today and says, the horseracing world is a world of "hunches," "systems," rabbit's feet, lucky signs, omens, stars and the like. Colonel Bradley ascribes some of his success in picking winners to the fact that the names of all his horses begin with B, such as Behave Yourself, Bubbling Over, Bagandbaggage, etc. Sam Eldreth, jockey, riding Zev to victory in the Kentucky Derby of 1923 against the English Derby winner, Papyrus, believed he won solely because he had a favorite spot under the trees where he always saddled Zev.

3. —Hardly one person in a thousand will admit he is a radical. He may admit he is a "liberal" but he is never a "radical." Even if he advocates overthrowing the Government he does so "to preserve it from the radicals" who would destroy the country if they got it. I do not believe I ever met a real live radical in the flesh—although many of them advocated schemes for changing the whole course of sex, government and the stream of eternity—the problems that chiefly engage the attention of radicals.

An Erroneous Idea Of Friendly Dogs

By
Albert Payson Terhune

JAMES GORDON BENNETT, JR., owner of the old New York Herald, was a great newspaper man. But he had one or two ideas which were 100 percent wrong; and on which his satellites preyed. Chief of these ideas was that you may always trust a man whom dogs "take to."

Bennett wanted a man for an important mission whose success might well mean success for life. He sent for one candidate for the job. Bennett's two small dogs ran to meet the newcomer. They snapped and snarled at him. They didn't like his odor—an oder imperceptible to human scent. The man was dismissed. A second candidate was sent for. As he came into Bennett's office, the two little dogs rushed up to him, in an ecstasy of welcome, licking his boots, sniffing lovingly at his trouser legs, treating him as if he were their loved and long-lost master.

Bennett hired him, on the strength of the two dogs' approval. Whereat the successful candidate went home and emptied from the cuffs of his trousers a handful of fried liver and anise seed. He was a dogman and he knew the effect this divine smell would have on any normal dog. A few drops of valerian were in the mixture.

As early as it will make an impression, teach the child never to go away from the home for any purpose whatsoever without first coming to tell mother about it and see if it is all right for him to go. Impress upon him that no promise of candy, ride or any other reward must interfere with this rule. Always keep any suggestion of fear out of the child's mind concerning these orders. Impress the suggestion that it is for mother's peace of mind rather than any harm that may come to the child.

Ninth Life

By Horton Jacques

WHEN Dr. Benjamin Foster's front tire blew out as he was doing 65 miles per hour, and he ran full tilt into a tree, his famous yellow cat Toledo was riding in the front seat beside him. After the rescuing party had unwrapped the doctor from around the tree and righted what was left of the car, they discovered Toledo. He was a very stiff and lifeless appearing cat.

Two days later, the doctor opened the one eye in that small patch of face still unbandaged and beheld Toledo sitting like a tawny sphinx at the foot of his bed.

"Fellow," said Dr. Ben weakly. "It's a good thing you had nine lives. I sure cashed in eight of them for you."

Toledo spat ungraciously at the figure in white that bent over the bed.

"Hello, Jean," continued the doctor. "So I'm your patient, sweet?"

"Sh," ordered nurse Jean Thomas. "You're not supposed to talk."

She tried to look very professional, but her eyes had anything but professional concern in them for Doctor Ben.

"Oh, well," he conceded with deceptive gaiety, and promptly relapsed back into unconsciousness.

It was six weeks before he left the hospital, and during all of that time Toledo and Jean managed to preserve an armed neutrality. As a cat Toledo was the most self-sufficient feline in existence, and for his utter disregard for anyone except himself, Doctor Foster worshiped him. Because Doctor Foster worshiped him, Jean detested Toledo. What Toledo thought about Jean was the best argument in favor of keeping dumb animals dumb.

Although his body was mended the doctor discovered his nervous system had undergone some harm. In the ordinary course of events, life went along much as it always had, but just let him get behind the wheel of a car and he went to pieces. It was as though he had lost every confidence in how to operate an automobile, and to a rising young man in the medical profession this was serious.

Jean helped to the best of her ability, driving him every place she could when she wasn't working, but Ben's practice began to slip. She saw it happening day by day as the ugly rumors began to circulate about his health. And day by day she saw the chances of their marriage being dissipated. Ben was very stubborn about some things.

"I've got to be able to offer my wife security," he was saying. "A doctor's wife gets enough of a dirty deal without having to scrimp and worry about money."

"Oh, darling, do we have to go all over that again? I'd marry the man I love if I had to loan him the money for the wedding license."

They were sitting in his car out in the country, with their picnic things and Toledo piled on the rear seat. She was seized with a sudden fit of coughing and the doctor leaned over methodically and extracted a bottle from his kit.

"Here try some of this syrup. It's the best thing I've found to cure a tickle in the throat."

She gulped down the liquid and made a wry face.

"You and your medicines. Each one tastes worse than the last."

He glanced at his watch and started to climb from the car.

"We'd better be getting back to town. I've a couple of patients to see before dark."

"Wait a minute, Ben. You do the driving."

"Not today. Do you want me to walk in on my patients so shaky I won't be able to hold a spoon?"

"You've got to get over your trouble. Don't you see it's caused by your becoming so tense when you drive?"

HE laughed back at her nervously. "I've tried and I've tried to relax, but it's no go. Slide over Jean, and take the wheel."

As he started to walk around the car she began coughing again. Fumbling around in its kit she pulled out a bottle. It was raised to her lips when he came up alongside of her, and after one agonized look he snatched it away.

"Good Lord. Did you drink any of that?"

"Of course," she choked. "Gee, it's foul tasting."

Dashing the bottle to the ground he fairly leaped for the car.

"I've got to get you to the hospital. The stuff in that bottle was deadly poison!"

They wheeled out onto the highway and Jean crouched down in the seat. Her face had gone deathly pale.

"Breathe deeply," he commanded. "Get as much air as possible into your lungs."

"Faster!" she gasped. "Oh, do drive faster!"

The needle of the speedometer crept past forty. A soft, furry, body hurtled forward and slipped down between them. Toledo, the untouchable, climbed into her lap.

"Faster! Faster!"

The knuckles of his hand on the steering wheel stood out whitely.

"You can't drive like that, Ben. Loosen up, Ben."

Grim lines formed around his teeth, but the speedometer showed sixty. Gradually the strain went out of his hands. Her hands closed and Toledo stared up at her fixedly.

They reached the parking area behind the hospital, and Jean's eyes fluttered open. She breathed a deep sigh of contentment.

"It worked, darling. Look at your hands. Steady as a rock. I knew if you'd only drive a car fast once more you'd get back your nerve."

"You never drank anything out of that bottle?"

"Of course not."

Toledo leaped just in time. It was touch and go if he would lose his last life by being crushed to pieces again.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE HUMAN SALAMANDER—On the 12th day of October, 1926, Mr. Mason, who was foreman at the American Refining Company's plant on North McMasters street, Amarillo, Tex., at 10 o'clock at night, reached up to remove a bit of paper from the automatic feeder of the company's 190 furnace. In the dim light he did not see the approach of the pony that supports the cable. This pony caught him and doubled him up partly over and partly under it, and dragged him its full length through 16 sections, each containing two burners in full blast on each side. After two minutes in the fiery furnace, he came out badly burned, and is alive today, after spending 11 months in the hospital.

THE MONUMENT TO A HAYSTACK—The Haystack Monument marks the spot where, during an August thunderstorm, a prayer meeting took refuge under a haystack in the field, resulting in the organization of the first Foreign and Home Mission in America. The organizers were Samuel J. Mills Jr., and four of his classmates of Williams College. The Haystack Monument was a gift of Senator Rice of Ohio in 1867.

Turkey Soup

In most households, the turkey isn't a thing of the past the day after Thanksgiving or Christmas. In fact, in some quarters there is some lament that he stays around so long. But make the most of the bird while he's with you. At least one eminent doctor has said that turkey is good for you—and so is turkey soup. Cover the bones with cold salted water in a large utensil and simmer for a couple of hours. Add some Scotch barley, split peas or what have you and simmer some more. Then put in diced onions, celery, carrots and cook at least a half hour longer. The result will be soup that you'll remember.

A Little Kindness.

It is very irritating to be called to the front door repeatedly during the day's work with people selling things, but try to be considerate even if you do not buy what they offer. These days the person at your door may be just as unhappy at being there as you are to be interrupted.

Fish should not boil rapidly or the flakes will separate.
